Millions From the Sky.
Meat and Alcohol.
Idleness and Vice.
To Talk or Not to Talk.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

HODGE, Cal., Jan. 28

MILLIONS of dollars, pouring down from the sky, along this coast today. At 10 o'clock last night, on this desert, high up in clear air, the stars, of amazing brilliancy, seemed so close to earth, you felt that you could reach up, and take the Big Dipper by the handle. Today the sky is one gray cloud, stretching over the mountains, westward, far out on the Pacific.

NO ONE can estimate the value of such a rainfall to this western coast. The soft ground, tree clad mountains, lakes, reservoirs store up the precious water, for next summer's needs. The full crops thus assured, mean hundreds of millions more, in cash, to fruit and vegetable growers. It is a rain, persistent, gentle, not interfering with riding, working, or other occupation. Nature seems to say to men "you go about your business, I'll attend to mine, and rain."

INDIA moves slowly on the road to liberty. To be free, you must be ready for freedom. Hindus, demanding independence along mild Gandhi lines, raised a new national flag, crying down with the British Union Jack. Three hundred Communists, supposed to be inspired by Russia, objected to both flags and insisted on the red flag, for the whole world. Gandhi, earnest, sincere, a water-drinking vegetarian, leader of 300,000,000 other vegetarians, has a hard task.

A HANDFUL of British in India, representing little islands far away, have proved that beef-eating, beer-drinking men can have their way, around the earth. They did not hold on here, in 1776. But then, they were fighting their own kind, also meat eaters and liberal consumers of alcohol. Perhaps they won IN SPITE of alcohol and meat. But history does not say so.

INVESTIGATORS in California's San Quentin Prison find that idleness is the curse of prison life, leading to rebellion, brooding and vice. Investigators might make the same report, far from San Quentin, at Palm Beach, Agua Caliente, Newport and other well-known resorts.

FOR those made worthless by inherited or too easily acquired wealth, there is no cure, generally, but the undertaker. But there should be some way of keeping convicts busy, and interested in work. They should not compete to the detriment of free labor or private business, but they may be occupied with fair profit to themselves, without such competition and made to know, by experience, that work is better and more profitable than crime.

PARIS tells women that skirts for day wear will hereafter fall at least five inches below the knee. That is a step in the direction of sanity, a heavenly blessing to many women whose legs would not get thin no matter what they did.

LATER, says Paris, all dresses will be long, as fashionable dresses are now for evening wear. That women should give up freedom in walking, acquired after centuries of struggle, seems incredible. But as the sheep before her shearers was dumb, so are women silent, acquiescent, before the fashion dictator.

CHARLES CHAPLIN says he will make no talkie, at least for the present. He is making a silent picture that has already cost a million, and thinks his silence more eloquent than his voice, asking you to notice that the heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament showeth forth His handiwork, silently, not in talkie fashion.

CHAPLIN said, and may be right, "A good talking picture is inferior to a good stage play, while a good silent picture is superior to a good stage play."

PHOENIX, Ariz., not far from here, as Western distance is reckoned, reports the greatest mining year that Arizona has known. In copper alone, the state produced more than eight hundred thirty-three million pounds, one hundred million pounds more than last year, value $149,200,000.

THAT interests comparatively few Americans, of whom too many know of mining only through bad get-rich-quick experiences. Arizona's climate interests everybody, and will be worth to the state more than metals ever were, after the mines are exhausted.

MILLIONS, deeply religious, will be interested in a ceremony that took place elsewhere in Arizona, yesterday. A statue of, "Christ, the King," was unveiled in the Garden of the Holy Family Church in Tucson amid enthusiastic cries of "Viva Cristo, El Rey." A special message from the Pope was read to the multitude, another from Archbishop Daeger, of Santa Fe.

THE Catholic religion, complaining bitterly of persecution in Mexico, is prospering on this side of the border. Separa-

SEN. REED HELPS END SECRECY

America Wins Fight Against 'Closed Door' Sessions; France, Italy at Odds

LONDON, Jan. 28.—(AP.)—Under the leadership of the American delegation, plans were made late today to let the whole world listen in through the press at all future plenary meetings of the naval conference.

Greatly expanding previous arrangements, it was decided at American insistence that seats be given in the conference room at St. James Palace to 78 reporters representing all nations.

Loud speakers will be installed to carry the proceedings to the press room outside for those whom it will be impossible to admit.

American newspapermen are to get 12 seats in the meeting room.

The plan applies only to full meetings of the conference and not to sessions of the "Big Five" or committees.

Senators Robinson and Reed, of the American delegation, played a prominent part in initiating the move which Secretary Stimson took insistently before his colleagues of the other represented nations.

The next plenary session will be held on Thursday. This was decided on today when a secret meeting of the "Big Five" apparently failed to bring France and Italy any closer to an agreement on Mediterranean naval parity.

Detectives Notified Of Man's Shooting

State police today notified county detectives that Frank Dougans, 41, was shot in the back in a gun battle with a posse of farmers at Greenville. The report said the man had been surprised entering a barn and in escaping fired at the farmers.

Dougans was rushed to Greenville Hospital. The detectives were asked whether he has a police record in Allegheny County.

Rain or Snow Due, Then Mercury Drop

Rain or snow can be expected here today with temperatures of about 35 degrees, Forecaster W. S. Brotzman predicted. It will grow colder again tonight, and tomorrow there may be another slight drop in the temperature, he said.

Yesterday the cold snap was broken and at 2 p. m. the temperature reached 38 degrees.

FIGHT FLARES AFTER TAXI COURT BAN

Crowd Dispersed, 3 Arrested At B. & O. Station; Strike Injunction Made Permanent

After Judge Ambrose B. Reid today made permanent the injunction which prohibits the 1,400 striking taxicab drivers from interfering with the operation of the Yellow and Green companies' cabs, a fight occurred at the Baltimore and Orio Railroad Station.

Fists swung freely for five minutes when strike sympathizers and several new drivers became involved in an argument, police reported. A crowd was scattered by police and three persons were arrested. The three were listed as L. W. Yarmen, 30, a deputy sheriff; Joseph Wenzel, 25, a striker, and Michael Nelson, 28, mechanic, who was said to be a bystander.

WRIT MODIFIED

Judge Reid's order was handed down shortly after the Green Cab joined the Yellow Cab in an effort to operate taxicabs.

This was the first time since the strike started 17 days ago that Green Cabs attempted to operate.

The permanent injunction was modified in one respect. Where the temporary injunction restricted the strikers from picketing within 250 yards of company property, the permanent order, by agreement of both sides, reduces the distance to 125 yards.

GREEN CABS RESUME

This agreement came after the Green joined the Yellow in an effort to operate taxis with imported drivers.

Half a dozen Green cabs were sent from the Ellsworth avenue garage under the protection of deputy sheriffs riding in accompanying touring cars. They appeared in the downtown district a short time later.

The granting of the injunction was criticized in a formal statement issued by local representa-

Aged Couple, Woman Killed in Explosion

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 28.—(AP.)—Three persons, two of them women, were killed or burned to death in an explosion and fire at Carbondale this morning. The dead are Miss Ella Clark, 50, and Mr. and Mrs. Owen Mangan, an elderly couple.

The explosion, it is believed by authorities, resulted from a mine cave-in disturbing a gas main on Scott street, Carbondale, where surface disturbances have been frequent. It blew the entire back out of the Clark and Mangan home, as well as tearing off the roof.

MRS. H. H. M'CLINTIC, JR.

DIVORCEE WEDS M'CLINTIC

Mrs. Louise Suydam McCutcheon, young society matron of Pittsburgh, who won a divorce from Thomas McCutcheon five weeks ago, is on her second honeymoon today.

In New York yesterday Mrs. McCutcheon and Howard Hale McClintic, Jr., Pittsburgh engineer and clubman, were married.

McClintic is a son of Howard Hale McClintic, vice president of McClintic Marshall Construction Company, and Mrs. McClintic. His bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Suydam, of 5416 Darlington road.

In her divorce action against McCutcheon, who is in the security business, Mrs. McCutcheon testified that he had slapped her, refused to take her with him to Europe and was unwilling to assume the cares of married life.

The newlyweds did not announce where they are going to spend their honeymoon.

McClintic, too, has been divorced. He and his first wife were parted by the courts in Salt Lake City, Utah, five years ago.

Hoover Reports Increase in Labor

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—(AP.)—President Hoover said today that reports to the Department of Labor showed an increase in employment for the week ending January 14 of 3.3 per cent over the preceding week.

This increase, which the chief executive said was "encouraging," extended to almost every industry. The Department of Labor was advised last week that the trend upward had begun January 8 and the annual reports indicate a continued climb.

DEFENDANTS LOSE MOVE TO QUASH CHARGES

Prosecution Promises New Testimony Opposed to 'Self Defense' in Killing

By LEE CURRAN
Staff Correspondent.

FRANKLIN, Pa., Jan. 28.—The state won a preliminary skirmish with defense counsel today at the opening of the trial of Walter J. Lyster, Harold Watts and Frank Slapikas, former coal and iron policemen, charged with involuntary manslaughter in connection with the death of John Borkowski, Tyre miner.

Following the skirmish, selection of the jury was begun.

Selection of the jury proceeded slowly. Five had been chosen, late today, three of them women, from 16 examined. They were Ralph Weaver, foreman, Oil City; Mrs. Clyde Prior, housewife, Sandy Creek; Mrs. Lydia C. Nugent, housewife, Oil City; Gifford Edley, oil pumper, Cornplanter; Mrs. C. E. Hugus, housewife, Franklin.

SPECIAL JURY

Charles B. Prichard, counsel for the accused, sought in vain to have the indictment quashed. His contention was that the three defendants were being placed in double jeopardy in violation of the constitutional guarantee.

Judge W. M. Parker had recourse to an unusual procedure in passing on the motion. Being of the opinion at first that it was a question not of law but of fact that he was called upon to decide, he had a special jury impaneled to consider the matter.

Prichard proposed that the jury be asked to read the testimony in the first trial of the defendants, when they were charged with murder and found not guilty.

NEW TESTIMONY

District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner, of Allegheny County, where the first trial was held, answered that some of the testimony taken then would be omitted and that new testimony would be introduced.

District Attorney Daniel J. Skelly, of Venango County, thereupon objected to the presentation of the original testimony to the special jury.

Judge Parker, on deciding that the question of double jeopardy was one of law and not of fact, directed the special jury to find a verdict for the commonwealth.

Planes Fail to Sight Flood Zone Victims

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Jan. 28.—(AP.)—Uncertainty as to the fate of hundreds of Posey County residents, isolated by Southwestern Indiana flood waters, held the attention of relief workers today.

National Guard aviators, flying low over many houses, found no evidence of life, where just a day or two before they had been greeted by hand-waving. They expressed belief that recession of the swollen streams might reveal dead bodies in the homes.

Lindy Teaches Anne New Flying Tricks

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 28.—(AP.)—Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh spent a busy hour brushing up on her flying with her noted husband in the role of instructor.

The colonel and the former Anne Morrow took a biplane training ship at Los Angeles municipal airport and for an hour Mrs. Lindbergh handled the controls, taking off, circling the field, landing and doing it over again.

MADRID DENIES DE RIVERA QUIT

MADRID, Jan. 28.—(AP.)—The Spanish government, through the office of the chief censor, late today unqualifiedly denied reports published abroad that Premier Primo de Rivera had resigned.

The Premier presided as usual at this evening's cabinet meeting.

Whether he will resign in the future continues speculative, being dependent upon the attitude to be taken by the army and navy.

The report of Gen de Rivera's resignation was received at various points in Europe and South America today.

London newspapers said King Alfonso had accepted the resignation, and from Hendaye, on the Franco-Spanish frontier, came the further report that Gen. Berenguer, former high commissioner of Morocco, had been asked to form a cabinet—indicating a return to constitutional government.

The brevity of the reports indicated rigorous censorship throughout Spain.

Rivera recently had asked commanders of the Spanish army to vote blanket approval of his administration, agreeing to retire if the ballot should be adverse.

Buenos Aires had reports that Commander Ramon Franco, Spain's greatest aviator and an outspoken foe of Primo for some time past, had reached Cadiz by air, bearing plans for a revolution in which the "House of the People," a noted community center for both workers and intellectuals in Madrid, had agreed to join.

Russ Royalist Chief Feared Assassinated

PARIS, Jan. 28.—(AP.)—Russian Royalist and anti-Bolshevik circles here have become alarmed at the sudden disappearance of Gen. Koutiepoff, who succeeded the Grand Duke Nicholas as leader of the Military party.

He left his home Sunday to go to the Russian Club a short distance away, but it is known he never reached his destination. The police were called Sunday evening and began an immediate investigation, but thus far have been unable to get a single trace of his movements.

Members of his family, friends told police today, fear he has been assassinated.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Jan. 28.—"We're not saying anything until we see our attorneys," was the comment of Irene Schroeder, blonde trigger woman, when she and W. Glenn Dague, her auto salesman companion, were arraigned on charges of murder, manslaughter, felonious assault and battery and highway robbery today. They were held without bail pending a further hearing. Dague also refused to say anything. No attorney represented them.

Under heavy guard they were taken from the county jail, where they had been confined since being returned from Arizona last Friday, to the office of Alderman

Treasurer's Office To Be Open at Night

City Treasurer Roy D. Schooley will keep his office open for the collection of taxes until 9 p. m. tomorrow, Thursday and Friday, Mayor Charles H. Kline announced today.

The Mayor explained that owing to delay in completing tax statements, collections were begun on January 7 instead of January 1, denying taxpayers the difference in time in which to take the discount allowed during the first month.

Wife Finds Mate, Stranger Dead From Gas Fumes

When Mrs. John McLaughlin, of 1209 Gibbon street, returned home today after visiting since last Friday in Johnstown, she found her husband and an unidentified man dead from carbon monoxide poisoning.

The body of McLaughlin, 36, was on the kitchen floor. The other was in bed.

Several gas fires were burning, with all doors and windows closed.

Mrs. McLaughlin said her husband had taken her to a train Friday night and that she had not heard from him after that.

Soldier's Life Sacrificed In Dry Law War

Here is an instance of how an American soldier was killed in the government's attempt to enforce prohibition.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Claude Butler, a soldier, stationed at Camp Stephen D. Little, Nogales, Ariz., on March 31, 1928, was suspected by P. B. Doolittle, a customs service inspector, of attempting to smuggle tequila into the United States from Mexico. Doolittle encountered Butler near a water tank west of Nogales and shot him to death.

The coroner of Santa Cruz County, Ariz., in a report to the Washington Herald July 2, 1929, wrote:

"Coroner's verdict that he died from 'gunshot wound inflicted by P. B. Doolittle, and from evidence submitted, we, the jury, believe that the said Doolittle was not justified in shooting the deceased.'

"Doolittle transferred. Butler given military funeral."

The United States Army does not give military funerals to criminals.

DESTROYERS OF AIR CRASH EVIDENCE FACE PROSECUTION

5 KILLED IN PLUNGE AT AIRPORT

Coroner's Order to Keep Wreck Intact Is Defied; No Clue to Place Blame

International News Service.

KANSAS CITY, Kan., Jan. 28.—State warrants will be asked charging criminal negligence on the part of Central Airlines, subsidiary of Universal Aviation Corporation, in connection with the crash of a Central Airlines cabin monoplane which killed five here last night, Dr. Ben H. Coffin, Wyandotte County coroner, announced today.

After an investigation Dr. Coffin declared he believed the airline officials should be held criminally liable for hampering the official investigation into the crash which killed five persons.

"Most of the available evidence has been destroyed and removed, making it virtually impossible to conduct an intelligent investigation into the most disastrous air tragedy this city has ever experienced," Dr. Coffin declared.

CORONER DEFIED

The destruction of the wreckage by employes of the airline was in defiance of Dr. Coffin's orders and the coroner said he was "astonished that officials of so large a company would permit this to be done in violation of the law."

Not only was the wreckage torn apart and burned but an attempt was made to cover the crater hollowed out by the flaming ship as it struck the ground. The cause of the crash was a mystery.

The plane witnesses say made a wide circle at an altitude of 400 feet above the airport preliminary to landing about 9:30 last night.

WRECKAGE TORN APART

Suddenly it side-slipped and plunged like dead weight toward the earth. Fire broke out just before it hit. A terrific explosion occurred as the ship struck the ground.

The seared remains of the dead were found in a grim huddle at the front of the cabin killed from the impact of the crash.

As quickly as the bodies were removed, a hastily mustered crew of pilots and mechanics from the Universal Airlines and Central Airlines began removing all evidence of the accident, savagely fighting off reporters and photographers as they worked.

The smoking frame of the ship was torn apart with axes and saws. Within an hour all evidence of the wreck had been strewn about the corn field where the plane crashed. Where the ship had plowed up the soft soil a bonfire was built.

Even the remnants of the victims' baggage—a woman's comb, a magazine, a box of cold remedy and a broken package of cigarets—were destroyed.

Those killed in the crash were: Dyke Laudeman, Kansas City, Kan., pilot; William Flynn, Kansas City, Mo.; R. McKinnon, Chicago; James B. Eggert, Chicago, music publisher, and Miss Margaret Dice, St. Joseph, Mo.

Inquiry Into Air Crash Is Demanded in Senate

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—(INS.)—A general demand for full investigation of the air crash near Kansas City yesterday in which five persons were killed, and enactment of legislation requiring inquiry into the causes of all such accidents and publication of the findings of the Department of Commerce, was voiced in the Senate this afternoon.

Prompted by an inquiry by Senator Bingham (Rep.), Connecticut, as to the fate of his bill authorizing the Secretary of Commerce to hold hearings and make public the findings on air tragedies, the senators discussed the Kansas City crash for a half hour.

Senator Norris (Rep.) of Nebraska, led a protest against the action of the Kansas City air authorities in removing evidence from the scene of the crash.

"The public is entitled to all evidence," said Norris. "Just the same as in railroad accidents occurring in interstate commerce."

Senator Bratton (Dem.) of New Mexico, charged the Commerce Department with "emphatic failure to meet the terms of the Commerce Department air act in its aviation accident investigation policy."

Bingham demanding action on his measure, denounced the policies of "certain aviation companies" in withholding from the press information concerning crashes.

William E. Marshall, two blocks distant.

ATTORNEYS PUZZLED

County Detective Lee, representing Lieut. Thomas Boettner, who made the charges, merely reiterated the allegations of the information. No testimony was taken.

Irene's "defend me, defend my man" attitude has given attorneys seeking to represent her in the Corp. Brady Paul killing something besides defense plans to ponder over. The blonde trigger woman's determination to "stick" to Dague is more than the imported legal talent bargained for in their dealings with Irene's sisters, Mrs. Mayme Baum and Mrs. Martha Schoenian.

It was a glittering array of legal minds—three from Ohio and one from New Castle—which planned a conference here today. Headed by former Judge W. P. Barnum, of Mellett murder fame, the Ohio delegation, consisting of Attorney Kedgewin H. Powell, former Youngstown police chief, and Attorney Oscar Stevens, were scheduled to meet with Attorney J. Elder Bryan here.

EVADES QUESTIONS

Attorney Powell, following an interview with Irene in her cell yesterday, would neither affirm nor deny that he and his associates would take up the case of Dague.

"Dague has not sent for me, nor have I made any effort to see him," he declared.

Asked about Irene's ultimatum, "If you don't defend Dague you can't defend me," he was evasive, repeating his first statement.

"Judge Barnum will be senior counsel in this case," he went on in explanation, "and will decide what steps will be taken. It is very likely that another New Castle attorney, in addition to Mr. Bryan, will associate himself with us, but I am not in position to say authoritatively even that Attorney Bryan will assist us."

Powell showed marked willingness to discuss Irene and her case.

"She is a woman of two personalities," he remarked several times.

He indicated a marked tendency towards the possibility of a defense based upon a plea of emotional insanity. He discussed freely other similar cases.

DAGUE JOINS SERVICES

Religious services were held last night in the Lawrence County jail.

Dague, over his fit of sullenness, requested Warden R. M. McBride to be permitted to participate. He was released from his cell into the jail corridor with the other prisoners as they gathered around Mrs. Forquer in prayer and song. Irene remained in her cell, paying slight attention during the religious services.

The jury panel for the March term of court is now being drawn.

Besides the regular grand jury panel of 24, five venires of 60 jurors each are being drawn from the wheel. The unusually heavy panel is looked upon as the first step in the county's preparation for the forthcoming trial of Irene and Dague.

It is considered likely that the trigger woman's attorneys will seek a change of venue, but local officials are prepared to oppose any such move.

Donnie Isn't Stingy With Love—Likes Toy Bank

By AL GOUGH
Staff Correspondent.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Jan. 28.—Five-year-old Donnie Schroeder knows where his "mommy" and his "daddy" are.

"Mommy's in jail," he boastfully declared.

"Why, Donnie? Why is mamma in jail?" he was asked.

"O-o-oh, she shot policemens," was the naive reply.

"How do you know? You didn't see her shoot a policeman."

"I did so," he retorted. "My moms shoot—boom—boom. And daddy shoot—boom—boom."

"And daddy's hat was shot." It flew and flew—B-R-R-R-R-P—just like that." He illustrated with his hand an imaginary flight through the air.

Climbing, crawling and pulling himself through the rungs of a chair in the office of Jack Dunlap, county detention officer, he talked about "everything under the sun."

He knows the name of the highway patrolman shot in the gun battle on the New Castle-Butler road last December 27.

"Boom—boom—boom! Everybody was shooting all around," he said.

"Uncle Tom" (Irene has a brother, Tom Crawford, who thus far has eluded capture), "shot right through the windshield. Boom—boom! It hurt my ears." Expressively he placed his hands over his ears.

While he talked and performed his eyes were everywhere.

He made a discovery.

He came from under the desk with a toy tractor.

"It's broke." He held it out, trying to show where the mechanism had failed. "Won't you get me a new one?"

Picking up a toy cash register he said, "See this," pointing to the register lever. "You pull this down. Got any quarters, dimes or nickels? I'll show you." He rang up a contribution.

"How much is that?" he demanded.

"That's four-fifty," he was told. He pondered.

"Well, when there's $10 (he turned the bank over) it opens here."

"Then what are you going to do with all that money?"

"I'll give you some and you can buy me a new tractor. I'll give some to Mamma and to Daddy and to Uncle Tom and to Aunt Martha."

"Why don't you give it all to mamma? Don't you love her?"

He beamed.

"Sure I do. I love her lots, and Daddy too. And Grandpops and Uncle Tom and Aunt Martha."

British Women Who Marry Yanks, Aliens

LONDON, Jan. 28.—(AP.)—British women who marry Americans have no country. So far as Great Britain is concerned, they are aliens. To become Americans they must be naturalized. Foreign Secretary Henderson elucidated when questioned in the House of Commons. There have been no indications of perturbation because of bachelors among the American delegation to the naval parley.

ILEANA'S TROTH WARMS HEART OF MARIE

Match-Making of Dowager Queen of Rumania Recalled By Daughter's Engagement

By ALFRED TYRNAUER,
International News Service.

VIENNA, Jan. 28.—Princess Ileana, of Rumania, long considered one of Europe's most beautiful and eligible princesses, who not long ago told newspapermen that she despaired of ever getting married, today was planning her trousseau in preparation for her forthcoming marriage to Count Alexander von Hochberg, second son of the Prince of Piess and member of one of Germany's oldest and most aristocratic families.

Weeks of rumors concerning the pretty Rumanian princess' romance with the youthful count were climaxed by official news from Bucharest that the betrothal had taken place.

The engagement calls to mind the match-making attempts during the last few years of Princess Ileana's mother, the dowager Queen Marie, of Rumania. While Queen Marie's first wishes undoubtedly were to marry her only unmarried daughter into another reigning house of Europe, it is understood she is highly pleased with the present engagement, as the marriage will link the Rumanian royal family with a line that, up until the fall of the German Empire, was one of the most powerful in Central Europe.

Princess Ileana has been not without suitors during her lifetime, but always some insurmountable obstacle cropped up which prevented the betrothal. One of the most persistent bidders for her hand has been King Boris, of Bulgaria, but the known dislike of the Bulgarian people for their Rumanian neighbors prevented an engagement in this case.

Princess Ileana is 21, while the count is 25. He was born in London. Their marriage will reduce the number of unattached royal princesses in Europe from eight to seven.

The date of the forthcoming marriage is expected to be made known this Saturday, when official announcement of the betrothal is expected to be made by Queen Marie.

'WILBUR AIDING TRUST'—NORRIS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—(AP.)—Secretary of the Interior Wilbur was charged in the Senate today by Senator Norris (Rep.), Nebraska, with nullifying the provisions of the Boulder Dam bill and moving to turn the power from the proposed project over to the "water power trust."

The Nebraskan read an opinion given by the solicitor of the Interior Department which held power could be sold to private interests. He called attention to the provision in the Swing-Johnson Boulder Dam act stipulating that preference should be given to municipalities and states in the leasing of power.

"That means that the secretary of the interior is able," shouted Norris, "to nullify the most important provision in that law and give every kilowatt of power to the waterpower trust."

Senator Johnson (Rep.), California, the author of the Boulder Dam bill, agreed with Norris, and warned: "We will not be slow when the time comes to express our views on this matter, no matter what the solicitor has advised."

Rumors that the dove of peace was hovering over the strike late yesterday were soon dispelled. Paul Toole, chairman of the strikers' committee, told of a meeting to be attended by employers and drivers and Miss M. Emmelinne Pitt and Thomas G. Flinn, federal labor mediators. Later Toole said the meeting had been called off. E. S. Higgins, president of Parmelee Transportation Company, which controls both Green and Yellow, denied knowledge of such a meeting. He added that no such meeting was contemplated.

ONE FINED IN FIGHT

Hearings in Central Police Court today were fewer. Charles Connolly, driver for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, was fined $10 with the option of going to jail for 10 days after police testified that he called one of the imported drivers a questionable name and punched him in a tussle at the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

Connelly denied all the charges and explained he was only defending himself.

Two imported drivers who ran past red traffic lights were turned over to Traffic Court by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg.

J. T. Harley, deputy sheriff, who was in police court yesterday, charged with creating disorder at the Yellow Cab garage, explained today that he had not been "fired," but had resigned. He said he resigned when he was requested to eat with the imported drivers.

BULLET PERILS TWO ACTRESSES

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 28.—(INS.)—Hollywood police today were conducting an intensive search for two men who fired a bullet into the automobile of Sally O'Neil and Molly O'Day, screen actresses.

The actresses, who are sisters, had been followed by two men in another car, they reported to police.

As they drove their car into a parking lot, one of the men fired a shot, shattering the windshield of their car.

PANTAGES GETS REHEARING

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 28.—(AP.)—Argument on a petition seeking release from jail on bond of Alexander Pantages, multimillionaire theater man, pending decision of his appeal from a conviction of assault upon Eunice Pringle, 17-year-old dancer, was to be heard today in Superior Court.

Attorneys for the 54-year-old vaudeville man yesterday filed with Superior Judge Charles W. Fricke affidavits by three physicians, who declared Pantages was in danger of permanent injury and death as a result of his confinement. The affidavits declared Pantages had suffered several heart attacks and mentioned a "serious" recent attack.

A previous attempt to obtain freedom on bond failed after physicians appointed by the court testified Pantages suffered principally from unfounded fears of death.

FUND CRISIS MORE ACUTE IN CHICAGO

Bickerings Halt Relief Plans Of Committee; School Board Head Scores Strawn

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—Political bickerings and further delays in actual tax collection today threatened to push Chicago and Cook County closer to the brink of threatened financial disaster.

The city's financial crisis was further complicated when the board of review ordered a reassessment of loop (business district) property.

A complete survey of downtown valuations and a series of hearings which may, according to observers, take several months, was started following charges by the Board of Education that the regular reassessment has undervalued loop property $300,000,000, throwing the tax burden on outlying sections.

SEE LONG DELAY

Reviewers decline to say how much more delay in the collection of taxes, now overdue 20 months, will be occasioned by the reassessment order.

It is feared that this new delay will halt emergency relief measures planned by the Silas H. Strawn citizens' committee, which has raised a $50,000,000 fund through the sale of tax anticipation warrants.

This fund was raised on the promise that reassessment would be finished by May 1. Under the new plan, however, it is feared reassessment may not be finished for many more weeks, thus necessitating more cash.

Chicago's debts now total more than $300,000,000 with interest bills of more than $50,000 a day piling up.

NO CASH ON HAND

Yet there is absolutely no cash in the city or county treasury to pay employes or to meet current expenses.

With the coal supply in schoolbins rapidly dwindling and dealers refusing further deliveries, H. Wallace Caldwell, president of the school board, has denounced the Strawn committee and refuses "to touch a penny" of the emergency fund.

"The Strawn committee," Caldwell declared, "is a bunch of reformers placing obstacles in the way of rapid adjustment of affairs. They take it for granted that the public has no confidence in public officials."

FIREMEN FIND STILL; 1 HELD

Answering an alarm for fire on the third floor of a residence at 1917 Metropolitan street, North Side, early today, firemen, according to a police report, discovered a 300-gallon still and a cutting plant. Mrs. Rose Bodina, 53, occupant of the residence, was arrested on a charge of violating the Snyder act. Today she was held for court in $500 bond.

According to Lieut. Robert McIntosh, the fire was confined to the third floor and caused damage estimated at $1,000. The still was located on the third floor and the cutting plant in the basement, McIntosh said. A large variety of liquors, bottles and labels were confiscated, the police report stated. Mrs. Bodina said she rented the basement to two men to make fire extinguishers.

2 Pay $176,903 Fines, Duties to U. S. Customs

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(AP.)—Two of the largest customs fines ever levied in this port were paid today by Louis A. Schwabacher, of San Francisco, who paid $72,986.13, and Mrs. Frank Vance Storrs, of New York City, who paid $103,917.16, as duty and fines on clothing and jewelry they failed to declare.

The sums paid include the foreign purchase price, plus duty and a 100 per cent fine for failure to declare.

Mr. Schwabacher and his wife arrived October 22 on the Bremen. Undeclared wearing apparel and jewelry, including a necklace appraised at $18,000, were found in their baggage.

Mrs. Storrs, wife of a New York theater program publisher, arrived October 2 on the Berengaria with her two daughters.

Acting on a tip from abroad, customs agents held her baggage and it was discovered that only a small declaration had been made. Her defense to the charge was that she had purchased much of the jewelry years ago in Europe.

LONE BOATMAN ACQUITTED

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(AP.)—A Berlin dispatch today said Paul Muller, known to Americans for his adventurous trip in a small sailing boat across the Atlantic, was acquitted in the District Court at Koepenick yesterday on a charge of burglary.

Muller has served 20 years probably altogether for burglary, but during his last term he became convinced that burglary as a trade was no good. Hoping to wipe clean his slate with some extraordinary deed, he went to Muggelsee and purchased a boat for $150, in which he hoped to cross the ocean.

Within a minute after he paid the price, the boat was sunk at Muggelsee, and the occupant barely escaped drowning. Enraged, Muller that night broke into the shipyards and sought revenge by destroying the shipbuilder's own boat.

He bought another boat and started for America July 6, 1928, reaching the Canary Islands, and later Cuba. He told the court yesterday how well he had been treated in the United States, particularly at Charleston, S. C., where residents brought over his fiancee from Germany and had him married there in grand style.

BORDEAUX, France, Jan. 28.—(AP.)—The British steamer Knebworth struck a reef near Biarritz and is believed breaking up. A life-saving crew from St. Jean de Luce was sent to attempt rescue of the crew.

The crew, consisting of 21 men and two women, took refuge in the forward part of the ship, which broke in two. Early efforts at rescue failed because of the high seas, but it was hoped to take them off in the evening.

but told defense counsel they might renew their motion later without prejudice.

Selection of the jury for the trial of the defendants then proceeded.

WIDOW TO TESTIFY

Through the new testimony, outlined by State Representative M. A. Musmanno, representing Mrs. Sophia Borkowski, widow of the dead man the state hopes to prove that Borkowski did not stab Watts while the officer was trying to arrest him, as Watts testified in the previous trial.

Musmanno said he conducted a personal investigation of the case and learned from Patsy Caruso, one of the Commonwealth witnesses in the previous trial, that Watts' shoulder was cut when he fell into a wood pile while trying to subdue Borkowski in the yard in the rear of his home.

Defense counsel won a change in venue in the case, which was to have been tried in Allegheny County, by appealing to the Supreme Court on the grounds that there was too much feeling against the men in Allegheny County. The court granted the petition and ruled that the trial should be heard here.

LYSTER'S WIFE ABSENT

Lyster's wife, who appeared as a witness in the first trial, will not attend this trial, it was said. She is at home with their son, 3 months old. Lyster is accompanied by his mother, while Watts' parents, also relatives of Slapikas, have also come to hear the case.

The special election will be held February 11.

Mary Garden Asks Age Maligner To Tea for 2

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—(AP.)—The hornet's nest stirred up by Gene Howe, Amarillo (Tex.) editor, when he made some uncomplimentary remarks about Mary Garden's age and her singing some time back, would be turned into tea-for-two if the singer had her way. Mr. Howe was in Chicago yesterday, so was the opera star. Howe said:

"We treat everybody right and we expect to be treated right, too. But I am sorry I brought up Mary's age."

Said Miss Garden:

"Mr. Howe need not fear me. He really didn't mean the things he said. I know he didn't mean them. He could not have meant them. I'd love to have Mr. Howe up for tea."

Lord Byng to Quit London Police Post

LONDON, Jan. 28.—(AP.)—Lord Byng, former Governor-General of Canada, is reported to have recovered sufficiently from his recent illness to permit him to sail for South Africa on January 31, a trip that originally was planned for his health early in January. MALONE TO WED BROOKLYN GIRL

LONDON, Jan. 28.—(INS.)—Dudley Field Malone, noted American divorce lawyer, today filed notice of his intended marriage to Edna Louise Johnson, of Brooklyn.

This will be Malone's third marriage. He was recently divorced from Doris Stevens, of Omaha, Neb., distinguished economist and feminist leader.

Miss Johnson, according to the notice, is 24 years of age. She was born in Minnesota.

Malone said he had known Miss Johnson for some time, but news of the coming marriage came as a complete surprise. The divorce which parted the famous attorney from Miss Stevens was granted by the Paris courts only a few weeks ago.

SALARY BOARD BOOSTS PAYS

The County Salary Board, composed of the County Commissioners and the controller, today increased the salary of George J. Schad, chairman of the Board of Assessment and Revision of Taxes, from $5,000 to $6,500; that of C. J. McBride, secretary of the tax board, from $5,000 to $6,000, and that of the sheriff's attorney from $3,000 to $4,500.

A new position, that of real estate specialist in the sheriff's office, was created, with salary of $6,000.

Commissioner C. C. McGovern voted against all these measures. He offered a resolution to reduce the number of county employes 15 per cent, and to reduce their salaries 15 per cent. Failing to receive a second, the resolution was not put to a vote.

Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong moved that no further changes be made in salaries until July. The motion was carried unanimously.

GOSSER TO QUIT AS MAIL CHIEF

The position of postmaster pays $8,000 annually, and if Mr. Gosser retires his pension will be less than $1,000 a year. The postmaster was in Washington yesterday conferring with Postmaster General Walter F. Brown on the resignation. So far no mention has been made of a successor.

FRANCE SCANS REDS IN ARMY

PARIS, Jan. 28.—(AP.)—Reports in some quarters that Communist cells had been established in the French army have aroused considerable discussion here.

A Nancy dispatch to Le Matin said that "Documents giving a clear impression of organization and solid establishment of Communist cells answering to Moscow in about 40 regiments" of the French army had been discovered by police raids.

The dispatch said that the papers had been found in the home of an alleged Communist, Louis L'Hote, and that they gave details of the Communists and Anti-Militarists' organization in the eastern, northeastern and southeastern districts of the army.

Charges of inciting soldiers to disobedience in the interests of Anarchist propaganda were preferred against L'Hote on his arrest.

Weather Conditions.

The low that was centered over the upper Mississippi valley moved eastward, and is now centered over North Carolina and Virginia. The Canadian low is centered over Eastern Ontario. These disturbances are causing cloudy weather over the country from Indiana eastward and from Canada to the gulf, and rain over the Coast states and East Gulf states. They have also caused a rise in temperature over the eastern states. High barometer centered over the eastern slope of the Rockies and over Idaho, is dominating the weather over the West, resulting in clear skies generally and moderately cool weather. There was a slight fall in temperature over the central valleys and a more pronounced fall over North Dakota and the Canadian Northwest.

River Conditions.

The rivers are stationary. Stages at Franklin to 3.3 feet; Lock No. 7, 11.3; Pittsburgh, 10.5; Dam No. 4, 9.9; Lock No. 6, 9.0; Dam No. 9, 8.8, and Lock No. 12, 4.3. The dams are down, but will be raised today.

EIGHT HURT, SIX SAVED AT FIRE

Eight firemen were injured, five women clerks and a store owner were rescued and four persons were forced to flee from their apartments as five stores were damaged in a fire that caused $300,000 loss in the heart of the business section of New Kensington last night.

Fire companies from several communities were summoned to aid New Kensington firemen extinguish the blaze. The loss was estimated by Fire Chief Edwin Clawson, of New Kensington.

The fire started in the basement of the H. R. Wainwright Company Department Store, 940-50 Fourth avenue, gaining headway from two resultant explosions. Other establishments damaged were Siegal's Clothing Store, 932 Fourth avenue; People's Department Store, 936 Fourth avenue; Pickwick's Millinery, 952 Fourth avenue, and Koessler Brothers' Jewelry Store, 958 Fourth avenue.

Other firemen injured were: Assistant Fire Chief Patrick Cashell, overcome by smoke; Capt. William Hackett, cuts of the hand from flying glass; Fred Frederick, contusions of the hip; Tad Bawman, lacerations, and Charles Johnson and John Moats, overcome by smoke.

Firemen on their arrival rushed upstairs in the Wainwright Building where they rescued the Misses Reeder and McKinley; Mrs. Black, Mrs. Montgomery and Mrs. Walters, clerks, and H. M. Bell.

Mrs. Margaret Downey and her son, Robert, 17, and her daughter, Mrs. Frank Finnell, with the latter's baby, Robert, 1, occupants of the apartment over Koessler Brothers' store, fled from their apartment.

Most of the damage entailed was to the Wainright store, which was owned by H. M. Bell and H. M. Yingling.

WICKERSHAM DISCLOSES MOVE

Borah Intimates He Will Ask Senate Investigation Of Enforcement Units

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—(AP.)—The prospect of Senate investigation of prohibition enforcement agencies thrust itself forward at the Capitol today as drys and anti-prohibitionists in Congress went after each other with renewed fury.

The prohibition discussion also spread to other parts of the city, with organizations supporting and opposing the Eighteenth Amendment issuing statements and Chairman Wickersham, of the Hoover Law Enforcement Commission, disclosing he would place the Dyer proposal to amend the law to permit 2.75 per cent beer before the commission.

BORAH WATCHED

Further it became known that Senator Borah, (Rep.), of Idaho, a leader of the drys, had been advised that the Justice Department was watching his office. Borah laughingly said he was not interested, as there was nothing there of interest.

The Idahoan, however, indicated he would ask the Senate Judiciary Committee to investigate the enforcement agencies as a result of the disagreement between himself and Assistant Secretary Lowman, of the treasury, over the qualifications of John F. C. Herbert as dry administrator for Montana and Idaho. Senator Wheeler, (Dem.), of Montana, has taken a position similar to Borah's, regarding Herbert.

Borah has said if what he has been told about Herbert is true the man should be in the penitentiary instead of holding a federal office.

In the House, Representative Celler (Dem.), of New York, described as "silly" a statement by Attorney General Mitchell that he was opposed to those in the prohibition service who drank or did not believe in prohibition. The New Yorker said such a view would have prevented Woodrow Wilson and Warren G. Harding from serving and now would bar such men as Newton D. Baker and Alfred E. Smith.

BILL AMENDED

The House Expenditures Committee amended the Williamson bill to require all prohibition agents except the director and the assistant director to stand a competitive civil service examination. This measure would provide for the transfer of prohibition enforcement unit from the Treasury to the Justice Department.

The Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church issued a statement indorsing Mr. Mitchell's view on prohibition officers.

"An attitude of hostility to the prohibition law," it said, "is a fatal handicap to an official charged with duties connected with enforcement."

CROWDS JEER COMMUNISTS

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(INS.)—The Communist demonstration at the funeral of Steve Katovis, striking "Red" who was slain by a police bullet, faded to a light pink spectacle today when leaders abandoned their plans to defy police orders as to the line of march.

As the hearse bearing the red-draped casket for Katovis moved along a prescribed route, anti-radical feeling burst forth among the spectators.

The marchers were greeted with jeers and hisses as they tramped toward the Long Island cemetery where Katovis will be buried.

In one case, a husky citizen with a war veteran's button, called upon several near him. They dashed into the streets and tore down the flaming placards carried aloft by the marchers.

Radio Sermons on Sunday Illegal, Mackey Claims

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 28.—(INS.)—"The 1794 blue laws are out of date and out of harmony with the present-day needs of this city's population.

"I won't retrace a single footstep in the direction I have taken.

"The broadcasting of sermons is against the strict letter of the blue laws.

"In fact, if the laws were observed, it would be against the law to cook meals on Sunday."

Thus Mayor Harry A. Mackey today answered his clergymen critics who have taken him to task for his advocacy of more liberal Sunday laws for Philadelphia.

Still un-cowed by the verbal shafts of resentful clergymen, Mackey asserted he was more determined than ever in favor of nullifying the Sunday blue laws that have made "Philadelphia notorious throughout the country."

"What do these ministers want us to do for amusement on Sunday?" he asked.

"Are poor people to be condemned forever in this city to stay in their homes and pull down the shades on the only day of rest they ever get during the week?"

The barrage of criticism from the pulpit and ministerial associations branded the mayor with a lack of "dignity" and with "holding up to scorn the God-fearing citizenry of the city."

"Ridiculous," the Mayor said in dismissing their charges.

"Is Washington unfit to live in and are the God-fearing citizens there humiliated because its officials permit an open Sunday such as I want for Philadelphia?

"These gentlemen," he said, referring to the ministers, "are accusing President Hoover of living in a wicked city and sponsoring its wickedness.

"Are Sunday baseball players outlaws, and should the President fail to speak to them when he opens the baseball season in the capital?" he asked.

The Mayor started the verbal fireworks last Sunday when, during an address before the Young Men's Beneficial Association here, he made a plea foa liberal Sunday.

Double Life Admitted In Hutchinson Balm Suit

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 28.—(AP.)—Mrs. Mattie Dean Hutchinson, Chicago society woman, was ready today to take the witness stand in her $300,000 alienation of affections suit against Mrs. Edith P. Taylor, who has admitted that she lived for 20 years with Samuel C. Hutchinson, Chicago film distributor.

Mrs. Taylor, the first witness in the case, testified yesterday that Hutchinson maintained an apartment for her for years. She said her real name was Edith Patterson and that she met the film distributor in Valparaiso, Ind. in 1908.

Mrs. Taylor testified that she did not know Hutchinson was married until she found a school report card of his legitimate son in a book he had given her.

She said she previously had begged him to marry her, but that he insisted he could not do so. Mrs. Taylor testified that she had borne Hutchinson two children, one of whom is 18. The other is dead.

Hutchinson sobbed as Mrs. Taylor told her story.

Attorneys for Mrs. Hutchinson at the outset of the trial, asserted that Mrs. Hutchinson lived for 20 years in ignorance of her husband's double life, and that his offices in London and Hollywood gave him excuses for frequent absences from home. She did not learn of the deception until 1928, they said.

Mrs. Hutchinson is a sister-in-law of A. C. Roebuck, of the Chicago mail order house, Sears, Roebuck & Co., and was decorated by King Albert of Belgium for her war-time services overseas.

EVIDENCE LOST IN 'JAIL BABY' PROSECUTION

Counsel for Mother-to-Be Demands 'Home Brew' Be Produced by Dry Spy

By WOOSTER TAYLOR,
Universal Service

SALINA, Cal., Jan. 28.—What became of the evidence in the Sue Brown case?

Why is there no court record of either its storage or destruction? In addition to getting 20 per cent of the fine, do dry agents also drink the home-brew they seize in such cases?

These questions were vainly asked to Monterey officials in the light of the latest disclosures in the celebrated "jail baby" case. They will be repeated with more weight by Mrs. Brown's attorneys in Superior Court of Monterey County if her appeal for a new trial is granted.

DEMANDS EVIDENCE

Former Judge J. A. Bardin, her senior volunteer counsel, stated that he will insist that the three cases of beer taken by D. M. Laughery in his nocturnal raid on the little home be actually produced in court.

On the heels of Mrs. Brown's statement that the discredited informer, Wesley Owen Patton, had never set foot in her home until a week after he claimed to have bought beer, comes an illuminating statement by a neighbor of a petty raid upon his place.

He is Harry Stanley, Monterey plumber, the man that first brought "Prowling Patton" to the Brown home.

"A little while later," said Stanley, "probably on information furnished by Patton, agents raided my home. They found three bottles of beer and carried them away. The next morning, when I opened my front door, there were the three bottles lying on the lawn, empty. Looks like the agents couldn't wait five minutes before drinking the evidence."

CORROBORATES WOMAN

Stanley told how he happened to know Patton and introduce him to the Browns. He corroborated in a measure Mrs. Brown's assertion that the visit occurred December 21 not on December 15, as Patton swore under oath in his affidavit of sale.

It was pointed out today by T. A. Harrington, junior counsel for Mrs. Brown, that the sworn affirmation of Patton regarding the actual date of which he claimed to have bought liquor in the Brown home is vague and ambiguous.

"The implication in the 'Miller' affiavit is that he bought whisky and beer on that date," Harrington said, "but you will notice that he avoids a definite statement to that effect. It convinces me that Mrs. Brown is right in saying that he had never entered their home on that date. As Judge Bardin says, we will have good cause for criminal action for perjury against Patton if this is established."

WILKINS RACES WITH WINTER

By CAPT. SIR HUBERT WILKINS
Commander of the Wilkins Hearst Antarctic Expedition.

DECEPTION ISLAND, Antarctica, Jan. 28.—(Via KUP and S. S. Melville.)—We will make two or three more exploration flights if successful in our race against the rapid approach of unfavorable weather conditions.

Our research vessel, the William Scoresby, with our Lockheed monoplane on floats, will leave here today for some point west of Peter Island. That will be our hopping-off point for the flights, the weather permitting.

We hope to fly from the edge of the pack ice to new land far south of us. If we can locate suitable ice for skis, we will equip the plane with these and fly over Ross Sea.

All our plans are overshadowed and conditioned by the weather question. Foolhardy attempts against bad weather at this late season are not warranted. In case of accident, rescue would be difficult.

Our trip will last about three weeks.

Public Works Director Edward G. Lang has presented to Council an ordinance appropriating $50,000 to various construction accounts in the Bureau of Water.

Lang estimated $22,600 would be needed for water mains requested by property owners; $22,200 for mains to be laid while street improvements are in progress; $2,000 for water meters, and $3,200 for hauling costs.

The director has recommended to Council that the city accept from the Ready Mixed Concrete Company an offer of $5,000 as yearly rental of the music hall in the old Exposition Building.

Lang has asked Council for instructions on the proposed widening of Bellefield avenue from Fifth avenue and Forbes street by using land donated by the University of Pittsburgh, Mellon Institute and the Board of Public Education.

Strolling Cuckoo Causes Man's Arrest

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—(AP.)—At exactly 4 p. m., January 27, 1930, something inside Godfrey Smith went cuckoo.

Smith had no actual need for a cuckoo clock for he gets up when he feels like it. He could not, however, resist the timekeeper he saw in the Commonwealth Edison Company store, so he stuck it under his coat.

As he strolled languidly toward the exit it was just 4 p. m. The clock beneath the coat went "cuck-oo, cuck-oo, cuck-oo, cuck-oo."

A policeman arrested him, for it is against the law to take cuckoo clocks.

CENSUS OFFICE LEASED HERE

Supervisors J. E. Routley, George Metzgar and A. D. Levy, of Allegheny County, today announced that permanent offices for the taking of the fifteenth census will be opened about February 1. Office space and storage quarters have been tentatively procured in the downtown business section, the announcement of the location of which will be made immediately upon approval of the leases by the Bureau of the Census at Washington.

Census enumerators will be paid 4 cents per name for each individual and 30 cents for each farm enumerated. Enumerators, according to the estimates of the supervisors, should average $5 to $8 per day and, if energetic, should earn as high as $10 per day. Census enumerators having accepted appointment and having taken the oath of office must perform their duties and cannot be released. Refusal or neglect to perform their work, once having accepted appointment, will render the delinquent enumerators liable to criminal prosecution under the federal statutes.

VERONA, P. R. R. NEAR TERMS

An agreement between the Pennsylvania Railroad Company and Verona concerning changes in right of way in that borough because of the contemplated construction of the Allegheny River boulevard, is anticipated within a few days, borough councilmen were informed at a meeting held last night. A previous agreement drawn by the railroad was rejected.

Council instructed Solicitor Fred Shoemaker to write County Engineer Norman F. Brown outlining the extent the borough would co-operate in the boulevard movement.

Council last night also considered the advisability of either vacating West Railroad avenue from the borough line to Sheridan avenue or the widening of an alley between that avenue and Penn street in connection with the boulevard improvement.

The projected boulevard, if built, will extend from Washington boulevard, Pittsburgh, along the Allegheny River to Verona.

Irish Destitute Fight Gift of Library

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Jan. 28.—(AP.)—Farmers of Leitrim County showed hostility after the county council decided to accept the offer of the Carnegie trust of $4,800 towards establishment of a public library.

There is great destitution in parts of the county, and previously the council had decided that the necessaries of life were needed more than books. It later decided to reconsider the matter.

Nevertheless there remained strong opposition to the grant and a section of the members said the people were in such a state of destitution and misery in Leitrim that literature was not troubling them. When the members adjourned after the vote, there were exciting scenes in the stretes of Carrick-on-Shannon and a crowd of farmers threatened violence to some of the councilors.

USE OF PLANTS IN WAR STUDIED

Twenty-three officers of the Corps of Engineers, United States Army, representing five procurement districts, opened a series of conferences here yesterday to determine how the major industries of the Pittsburgh district could come to the aid of the National government in event of an emergency. Sessions are being held in the Keenan Building.

Lt. Col. Jarvis J. Baim, district engineer in Pittsburgh, is supervising the meetings which will extend throughout the week. Friday night in the Keystone Athletic Club, the engineers will watch the test of two Pittsburgh inventions—the submarine escape lock and the batteryless telephone.

Sessions will be held daily at 9 a. m. Thursday night the engineers will be the guests at a dinner in the University Club, arranged by Dean E. A. Holbrook, of the University of Pittsburgh, who, with other Pittsburgh men, has been appointed to the advisory board for this procurement district by Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of engineers, United States Army. During the week inspection trips will be made to the various industrial plants.

MAGISTRATES' LENIENCY HIT

Council today asked Mayor Kline to instruct police magistrates to co-operate in breaking up gangs of youths who break into the South Side Market House and steal money and merchandise.

Harry R. Zoller, chairman of Tenants of South Side Market, advised Council that his organization and police had brought about the arrest of a number of the youths, but that they were discharged by Magistrate Thomas D. Jones, of Morals Court.

The hearing in the case was set for Saturday, the busiest day in the week for the market tenants, so that none was able to appear. Zoller said one of the prisoners was a son of a city employe, but Zoller declined to reveal his name.

Zoller also complained of looters that steal from tenants and annoy customers, but when they are arrested are discharged at South Side Police Station by Magistrate John J. Sweeney.

MAN DROWNED IN BRIDGE LEAP

An unidentified man climbed over the guard rail of the Smithfield Street Bridge shortly before noon today and dropped int. the Monongahela River. River police were dragging for his body this afternoon.

OREGON forbids use of hard tires on public highways. No automobile, truck, trailer or semi-trailer weighing more than 1,800 pounds may use Oregon roads, unless fully equipped with pneumatic tires. If that highway-preserving idea should spread to other states, it would mean a difference to tire makers.

PERHAPS some one will find a cheap substitute for rubber in heavy duty tires. And cement or other hard roads will be made to endure any sort of wear, safely.

THE best news for civilization today travels from Asia, across Europe, over the Atlantic and across this continent, coming from Kemal's headquarters, at Angora. For the first time in history, Turkish children are to be protected from exploitation through child labor.

PROTECTION, at first, will be limited to children employed in mines, and at other hard labor. But the start is made. The Turkish republic, you will notice, acted more promptly than this republic. Child labor prevailed here for 100 years after 1776, and many states, even now, might learn from Kemal Pasha.

by
RUTH WASHBURN JORDAN
Home Economics Expert

IT'S color everywhere—from fragile imported china in Fifth Avenue shops to the gay cups and saucers at the "five and ten!" And best of all, the salespeople tell you, these lovely new tints are easy to care for.

As one of the foremost experts on china, F. J. Cuthbertson, President of the famous New York china house of Wm. H. Plummer Co., said:

"We have always warned against harsh strong soaps for the new china. But Lux is perfectly safe!"

Saves colors—saves hands

The gentle, bland Lux suds that modern homemakers everywhere have adopted to save the beauty of fine things save, too, the delicate colors of these new dishes.

If ordinary, coarse soaps dull the beauty of your dishes, think what they do to your hands! And red, rough dishpan hands are so unnecessary.

Washing dishes the modern way in bubbling, sparkling Lux gives the hands real beauty care—keeps them smooth and white as the hands of leisure.

Start today to give your hands and your dishes this modern care. It's so wonderfully inexpensive. Lux for all your dishes costs less than 1¢ a day.

PAT REID JOINS EIELSON HUNT

NOME, Alaska, Jan 28.—(INS.)—Capt. T. M. (Pat) Reid and Edward Young today were to attempt a flight to the wreckage of the Eielson plane 90 miles southeast of North Cape, Siberia, to aid in the hunt for the bodies of Carl Eielson and Earl Borland, Arctic fliers who are thought to have died in the crash.

Searchers yesterday dug through deep drifts that all but hid the smashed plane, but no trace of the bodies was found.

Pilots Joe Crosson and Harold Gillam, who discovered the plane Saturday, flew to the scene yesterday with four men who dug and prodded the drifts in their quest for the bodies.

Crosson and Gillam, in their report filed from the ice-bound schooner Nanuk, declared they were certain the plane was the one flown by Eielson while he was ferrying the crew and cargo of the Nanuk to shore.

The two fliers believe both occupants of the plane were hurled to their deaths when the plane struck.

Spat With Wife Over Night Out Proves Fatal

Shortly after a spat with his wife, Frank Grebosky, 34, of 240 Greenfield street, Chalfant Borough, followed her to the home of his mother, 126 Greenfield street, where he died suddenly, the coroner reported.

Grebosky and his wife had argued as to whether he was to go out last night. Deputy Coroner W. M. Jackson reported. The wife left the house. Soon afterward, Grebosky became ill. Donning his bathrobe, he also went to his mother's home and asked that a physician be summoned. He died before the doctor arrived. An autopsy revealed indigestion as the cause of death.

Ask Your Big Sister About Chickie, She KNOWS!

MT. LEBANON'S BAN REMAINS

Mt. Lebanon citizens addressed township commissioners for several hours last night relative to whether the board should rezone 241 feet of Washington road to permit the erection of appartment buildings. At the end of the verbal volley, the commissioners voted unanimously not to permit the change.

A crowd estimated at 600 persons stormed the commissioners room in the Washington school and it was found necessary for the board to adjourn to the school auditorium in order to hold the public hearing.

The re-zoning proposal concerned the property of E. H. Shaffer extending from Municipal way to the W. S. Woods property in Washington road. Among the militant citizens were 300 followers of the Civic League of Mt. Lebanon, founded a year ago to oppose encroachment of business houses on residential streets.

Gorgeous blonde hair wins beauty prize

Chrystal's mother tells secret

"I AM so proud of my little daughter's beautiful golden hair that I feel I ought to tell you about it," says Mrs. J. M. Getter, 156 Delaware Ave., Carney's Point, N. J. "She is just a little more than ten, yet she has won any number of beauty contests, the most recent one giving her the title of 'Most Perfect Blonde Child' in our town. "On dozens of occasions utter strangers have begged me to tell them what I use to keep her hair so lovely. It is 33 inches long and the color of spun gold. I just answer 'Blondex'—for that's all I ever used on it, from the very first."

Millions of blondes, children and grown-ups alike, shampoo the Blondex way—because it's the safe way to keep blonde hair beautifully golden. Prevents darkening. Puts new life and sparkle in dull, faded blonde hair. No dyes nor harsh chemicals. Give Blondex a trial—today. At all leading drug and department stores.

Sacred Songs in Finale On KDKA Tonight

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Sun-Telegraph Radio Editor.

EDDIE CANTOR, Blanche Sweet, Mario Chamlee, Harry von Tilzer will be on the air tonight but it is safe to presume that after the wavelengths have died away the minds of thousands will revert to the simple half hour ritual over KDKA at 7:30 which will mark the end of Sacred Songs.

Nothing gaudy, nothing spectacular to indicate the finale of the religious program which undoubtedly has done the most good in radio since its inception four years ago. As quietly as she came to "Broadcast the Tidings Far and Wide," the sponsor of Sacred Songs will tip-toe from the radio stage tonight . . . still unknown, still desirous that her identity never be revealed.

CROWN OF JEWELS

Tonight's Sacred Song concert is a crown of jewels scintillatingly beautiful as the life of the Sponsor itself. As in the past she has chosen the songs. Many favorites will be found in the list, many inspirational, many comforting . . . but who won't have a tear in his eye when the singers conclude with "God Be With You Till We Meet Again" and "Blessed Be the Tie That Binds?"

For while the Sponsor has remained incognito she has actually lived in the hearts of thousands of shutins, aged, as well as the general run of listeners. Her personality, projected by beautiful songs and beautiful thoughts, has pervaded Sacred Songs since the beginning and people have come to feel that they know her.

GOING SOUTH

But she must go away. And Sacred Songs must end—for the time being, anyway. Perhaps they will be renewed when the Sponsor returns from her delayed rest. Into the South this beautiful soul will go to mix with the birds, the flowers, the trees in an attempt to regain her health, impaired by too arduous concern in the welfare of others.

While she is away, the time regularly occupied by Sacred Songs will be replaced with a religious feature to be known as "The Evening Altar," conducted by Dr. Carl Wallace Petty and choir. The first of this series will be given next Tuesday night.

We Now Present

In his concert tonight, Mario Chamlee will dedicate the singing of "Santa Lucia" to his buddies of the Seventy-seventh Division, who knew him as "Ruddy."

R. C. Hitchcock, inventor of the radio electric organ, will speak on "Synthetic Music" at the meeting of Radio Engineers tonight at 8 o'clock in Carnegie Tech.

ORIGIN OF FAMOUS SONG

"Ave Maria," one of the selections on the Eveready Hour tonight, was composed by Schubert one day when he went on an excursion into the country. Walking down a wooden lane, he suddenly took a comb from his pocket, stretched over it a piece of tissue paper and skillfully reproduced a tune which he had been humming. Friends were delighted with the melody which later became his famous "Ave Maria."

WHO PAYS ARTISTS?

Elsie Brokin, Youngstown: On big programs over the New York networks, who pays the artists? Who pays the most for programs? ANS. (1) The program sponsor pays the artists. Price for time on the air does not include talent. (2) A publisher spends $54,000 a month; a radio concern is next at $50,000 every month. Sponsors of a cigaret program pay $45,000.

W. W. Sharp, of 1818 South Wilton Place, Los Angeles, has picked up WJAS nine times, one time getting the Paul Whiteman concert from Pittsburgh when it originated in Hollywood on the Columbia network.

TODAY'S TID BIT:

J. K. writes that a prominent KayDee announcer dedicated the "Old Hickory March" to "Stonewall" Jackson when President Andrew Jackson should have received the honor.

TIMES CHANGE

An English moleskin drape valued at $200 which was the pride and glory of old WJAS now hangs inconspicuously in the announcers' booth at the new place of business.

GRANTED WRIT FOR BABY

Seeking the custody of his infant son, Raymond J. Daugherty, 1314 Arkansas avenue, Dormont, procured a writ of habeas corpus in Common Pleas Court directing the child's grandparents, Frederick B. and Effie Cassell, 200 Hazel Drive, Mt. Lebanon, to produce it Thursday at the hearing on the writ.

Daugherty recited that he married Mary Elizabeth Cassell April 25, 1928, at Cumberland, Md., that they had one child, Frederick E. Daugherty, now 13 months old, and that the wife procured a divorce in Nevada December 15 last and is remarried and living in Baltimore, Md.

The child is living with his grandparents and is not receiving the care and attention he should have, according to the belief expressed by Daugherty, who stated he is informed his former wife does not intend to take personal charge of their son. Daugherty alleged the grandparents refused to permit him to see his son and asked that custody be awarded him.

3 INJURED IN 3 BLVD. CRASHES

Three men were hurt this morning in three accidents on the new Saw Mill Run boulevard, near Bausman street extension.

Charles Klaski, 23, of 25 Woodrow avenue, Edgewood, suffered a broken right arm when his machine struck the automobile of Henry Kammermier, 21, of 2037 Westmont avenue, parked on the edge of the roadway, according to police. Klaski was treated at the South Side Hospital.

William D. Keller, of 2911 Glendale avenue, was cut and bruised when his car skidded into a ditch. When he had obtained help and workmen were removing the machine, the automobile of Lawrence O. Secord, of 500 Fortham street, approached and struck a tow line, police reported. John Bishoff, 23, of 1813 Fairlee street, riding in Secord's car, was cut and bruised.

Popular Exponent Of Cake Walk Is Dead

GREENSBURG, Pa., Jan. 28.—William (Billy) Newman, 65, well-known Negro and one of the original "cake walk" exponents in Westmoreland County, died at the County Home here following an illness of several weeks.

Newman won considerable renown over the county for his artistic steps in old-fashioned dancing.

VOTE CONTEST HEARING HELD

A decision is to be handed down later by Judges Thomas J. Ford and Harry H. Rowand on a petition to vacate the appointment of Isaac Hall, Negro, to be judge of elections in the Second District of the Fifth Ward. Hall's appointment having been asked the day after the burial of Mrs. Mary Feldman, who had been elected judge.

Her husband, Harry Feldman, is a city assessor and precinct leader for the Kline forces and stated to the court yesterday that, following the Jewish custom, he remained indoors for a week after his wife's funeral, while his political opponents stole a march on him. Hall was appointed on a petition presented by Attorney Ralph H. Smith, who had been secretary of the Malone for mayor committee.

Mate Drunk 2,600 Times in Decade, Wife Charges

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—(INS.)—Fred H. Booth was drunk 2,600 times in the 10 years of his married life, Mrs. Louise Taylor Booth, daughter of the wealthy head of the Taylor trunks firm, told Judge Thomas J. Lynch here in seeking a divorce.

Her husband is a wealthy lumberman of Ottawa, Canada.

"We were married in 1919 in Chicago," Mrs. Booth testified. "We were separated in 1928. My husband was intoxicated five days a week for 10 years. Half the time I never knew where he was."

Judge Lynch ordered a decree drawn up.

Again?
A book full of dictation, and she must go home; what can she tell her employer? One more girl who hasn't heard of Midol. In misery at least one day of every month, and a tiny tablet now banishes such pain in five to seven minutes! Not a narcotic, mind; nothing that has the slightest effect on the natural process peculiar to women. Midol acts directly on the organs themselves, avoids the painful part—the part that is not natural. You may have tried other things for relief at such a time, but ask about Midol; purse-size metal case is fifty cents.*

* Midol's comfort is not confined to any certain days or age. It relieves at any time of life. Its ease is felt immediately in cases of nervous headache, backache, cramping, hot flashes and all febrile pain peculiar to women.

Foiled by Moderation!

THE HEARTLESS SHADOW that threatens the modern figure

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*

By refraining from over-indulgence, if you would maintain the modern figure of fashion

Avoid the snags along the common-sense path to fitness and fashion. Don't let over-indulgence deprive you of the tantalizing contour of the modern figure. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. Eat healthfully but not immoderately—when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, reach for a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence if you would maintain the graceful, modern figure with its captivating curves.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

"Coming events cast their shadows before"

"It's toasted"

*Be Moderate! . . . Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

EMERSON'S SON DIES AT 85

CONCORD, Mass., Jan. 28.—(AP.)—Dr. Edward Waldo Emerson, son of Ralph Waldo Emerson and last surviving child of the great philosopher, died yesterday. Dr. Emerson, who was 85 years old, had been a practicing physician in Concord, but in his later years gained note in the arts of painting and writing. He also became his father's literary executor.

Dr. Emerson was close to his father in the declining years of the sage of Concord's life. As a physician he attended him when pneumonia took his life in April, 1882, and scattered through Dr. Emerson's utterances were many intimate observations on the personality of the great New England transcendentalist.

Dr. Emerson was graduated at Harvard in 1866 and at the medical school in 1874. He practiced medicine almost exclusively until the death of Eliot Cabot called him to the work of editing his father's works.

He is survived by his son, Raymond Emerson, who lives here, by seven grandchildren, and numerous nephews, most of whom are in the Forbes family. His sister, Mrs. William Allen Forbes, died last November. Among his nephews is William Cameron Forbes, former governor general of the Philippines.

Cuticura Healed White Blisters Over Baby's Head, Face and Body.

"Baby's trouble started with an irritation causing him to cry. A red rash broke out which formed into little white blisters. They kept getting worse until they were all over his head, face and body. They itched, causing baby to scratch, and scratching caused eruptions. His clothing seemed to aggravate him. He was very cross and fretful and would lie awake at night.

"We were advised to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment so purchased some, and after using one cake of Soap and one box of Ointment he was healed." (Signed) Mrs. Clarence Hetzler, Pittsville, Pa., Oct. 3, '29.

DAILY ROUGHAGE IS AN ESSENTIAL IN ANY DIET

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Is Effective Relief for Constipation. Also Adds Iron to the Blood

Do you suffer from constipation? Are you one of those who have tried one "vest pocket cure" after another and still have no sense of permanent relief? If so, this is big news to you! Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is natural, effective relief for both temporary and recurring constipation. It is the original—and today is included in the diets of millions of people who formerly suffered from constipation.

When roughage is missing from food, constipation is the consequence. The soft foods we eat today seldom include enough roughage. The simple necessity, then, is to see to it that sufficient roughage is included in our food.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is the bulk that your system requires.

In addition, it is rich in iron. Scientific research proves that nearly all this iron is absorbed by the system, building red blood and bringing the glorious color of health to the complexion.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is positively guaranteed. Your money will be returned if you are not satisfied. Be sure to include it in reducing diets as a preventive for both constipation and anemia.

There are so many ways you can eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN and enjoy it. In any form, it is appetizing. It is delicious with milk or cream. Sprinkle it over cereals and soups and notice the added flavor. Many people soak it in fruit juices. Excellent in cooked foods. Your grocer has Kellogg's ALL-BRAN in the red-and-green package. It is served in hotels, restaurants and dining-cars. Ask for it! Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

THUGS ROUTED BY SCREAMS

Screams that they were being robbed attracted passersby to the grocery of Mr. and Mrs. William H. McShane in 1601 Maplewood avenue, Wilkinsburg, late last night. Two thugs engaged in the holdup escaped with $10 cash.

Refusing the command to hold up their hands when confronted by a masked and armed man, while his companion stood on the outside of the store, Mr. and Mrs. McShane ran into living quarters in the rear, and then upstairs, where they gave the alarm.

McShane, anticipating robbery, had hidden most of the day's receipts, police said.

HOW I BUILT UP STRENGTH

Many people feel that they are taxing their strength to the utmost all of the time. They seem to have no reserve. I felt that way for years, and about twice every year I had to spend a week in bed. Sometimes it was indigestion, twice it was sore throat, and once my kidneys were in trouble, and two or three times I was just worn out.

Doctors helped me out each time. They got me on my feet, but I just dragged around. Finally I determined to get well. First I did what I could at home. I slept with two windows wide open, exercised a little every morning, and drank plenty of water. These helped but I didn't get well.

There wasn't anything very definite the matter. I had what I thought was a little catarrh, but it didn't worry me much. One day I read about World's Tonic for catarrh, and concluded to try it in the hope that I might get relief.

I did, but I also learned so much more about this wonderful medicine that I must tell you. Almost from the first I felt better, and then I kept up my exercise and water drinking. The three of them—World's Tonic, exercise and water—built me right up. I gained a little in weight, but very much in strength and energy. Now for over a year I haven't known an ache or pain, and my strength is a never failing wonder. That is what World's Tonic, the new medicine, has done for me.

World's Tonic is sold by Dow's, May's & Liggett's, Mayflower, and all other good druggists. (A-75)

During 1929, Kroger customers saved the sum of $25,993,983.33. This figure is based on a comparison of the major food items figured at Kroger average prices against the average price for the United States (taken from bulletins issued monthly by the U. S. Department of Labor). This tremendous amount of money is enough to feed every man, woman and child for one solid year in a city the size of Akron, Ohio. (Based on a survey made in 1927 by the U. S. Bureau of Census.)

It would require a train reaching from Buffalo, N. Y., to Cleveland, Ohio, to carry all the meat that was sold in Kroger Meat Shops last year?

RECIPE TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

You Can Make a Better Gray Hair Remedy Than You Can Buy.

Gray, streaked or faded hair is not only unbecoming, but unnecessary.

Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ oz. of glycerine.

These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost, or the druggist will put it up for you. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It is easy to use, does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

4 DISCHARGED IN RUM RAID

Four men arrested in raids made by South Side police yesterday on four houses, in all of which liquor is said to have been found, were discharged by Magistrate John J. Sweeney today because search warrants had not been procured.

The defendants were Frank Belowicz, 34, arrested at 115 South Twelfth street; Andy Halischak, 36, of 1111 Bingham street; Frank Fialk, 35, of 1109 Bingham street, and Louis Slaboseski, 46, of 124 South Twelfth street. Belowicz was charged with visiting, the others with keeping a disorderly house.

WOMAN IN BABY THEFT HELD

Mrs. Mary White, 23, of Chartiers avenue, arrested after she had tried to claim a baby found abandoned in the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Station recently, is suffering from a "baby complex," according to testimony in Morals Court today.

City Detective John Barry testified Mrs. White had given bad checks, totaling $77.82, to downtown stores in the last four months for baby clothes.

Miss Nancy Pushee, of the Children's Service Bureau, testified that Mrs. White had taken half a dozen babies from different institutions in the last six months.

"She would keep them for a week or two and then the institution would have to take them back," Miss Pushee said.

Mrs. White had been in the Allegheny General Hospital after the child which she had claimed two weeks ago was taken from her and returned to Roselia Foundling Asylum.

Magistrate Thomas D. Jones ordered the woman held over for a mental examination.

Employe of Hotel Found Unconscious

Found unconscious on the platform of Fourth Avenue Station of the Pennsylvania Railroad this morning, Anthony Shalla, 21, of 1707 Edwards way, was removed to Allegheny General Hospital, where it was stated, he was suffering from ptomaine poisoning. Shalla is employed in William Penn Hotel.

J. Fred Lissfelt

Oscar Helfenbein, a prominent local pianist, gave a recital in the auditorium of the Y. M. and W. H. A. last evening for a fair-sized audience. The program was of grand proportions, masterfully built, and ranged from the sturdiest classics to the impressionists of today.

It has been several years since we have heard Helfenbein in so ambitious a performance. In that time he has built up a fine technique, but seems to have overlooked entirely the poetry of his playing. His Bach has dignity, but his Mozart lacks limpidity and the finer line of a music so near to bel canto. There was a shockingly unromantic spirit about the "Carnival," and no humor, but the Brahms "Intermezzo" was richer in tone. With the Liszt, the pianist was again more at home.

"Smilin' Through," Pitt Offering, Gives Those Witnessing It Heart Tug

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"SMILIN' THROUGH," romantic comedy drama, was presented by the George Sharp Players in the Pitt last night. It is a good play. It was well played. That is stated at the beginning so that those of no inclination to read further may stop here with the assurance that what has been stated so briefly can be elaborated and detailed, and will be to some extent, but cannot be made to mean more.

This little play is one that long ago revealed its power to get right into the heart and it again made its potency in that direction evident last night. We dare say that few in the audience who are regular attendants at the offerings of the resident company in the Pitt recall any that has been more satisfactory and more appealing. It would be strange if it were otherwise since "Smilin' Through" served Jane Cowl as one of her most durable plays.

Miss King In Lead

In the Pitt Edith King plays the Jane Cowl role of the little Irish lass who loves as her heart inspires and toils as her foster uncle directs. Also the role of another little Irish lass sister of her mother, the lass who had been her foster uncle's betrothed and whose tragic death on what was to have been her wedding day so embittered him that he almost made a mess of the heart affairs of his foster niece.

Miss King plays with grace and understanding, her facility in characterization being heightened in this instance by skillful management of Hibernian dialect. If ye think the Colleens have all vanished from the stage, sure and ye'll just have to have a look at Miss King and — whisper — ye'll learn otherwise.

Old Friends Quarrel

Harland Tucker portrays John Carteret, whose bride expires in his arms, young John and old John, living to quarrel and bicker with his old friend, the doctor, and to believe in the message she said she would bring when "true eyes and blue eyes came smilin' through," a prophesy fulfilled to straighten out another love affair 50 years later.

Robert Fiske is the doctor, giving a master workman's stint in his measure of the character. Numerous minor roles also are capably played and the production is staged most excellently.

Again—it is a good play. It is well played.

KING'S SPEECH HEARD IN METROTONE NEWS

King George V, of Great Britain, is heard delivering his speech in the House of Lords at the opening of the naval conference of the world powers, in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News. For the first time in history, a speech delivered in England was photographed in New York and will be handed down to posterity through the miracle of the sound motion picture.

Through an arrangement made with M. H. Aylesworth, of the National Broadcasting Company, sound recording instruments of the Fox-Hearst Corporation were stationed in the New York studio of the N. B. C. and the sound recording camera was hooked up with the radio wires leading to the amphifier. As the words left the royal lips in London, they traveled as sound waves across the Atlantic to New York and telephone wires brought the words into the studio. Here they were picked up by the sound recording apparatus of the motion picture camera which turned the sound waves into light waves, which were photographed as they passed before the sensitized film. Thus the King's speech, which was eventually lost in the ether, was permanently recorded on film.

The pictures in connection with the speech show the interior of the broadcasting station with Mr. Aylesworth and others conducting this remarkable demonstration. The recording of the speech is of the highest order and the words that the King uttered may be heard in the theater probably more clearly than they were in the vast room in the House of Lords where the King spoke.

Bert Lytell in "Brothers" Proves That Heredity Is Overcome by Air of Slums

By GEORGE SEIBEL

WHAT started out like a debate on Heredity and Environment at the Nixon Theater last night, wound up like a romance by Wilkie Collins. "Brothers," the drama in which Bert Lytell appears in person, is one of those dual identity plays in which substitution and sacrifice furnish the mainsprings of the plot. The author, Herbert Ashton, Jr., has made a nicely dovetailed and almost plausible melodrama in which realism lends credibility to the wildest flights of imagination.

George Seibel

There is a prologue in which three doctors, of whom William Ingersoll is one, act as the Three Fates by disposing of a pair of twins whose paternity is unknown. The one is given to a sailor's wife on the water front; the other is adopted by a rich and childless judge. The one has everything against him; the other enjoys every possible advantage wealth and love can give.

The three acts that follow appear to prove that the debate is not yet settled. All that the three amateur fates have accomplished is to promote a few murders, initiate one victim into the snow habit, and hoodwink the judge and his wife.

But they have also given Bert Lytell an opportunity to make some very quick and remarkable changes from the one brother to the other.

Ingenious Stage Plan

By means of a recess in which the one brother plays a piano, and a telephone booth into which the other brother goes to, ring up these lightning changes are worked in very ingenious fashion. Yet they are startling enough, though we know when the one brother goes off that he is going to reappear as the other twin.

But aside from this trick business, Bert Lytell shows he is an actor of sincerity and power. As the slum brother, who is really a noble fellow, he is able to reveal his nobility behind his common exterior, while as the swell brother who is really a derelict he manages to exhibit his sordid qualities under his cultured veneer. It is a very good piece of acting, without which the play would verge upon wild travesty.

Plays with this dual identity plot, from the "Comedy of Errors" to "A Tale of Two Cities," have always depended upon rapid action to make the imposture appear likely. And so there is plenty of movement in "Brothers," especially in the act laid in Olly Joe's den, where "they have prohibition, but it's a secret." For that matter they have prohibition in the judge's home, too—whereby we know the scene is laid in America.

It All Ends Well

In spite of several shootings and a general tendency on the part of all the underworld to collect blackmail from all the swells, everything ends well. The worthy brother gets the girl, charmingly interpreted by Grace Menken, and the unworthy brother does his bit in his own fashion to discourage the dope traffic.

But what turn would fate have taken if that old Pittsburgh favorite, William Ingersoll, had not helped fate find her way? Ingersoll does a fine bit of work in the drama, with a surprise for the audience that nobody since Wilkie Collins would have put over. Playwright Ashton is a weaver of plots that are all wool and a yard wide.

And what turn would fate have taken if there hadn't been blind "Peeler" to guide the unlucky brother? This "old son-of-a-gun," as the slum brother affectionately calls him, is the master of everybody's fate, it seems. And yet he was clever enough to sell one of his five pencils while his charge lay in jail.

In other words, this play is "A Celebrated Case," "The Maister of Ballantrae," "The Corsican Brothers," "The Masquerader," and a few other similar fairy tales all bunched in one and neatly trimmed with modern furbelows to illustrate the famous debate on Heredity and Environment. A large cast, in which Matt Briggs and Ashley Cooper do specially effective work, assist in the working out of the thesis. And when the curtain drops the debate is still on. For if they were twins, they both had the same heredity. And if a bad environment turns out nature's noblemen, while luxury breeds vermin, why clean up the slums?

As entertainment "Brothers" is capital—but as a sociological experiment it doesn't pan out.

Charles Farrell is the boy of "Sunny Side Up," and El Brendel is the comic.

BERT LYTELL REPLIES TO FAN QUESTIONS

Bert Lytell, celebrated star of the stage and screen, who is appearing in the Nixon this week in his newest legitimate drama, "Brothers," is conducting a Question Box for readers of the Sun-Telegraph during his sojourn in Pittsburgh. The first of his answers to inquiries received appear below. Through this Question Box Mr. Lytell will endeavor to answer all inquiries that concern stage and screen matters. These questions should be addressed to him in care of the Sun-Telegraph. Answers will be published in the daily issue up to and on February 3. No questions received later than Saturday will be answered.

Bert Lytell

Martha Applewhite—Purely a publicity stunt concerning the engagement of Clara Bow and Harry Richman. The Duncan Sisters' latest talkie is "It's a Great Life," with Laurence Gray. Write them at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studios, Culver City, Cal. Viola Dana is now in vaudeville. Constance Talmadge is temporarily out of pictures.

A. M. W.—Yes, Charles Rogers is his real name and he's a mighty fine actor. I am not sure whether or not he's engaged, but at present he is paying close attention to June Collyer. The real name of Richard Dix is Richard Brimmer. He used to be in stock in Los Angeles before the movies grabbed him. Am not sure whether he's really engaged to Maxime Glass, the U. S. C. co-ed.

Belle Marchineti—William Haines is his real name, and "Navy Blues" is his latest talkie, with Anita Page, J. C. Nugent and Karl Dane. I will make some talkies this summer with "The Lone Wolf's Farewell" as one. Will be very glad to see you and your party after the matinee.

Mildred Vance—I like the stage because it gives me the opportunity to come into close contact with the audience. I also like the screen, for through it I am able to reach so many that I couldn't possibly reach through the stage. Don't go on the stage, as it's overcrowded and the rewards are very few. Will make some talkies this summer.

Vernon Roberts—I tell the world I would have given anything to play in a talkie of "The Right of Way," as I classify it as my best picture. But now, with the dialogue version, I like very much to see John Barrymore play the part, as he is one of America's greatest actors.

Russell C. Niggi—David Rollins played the part of the son in "The Air Circus" and not Buddy Rogers. The latter was in "Wings," and what a picture! Rollins is 20 years old and claims Kansas City as his home. Sue Carol is married to Nick Stuart and back in her home town, Chicago, they call her Evelyn Lederer.

Helen Fischer—That was Jean Arthur as Janie in "The Saturday Night Kid," with Clara Bow, Leone Lane and Jean Harlow were Pearl and Hazel respectively. Write them all at the Paramount-Famous-Lasky Studios, Hollywood, Cal.

Billy Sarrnia—Oh! Migosh! I am Irish and was born in New York City. I prefer the stage as I was brought up on it since the age of 5. I played at the Alcazar Theater in San Francisco in stock. My last talkie was "On Trial," with Lois Wilson, Rich

In Dressing Rooms of Prima Donnas

New light on immortal artists of the Opera comes from Elise Freisinger, their costumer. She tells intimately about them through Mary Lauton, whose Schumann-Heink delighted the world.

"AIDA" was about to be sung by the Metropolitan Opera Company. A prima donna, assigned to the rôle of priestess, raged against the loose robe her nervous costumer provided for her and cried out: "I will have it tight—if I can't show my figure I won't go on!"

It is one of hundreds of intimate stories which now come to you about temperamental opera stars.

In February Good Housekeeping begins Stars & Scissors, the story of Elise Freisinger, who costumed Patti, Bernhardt, Caruso, Duse, Pavlowa, Mrs. Fiske, the Barrymores, and many other stage celebrities. It will be talked about everywhere. Be the first to read it.

Gamma in "The Fool of the Family."

MARGARET KENNEDY writes another fascinating novel about the amazing Sanger family. It has all the charm and audacity of "The Constant Nymph." It is called "The Fool of the Family."

CONINGSBY DAWSON tells of Chiquita, a fascinating Basque dancer, who could have been a star in the movies, and the pet of a king, but chose instead a modest way to romance and contentment, any of us can find. One of many good stories in this issue.

DR. ALFRED ADLER says—"Mother Comes First"

Dr. Alfred Adler, famous Viennese psychologist, now speaking to overflowing audiences in this country, tells through Lola Jean Simpson how mothers can train their children to happy, well-adjusted lives.

'BLOSSOM TIME' AGAIN AND THEY SAY IT'S THE FAREWELL

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"Blossom Time," which has been blooming perennially, lo these many years, amid the charming foliage of Franz Schubert music and the care-worn, or time-worn scenery of the Messrs. Shubert, again has broken into flower on the Alvin stage. It is here on its "farewell" tour and its cast includes a number of faces familiar to some of its other visits here.

Is there anyone who has not witnessed the romantic story of the composer, Herr Schubert, which this musical play presents? Is there anyone who has not felt the dream spell of the Schubert melodies? Is there anyone who has not laughed at the round, rosy and thirsty court jeweler, Mr. Kranz? We wonder.

For many, of us, Old Man Repetition—like the proverbial thief in the night—has taken something from "Blossom Time" that can never be replaced. And though the melodies linger on, their effectiveness, as associated with play-acting, is gone. Like old wine that has been uncorked too long, the production has lost its sparkle.

Knight MacGregor appears as Schubert in the current presentation and has a baritone voice of strength. Genevieve Naegele, who should know her heroine by now, retains the charm of voice and manner that marked her previous appearances here. And the little, funny and rotund Robert Lee Allen is as suspicious as ever as Jeweler Kranz. Other players include Herbert Lyle, a romantic looking fellow, who sings quite a lot, and Mary Maher and Dorothy Pinero.

Well, we take this opportunity to say goodby to the Herr Schubert of the Messrs. Shubert. But then, knowing these boys' weakness for "farewell" tours, maybe we'd better just make it "auf wiederschen."

Bert Lytell Replies To Fan Questions

ard Tucker, Pauline Frederick, Jason Robard and little Vondall Darr. I will make two talkies this summer for Warner Brothers. Of all the pictures I've played, I rank "The Right of Way" my best.

RUTH CHATTERTON AS 'THE LAUGHING LADY' GOOD IN PENN

Thanks to Alfred Sutro, who is a dramatist, and Ruth Chatterton, who is an actress, "The Laughing Lady," in the Penn, is worth seeing and hearing. When we remember that Sutro is almost a great dramatist, and that Miss Chatterton is almost a great actress, it is easy to realize that this picture ought to be superior to the average run of those rushed on the market to turn sobs and giggles into cash.

It is a society comedy with a salty satirical flavor. The heroine is smirched by scandal and her big financier of a husband gets a divorce largely because she has the unfortunate habit of laughing when she ought to be serious.

When the Laughing Lady finds she is ostracised and her child has been taken away she conceives the audacious idea of ensnaring the lawyer who crucified her in court. So she gets herself invited to the same week-end house-party. And every one who knows the ways of audacious heroines also knows that manly lawyers of whom Clive Brook is a sturdy example, cannot resist such blandishments. Clive is soon helping Ruth to sandwiches and dancing exclusively with her.

More newspaper scandal, while Clive Brook is succumbing to the Laughing Lady, and their engagement is announced at the last fadeout. It is a well-made picture, with some good character work by Hubert Druce, and only some inaudible dialogue to mar the general effect.

This week's master of ceremonies is Dave Schooler, who sings, clowns, dances and plays the piano in acceptable fashion. The best part of the stage production, called "Eton Days," is Eddie Miller's singing of "Ol' Man River," "Tiptoe Through the Tulips," and "Turn on the Heat." Castleman and Mack also do some humorous acrobatic dancing; Marguerite and Gill work in some slapstick Spanish; Dick Leibert pulls taffy out of his organ, and Elias Breeskin has a fine overture of Liszt melodies. The Chester Hale Girls are last seen pulling the oars in a great Eton boat race, and are sure to land as winners.

FIVE COASTERS KILLED IN SIX DAYS

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

WE HAVE flagpole sitters and marathon dancers. If we're not listening to hog-callers we're watching rocking-chair champions. Bicycle riders and gum chewers ride and chew incessantly. If it's not one contest it's another.

These are the complaints of Robert W. Schmertz, spokesman of the Pittsburgh Architectural Club, and Mr. Schmertz tells about another contest—a non-stop sketching contest, safe and sane, to be sure.

There are those in the Architectural Club who would sketch 24 hours each day, and the most unstoppable sketcher is Mr. E. B. Lee. Mr. Schmertz concedes that Mr. Lee is far ahead. In the Lee files there are 14 books of sketches—Pittsburgh in this mood, Pittsburgh in that mood. Mr. Schmertz, who evidently spies on Mr. Lee's activities, reports that the architect sketches from train windows, under bridges, over bridges, in heavy fogs, on Grandview avenue, in Strawberry way—anywhere. We get the impression that Mr. Lee would pause at his table between the first and second chop to sketch the second, but this impression is unfair to Mr. Lee. He does not like chops.

For years the telegraph companies have been giving you this advice:

"Dont write—telegraph."

And now the Pittsburgh Postoffice Department, ballyhooing the air mail, sends out this suggestion:

"Don't telegraph—write."

SOME jokes are so bad that they're good. The Marx Brothers, for three examples, have authored a thousand puns and wisecracks which fall in that classification. Mr. Ike Mervis, the pharmacist, runs them a close second.

Mr. Mervis says to you, "Have you heard the four-wheel-brake song?" and you say, "No, I haven't heard the four-wheel-brake song," and Mr. Mervis immediately lends his deep bass to "For We'll Break the News to Mother."

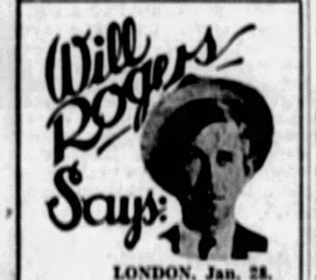
The weakness of John McGreevey, the showman, runs to riddles. Mr. McGreevey's favorite is one which was used to dedicate the first vaudeville theater in the United States. Mr. McGreevey flips his derby to the side of his head, concludes a nifty tap and asks, "What has feathers, two legs and barks?"

You admit with becoming modesty that you don't know.

"A rooster," Mr. McGreevey reveals.

"Why, a rooster doesn't bark," you point out.

"I know," Mr. McGreevey agrees. "I just put that in to make it hard."



LONDON, Jan. 28.

HAD lunch yesterday in their rooms with Mr. and Mrs. Morrow and elder daughter, Elizabeth, and Mr. and Mrs. Stimson were there, and he told me you go back home, Will, and announce that one of America's muchly advertised talents has been overestimated. We are not the masters of bunk. He had just come fr a five-hour siege with the whole mess of 'em. Morrow is funny. He pulled a good one. We are getting along fine. Beautiful compliments, but nobody has mentioned the word navy. I look for that word to come up some day and when it does I just want to see what the conference will do. England ordered work stopped on two cruisers, the Surrey and Northumberland. These are the same two MacDonald ordered work stopped on last July when the papers were all full of it, and Mr. Hoover saw him two and raised him one by stopping work on three of ours.

If Mr. Hoover sees this raise, I hope he does it with the same ships, too. They will keep on stopping work on these two till the first thing you know they will be late building 'em, but all sinking aside, our boys seem very optimistic and feel that something will be accomplished. They are all crazy about Joe Robinson. Mr. Hoover can feel proud of his lads, but, boy, there is some tough babies here. Talk about taking boats away from them, there is delegations here that wouldn't give up an oar to see eternal salvation.

Yours,
WILL.

LOVEJOY

Norries Advises Lovejoy to Dismiss Hired Girl

CHAPTER XVIII.

THE most dangerous state that a young married woman can be in is to be out of love with her husband.

And for the last couple of weeks Lovejoy had felt that she and Tom were almost enemies.

They had made up their quarrels. But the memory of the quarrels lingered on like the taste of something bitter in her mouth.

She had hired Hilda, when she knew that they couldn't afford a housemaid. Tom had said nothing much about it, after Hilda came to work. But he hadn't been half so friendly and pleasant around the house since that time.

Some of the bloom and some of the freshness had been rubbed from their love for each other.

Perhaps that was why Lovejoy was so glad to see Steve Oglebay that night.

Perhaps that was why he never had seemed so good-looking and so attractive to her as when he came walking into the little living-room and took off his coat before the fire.

"I brought you a box of candy, Lovejoy," he said, smiling at her with his blue eyes. "Mint paste."

They both laughed as he pulled a big white box from one of the pockets of the overcoat. In the old days he had always brought her mint paste when he came to see her.

"That's my weakness still," she said gaily, taking it from him.

They sat down on the little couch that was drawn up before the fire.

"Speaking of weaknesses," she went on after a pause, "what do you see in that Mont girl you've been running around with, Steve Oglebay? Not that it's any of my business, but I can't imagine your falling for her. She's not your type."

Steve said nothing.

"She's not your type, is she?" Lovejoy said again, prodding him. She knew that Steve was still in love with her and suddenly she wanted to hear him say so.

"You don't like her as well as you used to like me, do you?" she persisted. "Do you, Steve?"

He was scowling down into the fire. "No," he answered sullenly, as if he did not want to answer.

Then, in that same unwilling sullen way, he raised his head and looked at her.

"What do you ask me things like that for?" he said. "Do you want to hear me tell you that I care for you now just as much as I did 14 or 15 months ago?"

Lovejoy shivered. . . . She had read somewhere that the only adventure there is for women is making a man fall in love with them. Well, it was true, wasn't it?

"Yes. I want to hear you say it,' she answered steadily.

Then she drew back, knowing that he was going to touch her. He put his hands around her wrists, and the close hard pressure of his fingers thrilled her.

"I came here tonight, Lovejoy," he said, "so that I could see you here with your husband and your baby. I had an idea that maybe that would pound it into my head for good that you're married and a mother—and that the best thing I could do would be to get you off my mind."

Lovejoy pulled her hands away and stood up.

"Come and see the baby, Steve," she said, "I forgot to show him to you."

But before they were out of the room a sharp tapping came on the pane of one of the front windows.

"Let me in!" Aline Alderson's voice came faintly to them through the glass.

As she left the Aldersons into the house Lovejoy wondered how long they had been standing there on the front porch. She hoped they hadn't seen Steve holding her by the wrists and drawing her close to him.

"We really are good neighbors, Al and I," Aline cried as she came into the warm cozy little room. "We've brought you a great big shaker of cocktails all iced and ready to drink! Aren't we nice?"

Chattering and laughing she followed Lovejoy out to the bedroom to take off her fur-collared cape.

"I saw you, Sinful!" she whispered excitedly as soon as Lovejoy had closed the door. "I saw you and Steve Oglebay holding hands and don't you think I didn't!—Well, now, I think that was all right."

She leaned close to the mirror and outlined her full lips with paste rouge.

"All married people get a little thrill on the side every now and then—and it does them good," she said in a matter-of-fact voice. "It keeps them young."

Lovejoy stared hard at her. She had been married for six years and she ought to know what she was talking about, she said to herself.

But Tom—would Tom do the sort of thing that she, herself, had done that night? Would he make love to the girls who worked downtown where he worked if he had the chance? Would he get his thrills on the side?—the thrills that kept you young, according to Aline.

Tom and Norrie didn't walk into the house until half-past seven that night.

"We blew a tire, and I had to change it." Tom explained when he came in and they all roared with laughter.

"That's pretty good," Allen Alderson told him with great cheerfulness and a wink. "Let's have a look at your mitts, Tom. They ought to be all mud and grease, it seems to me."

Grinning his young friendly grin, Tom held out a pair of perfectly clean hands.

"I keep a pair of old gloves in the car," he said. But everybody pretended not to believe him, although he showed them mud on his trousers and a splash of mud on his coatsleeve.

"You'll have to think up a better story than that, Tom!" Aline said to him. "We suspect you and Norrie of parking the car along some dark side-street! That's what we suspect you of—"

"How terrible of you to say such a thing!" Norrie Shane interrupted her indignantly.

Norrie didn't understand "kidding" of this sort. Her face was a dull shamed red and her eyes were bright as if she might burst into tears at any moment.

"I can't stand that Alderson woman!" she said to Lovejoy when the two of them were in Lovejoy's room. "And I hate her to call me 'Norrie.' I wish she wouldn't."

Norrie did not have a very good time that night.

To begin with, she had come in a long-sleeved afternoon dress and she said that she felt out of place with Lovejoy and Aline, who were bare of arms and bare of neck and breast.

Then she didn't drink and she never had played poker in her life.

"If you don't mind I'll just slip out and go home in a cab," she said to Lovejoy when Aline suggested a poker game and

'FILTHY' CARS PROTESTED TO COUNCIL

Condition of Trolleys Here Held Menace to Health In Complaint to City.

W. D. Grimes, president of the Public Welfare Association, has forwarded to Council a letter complaining of the "filthy" and overcrowded condition of street cars in which he rode recently.

"This is the usual method of operation and protest against such crowding is useless as the people of Pittsburgh seem to like it," the letter stated.

"My real objection is to the unclean, filthy and indecent conditions on the interiors of these cars. The odor was obnoxious. The dirty straps and seats, woodwork, etc., have not been cleaned or scrubbed for years, probably never. Dust, dirt, grease and filth covered the entire car and it is a crime to permit decent people to ride in the midst of such a menace to health," Grimes declared.

He was amused at a placard placed in the cars by the department of health promoting the use of toxin-antitoxin to prevent diphtheria, he wrote.

Grimes believes the street cars contain germs of many diseases communicable to passengers not immunized.

"If there is a campaign on for the sale of serum, why does the health department not start at the source of such infection and enforce the law by cleaning up the dirty street cars?" the letter inquires.

Council referred the letter to the committee on health and sanitation.

Occupants Unhurt As Auto Overturns

Robert Rosser, of 103 Calhoun avenue, Carrick, his wife and two children escaped uninjured last night when their automobile skidded on the Sawmill Run boulevard, Overbrook, overturned and fell into a ditch. Rosser and his wife crawled through the windows of the car and then extricated their children.

The accident was attributed to the icy condition of the thoroughfare.

THEIR SECOND MARRIAGE

MR. AND MRS. WALTER EVERSON

Mr. and Mrs. Everson, 4802 Penn avenue, after their second marriage to each other. Following a divorce that ended their first marriage, they wed others from whom they've since been divorced.

FLIES TO REACH PARENTS HERE

Traveling by plane and railroad, the Rev. Edward F. Jackson, of Oskaloosa, Ia., covered more than 1,000 miles in a day and night to spend yesterday in Pittsburgh with his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Jackson, of 7025 Edgerton avenue. The occasion was the golden wedding anniversary of the couple.

Yesterday morning Rev. Jackson sang mass in St. Bede's Church, Dallas avenue, as part of the anniversary celebration. Last night his father and mother were feted at an anniversary dinner in their home. Another son and daughter were present, as well as grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

REWED AFTER 10 YEARS

Ten years ago Mr. and Mrs. Walter Everson were divorced.

The divorced Mrs. Everson soon married another. And Everson followed suit.

Six months ago each was divorced for a second time.

What did they do? They married each other again!

News of the third mariage (the second to each other) was revealed today. They were married last Thursday at Joseph's Hall in Bloomfield. They are living at 4802 Penn avenue. Everson is a city employe.

Great was the celebration at their third wedding. And there were four honor guests—Alderman Luke Sullivan, who, in remarrying the couple, performed his first marriage ceremony; Attorney Louis Little, who obtained for each of them their second divorce; and the two children of the principals by their first marriage.

Planned to Murder Insured Kin, Claim

Dominick and Samuel Consentino, of Imperial street, were in the county jail today, having been arrested late yesterday on charges of surety of the peace. According to Alderman Thomas Flanigan, the men are accused of insuring their sister-in-law for $4,500 and then threatening to kill her. Mrs. Marie Consentino, 35, of Phillips avenue, caused the men's arrest when she complained to city detectives of the alleged plot against her.

Issue Injunctions Against 2 Places

Temporary injunctions were granted by Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker against a saloon at 136 South Twenty-first street, of which Mary Audikaitis was named as proprietor, and a saloon at 165 South Eighteenth street, of which Peter Maker is the alleged proprietor. Pending final hearing March 4 the alleged proprietors and owners of the properties are enjoined from permitting violations of the prohibition law on the two premises.

FATALITIES MOUNT AS 2 DIE

Millvale Boy Victim of Crash With Truck; Hill Accident Fatal to Youth

Sled riding fatalities mounted to five within six days with the deaths last night of two boys, one 11 and the other 19.

Clyde Sleigh, 11, of 66 Friday street, Millvale, was killed when his sled struck a truck driven by Albert Carbamore, of 642 Seigert street, according to a morgue report. The accident occurred near the boy's home. Sleigh's head was crushed.

Coasting into the side of an automobile driven, police said, by David Brown, 22, of 361 Soho street, Clifford Montgomery, 19, a Negro, of 2538 Wadsworth street, was killed and his three companions escaped uninjured. Brown was operating his automobile in Wadsworth street when the sled crashed into it.

CHICAGO, Jan. 28

From overseas comes these two news items:

Doc. Thomas Hennessy, of the British Medical Council, demands that his government prohibit chewing gum. He declares it is becoming "a thoroughly dangerous habit." I hate to disagree with the doctor, but chewing gum is not dangerous; its what one does with it afterwards that makes it risky.

For instance, if you happen to sit down where some one has "parked" his gum, that puts one's trousers in jeopardy and in the cleaners. Also, if you step on a piece of second-hand gum, just as you're starting to dance with your sweetheart, that might ruin your evening, too.

But if Dr. Hennessy thinks that the habit of chewing gum is unhealthy—he should try wrestling or debating with Will Rogers, who owes his success to both chewing gum and "chewing the rag."

In London, at fashionable parties, they are eating flowers for desert. At a recent gathering, hothouse daffodils were served. These were dipped in champagne by the guests.

It was followed by white lilacs candied in honey and chrysanthemums fried in sweetened oil. If it "catches on" in America, you might hear your wife say, "Honey, there's nothing to eat in the house, run down and get a bunch of violets and a bottle of catsup," or—"The Smiths are coming to dinner tonight; get two dozen American beauties and please tell the florist to remove the thorns, for I still have a lacerated throat from the last time."

The Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's question: Will disarmament by all nations bring about world peace?

A. WILLIAM GATTO, East End, assistant manager: "I believe it will. If the powers of the world destroy their machines of destruction and cease to construct any more they will soon find that money formerly spent on war materials will do more good in other places When this becomes obvious, war will be a thing of the past."

A. W. Gatto

JOSEPHINE POLANDRI, East End, clerk: "Disarmament would have to change human nature if it would cause peace. When men had little in the way of weapons there were wars and feuds. If a man wants to fight he will do it either with his fist or gun. The same is true of the various countries. Lack of guns and warships won't bring world peace."

Miss Polandri

HELEN M'GOWAN, Knoxville, clerk: "Too many people employed by our government and other governments to teach and know the science of war are dependent on war for a living. These people have much to say in governmental affairs and will not condemn war when it comes down to facts. If disarmament becomes a reality these military men will still preach war."

Miss McGowan

EDITH BAKEWELL, Mt. Washington, stenographer: "Suppose all the countries would destroy all war materials, then what? Right away each nation would arrange certain industries in such a way that war materials could be produced very quickly. A false move by one nation would throw the whole world back into another war."

Miss Bakewell

MURRAY B. SCHUTZER, East End, radio engineer: "You can't change the human mind by such an easy method. Once the world disarms the individual nations will become uneasy, fearing that another nation may be producing guns on the quiet. Right there we will have the first seeds of another war. A lion's a lion even if his teeth are missing."

M. B. Schutzer

RUTH THOMPSON, Wilkinsburg, beautician: "War is one of the oldest and, until recently, one of the most honorable professions. It is therefore impossible to wipe it out so quickly. Disarmament is a step forward, but as long as man knows how to make explosives, battleships and subs there will always be danger of another war."

BEAR ESCAPES SHOW; CAUGHT

Although this may have the earmarks of a publicity stunt, police at the East End Station this morning stated that it really happened, and that for a time it had its serious side.

At 3 o'clock, while a few stragglers were viewing the freaks on display at the pet show which opened last night in Motor Square Garden, a big black bear ran from its cage and chased a little donkey through a rear door. Attendants gave chase into Trade alley and from there into Baum boulevard.

Police at the East End station were called and Capt. Nuncie Marino, Lieut. Frank Shine and squad sped to the Garden, armed with riot guns. Police and Garden attendants converged about the same time in Whitfield street where the bear was sniffing around in the snow.

Several of the officers voted to make it a hunting trip and obtain a bearskin for the new police station, but listened to the pleadings of attendants, who took the animals back to the show. Milton D. Crandall, promoter of the show, promised police that he would keep the bear tied up hereafter.

Crandall said the bear escaped while its cage was being cleaned.

DEPUTIES WORK YEAR ILLEGALLY

Four deputy constables attached to Alderman John J. Verona's office in the Third Ward have been working for a year without legal authority, it developed in Quarter Sessions Court today.

The disclosure came at a hearing held by Judge Harry H. Rowand on an application for the appointment of Daniel Verona, a nephew of the alderman, as an additional deputy constable.

James Lavola, who was appointed constable a year ago when Constable Samuel Harris died, revealed that he had presumed that Harris' four deputies were entitled to continue to serve without further court procedure and that they had done so.

BAIL FREES TRIO PENDING RULE ON PLEA

Further Delay Balks Prison Terms for Men Convicted In Case May 28, 1928

Jacob Sokol, Morris Blaustein and Isaac Stein, each sentenced yesterday by Federal Judge R. M. Gibson to serve six months in jail for conspiring to violate the national prohibition law, were granted permission to file appeals with the United States Circuit Court for a new trial. Bonds, pending action of the higher court, were set at $4,000 each. Sokol was also fined $400 on a previous conviction for transporting liquor.

This was one of three cases in Federal court in which the district attorney's office, prior to the administration of Louis E. Graham as United States attorney, was reported under investigation by the attorney general's office, for delay in final disposition.

DELAY EXPLAINED

The records of the case show that it was out of the jurisdiction of the district attorney until last Tuesday, when Judge Gibson handed down an opinion refusing the motion of Sokol, Blaustein and Stein for a new trial. Immediately following the decision the three men were notified to appear in court Monday for sentence.

Court records show that Sokol was convicted December 13, 1927, for transporting moonshine, and his motion for a new trial was refused January 25, 1928, and the sentence was postponed pending the outcome of a conspiracy case, at which Sokol and the other two men were convicted May 28, 1928. They petitioned for a new trial and the court's opinion refusing it was not handed down until last week. The court explained the delay was due to temporary disappearance of certain papers in the case, which were later recovered.

CHECK PENDING CASES

United States Attorney Louis E. Graham; his predecessor, Attorney John D. Meyer; Prohibition Administrator John D. Pennington, and others attached to the District Court, said they have no knowledge of any investigation under way by the attorney general's office relative to any long pending cases.

Both Prosecutor Graham and Pennington said that their respective offices are conducting prospective checks on pending cases for final disposition. The case of C. W. Bott, reported as one of the long pending cases, will be disposed of Monday, it was said at the office of the district attorney.

Smart Gowns Seen at Shows

YESTERDAY was eventful enough to belong to the months of early winter with weddings of more than ordinary interest taking place here at home and in the East, with plans for the coming month, and with theater parties last night.

Before I tell you about two weddings of note and an engagement and a benefit I want to talk about some of the folks I saw at the theaters last night. Even though we all know of so many folks who are out of town the theaters still attract men and women of the social world.

Just as I was leaving the Nixon last night where Bert Lytell is playing in an exciting play "Brothers" I caught a glimpse of Mrs. T. Clifton Jenkins wrapped in a metal cloth coat furred in fox, with her daughter Elizabeth, waiting for her car. And Elizabeth wore old blue brocaded velvet.

Talking with friends in the lobby between acts were the William A. Duckhams. Petite Mrs. Duckham looked stunning in a scarlet transparent velvet dress fashioned with a brief train. And she wore scarlet satin slippers and a wrap of gold cloth with a collar of white fox.

I caught a glimpse of blonde Mrs. Elizabeth Reed Brown wearing an interesting gown of dotted black net with the full skirt draped to fall in many long points at the hem-line. And she wore a mink coat.

And I believe I saw the Gordon Kings. Mrs. T. M. Jones III was at the play as usual on first nights, wearing a gown of black lace sweeping the floor, and a black velvet wrap with white collar.

With her and Mrs. Jones were Mrs. Herbert A. May in black net and Mrs. Felix Snowden in black chiffon.

And I also saw Mrs. Theodore Smith in a flowered chiffon gown.

"Blossom Time" at the Alvin attracted many folks even though it has been played so many times. The smartly gowned and furred audience enjoyed the story and the music of this old favorite.

BECAUSE of mourning in the bride's family, the wedding yesterday of Eleanor Chalfant, daughter of Mrs. Henry Chalfant of Ridge avenue, North side, and John C[illegible]man Cooper, Jr., son of the John Crosman Coopers of Baltimore, was attended by only members of the two families and by a few intimate friends.

The wedding took place in the Chalfants' Ridge avenue home at 6 o'clock in the afternoon before an improvised altar of palms and ferns with calla lilies in the stately old hall of the home.

The bride wore a gown of white velvet in the princess mode with a court train and a veil of tulle arranged with a cap of gold lace. And she carried calla lilies. Mrs. Clarence Wheelwright, of Baltimore, the former Martha Chalfant, who was her sister's matron of honor, wore an interesting gown of green transparent velvet with a long, uneven hem line, and a cloche of the same material. Mary Blair, cousin of the bride, and Barbara Cooper, sister of the bridegroom, as junior bridesmaids, appeared in French frocks developed in pink taffeta, and carried baskets of spring flowers in yellow shades.

Joseph Cooper was his brother's best man. And there were no ushers.

A small reception followed the wedding. After a European trip the Coopers will be at home March 1 in the Warrington Apartments, in Baltimore.

ONE of the most important philanthropies of Pittsburgh society women is the Women's Exchange, where foodstuffs and needlework of deserving women are sold to the public.

Now that the season with its heavy social duties and obligations is over, the board of directors has time to sponsor a special sale, to open the first day of next month and continue until the middle of February.

A sale of needlework of all kinds will be featured under the direction of Mrs. Harry Darlington, Jr.

NOW that buds are through bowing for a while there seems to be time in the lull of social life to announce betrothals, and the latest one I know about is that of Louise Graff, daughter of Mrs. Henry Graff, of Sewickley, to Gifford King Wright, also of Sewickley. And the wedding is to take place some time in March.

MR. AND MRS. STEWART MURRAY, of Northumberland street, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Jean Murray, to Charles Gibbs Johnson, of Pittsburgh, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Johnson, of Norfolk, Va., which took place on Saturday at 5:30 o'clock in the East Liberty Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Dr. S. N. Hutchinson officiated.

MRS. KATHERINE FLOYD HUBBARD, of Center avenue, East End, announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Verna Katherine Hubbard, to Russell Conrad Fey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Fey, also of the East End. Their marriage will take place on Thursday, with a dinner in the Hotel Schenley for members of the two families to follow. After spending the month of February in Bermuda, they will make their home in Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Hubbard, an artist, will leave after the wedding for Florida and Havana where she will finish landscapes started last winter.

A RECEPTION and dance will be given in Webster Hall on Tuesday evening, February 25, by the St. Raphael Social Club in honor of the high school graduates of the school. This evening a card party will be given by the club in St. Raphael's school hall.

BRIDGING THE INTERVAL BETWEEN TEA AND DINNER

—Sketched in Paris—

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Jan. 28.—The sometimes yawning interval between tea and dinner has been bridged by a little coat, for sartorial purposes at least. From the busy business woman to the frothiest society matron, the desire of all is to conserve time. So many begrudge the going-home-to-dress period, which they would prefer to spend with congenial friends in the glamor of the soft lights that dissipate the twilight of even the gloomiest winter afternoon. And therefore we now have the afternoon-evening ensembles that do proud duty from luncheon to supper if necessary, and for the evening if it is not occupied by events requiring a degree of formality, so far as raiment is concerned. Many of these ensembles are of material such as georgette, lace or crepe georgette and are designed on softly flowing lines that lend themselves admirably to the idea of the costume.

PATOU is one of the sponsors of these dual purpose costumes and so we have had a delightful model sketched at his showrooms. It is of heavy black double crepe georgette, the decollete of the frock being hidden beneath the demure little jacket of the same fabric, which is banded at the collar with ermine. Horizontal tucks about four inches in depth trim the sleeves and the edge of the coat. The jacket has a tiny bolero at front and back cut in wide points. The skirt of the model which is called "Diner's Montmartre," to impress an air of informality, is equally long at front and back. This is achieved by the use of circular godets.

THERE is something almost ethereal about the blue combined with silver that draws both admiration and attention from almost any gathering. We noticed this at Ciro's last week when a buzz of approval followed the beautiful wearer of a blue lame frock with silver threads. The high waistline is denoted by a small sash tied with a careless bow at the back. The bodice and hip-yoke are in one piece over which is tied the sash. The neckline is curving at both front and back. Very flaring long panels curving up at the sides form the back of the graceful skirt.

CLUB NOTES

"MOTION pictures are the silent salesmen of the world," Bert Lytell, stage and motion picture star, told the drama department of the Congress at a special luncheon meeting in his honor yesterday. Mr. Lytell, who is appearing at the Nixon this week, reminisced a bit about picture-taking in the Sahara Desert, where the Arabs recognized the film stars, and in Tahiti, where the natives aped them and where the "huts" that the Americans had gone all that way to film were copied after American bungalows. American film stars are enshrined as heroes and heroines in the hearts of English boys and girls, and thus is created a problem for England, Mr. Lytell stated.

GERTRUDE CLARK HARTMAN, contralto, will sing with Kathryn Brose as her accompanist, at the quarterly meeting of the Congress of Clubs Thursday. Elsie Breese Mitchell, chairman of music, will lead assembly singing, with Mrs. Lulu B. Parker at the piano. Mrs. M. R. Moxley, Mrs. D. F. Harrison, Mrs. Henry C. Briedert, Mrs. Robert Cochrane, Mrs. L. L. Hartley, Mrs. Samuel B. Heppenstall, Mrs. Harold M. Irons, Mrs. W. J. McMarlin, Mrs. S. Stingel and Mrs. W. F. Webb will serve on the registration committee.

THE annual budget campaign of the Pittsburgh Young Women's Christian Association closed last night with a grand total of $121,054.14. This amount leaves the budget of $140,000 a little less than $19,000 short, but it is expected the shortage will be reported made up at an extra meeting in International Institute Friday afternoon.

The several hundred workers attended the closing dinner last night in Central Branch, Chatham street. Miss Ida M. Allerton, campaign chairman, made a gracious and graceful speech of thanks; assembly singing was led by Will A. Davis, accompanied by Elizabeth J. Davis, and Miss Hazel Bell Witherow, a Central Branch secretary, contributed whistling solos. The day's reports were led by Mrs. Clinton Fisher's team, with $1,546. Center Avenue Branch was given an ovation for its report of 458 subscriptions, totaling $1,142.76.

AT the book party which the evening department of the Woman's Club Club will give Friday evening, a prize will be offered for the best representation of a book and one for the greatest number of representations guessed. The judges will be J. J. Estabrook, Stanley Kelley and A. W. McGhee. Miss Lucetta Burns and her evening committee will have the affair in charge.

THE Pioneer Women's Organization of Pittsburgh will hold its fifth annual dance at the Rittenhouse tomorrow night as a benefit for the Chalutzos of Palestine.

College Club Tea for Men On Feb. 16

THE College Club is having another innovation in the way of a Sunday afternoon tea February 16 at 4 o'clock. This newest departure has been planned in order that husbands, fathers and men friends of the club members may hear Harold A. Nomer, head master of Shady Side Academy, repeat the talk which he gave at a Friday afternoon meeting in November. His subject will be "American School Boys in Denmark." The tea hostesses will be Miss Emma M. Campbell, Mrs. Dana Z. Eckert, Miss Bertha Steiner, Miss Marie Craighead and Miss Dorothy Seibert.

Other February attractions at the club will be an afternoon of "Movie-ing Through France and Switzerland" which Mrs. Charles S. Shoemaker will give; "Women and Finance," by Miss Elizabeth Hamilton; "Follies of 1929-Broadcast from Station CCP," with Mrs. Edward B. Lee as announcer (that speaks for itself), and "Psychological Devices of Some Modern Novels," by Mrs. Hazel Cole Shupp.

The social committee's special activities include a bridge luncheon for members and friends next Monday and a buffet supper and bridge party for members and their husbands and friends Saturday, February 22. The club's new venture, dancing classes for children, will start Saturday, February 8, with two classes, the first from 10 until 11 o'clock and the second from 11 to 12 o'clock for the older children.

MRS. D. EDWIN MILLER addressed the banquet held last night by the Woman's Club of Steubenville at the Hotel Steuben. Her subject was "Citizens of Tomorrow." Mrs. Elsie Breese Mitchell, soprano, and Frank Kennedy, pianist, furnished the music.

THE Woman's Alliance of the First Unitarian Church will sew tomorrow for the Children's Service Bureau under the direction of Mrs. A. W. Tarbell.

ADDITIONAL CLUB NEWS

UNLIKE the majority of women's clubs, the Woman's Historical Society holds its president's day in midseason. A luncheon yesterday in the Congress of Clubs was this year's observance, honoring the re-elected executive, Mrs. Jay Turner, who was presented by the chairman, Mrs. Joseph H. Barclay. Mrs. Turner called on the several visiting presidents for a word of greeting and was presented with a corsage of orchids and lilies of the valley. Past presidents who were among the guests added their word of felicitation and an enjoyable program was presented. Among those who took part in the program were Mrs. H. J. Kreiling, contralto, accompanied by Mrs. Homer Seifert; Mrs. W. L. Stone, accompanied by Miss Betty Stone, and a trio composed of Mrs. Mildred Hertzler Hissom, violin, Miss Margaret Hertzler, piano, and Miss Ann Hertzler, cello.

The society is to have Miss Cora Coolidge, president of Pennsylvania College for Women, as its speaker on February 10. Her subject will be "Trends in Women's Education."

THE young men at the head of the Nationalist movement in China are making great sacrifices, Dr. William Hung, of the Yenching-Harvard Institute, told the Twentieth Century Club yesterday when he spoke on "The Meaning of Nationalism in China Today." Three major interests occupy the attention of these men, Dr. Hung stated—relationship with foreign powers, internal affairs and famine conditions—and they are determined that China shall no longer be a no-man's land, with her doors open to everyone. The nationalism of today will not be a menace to the world as an aggressive measure, Dr. Hung stated, as it is in the hands of American-trained men, and the principles of government are those of Lincoln. What China asks for is faith in her purpose and indulgence for her faults, he said. He outlined the form of the new government and drew impressive word pictures of conditions in old China.

THE musicale tea given yesterday for its open day by the Colloquium Club was largely attended. It was given in the home of Mrs. Edward C. Chalfant, Sheridan avenue. Miss Marie Chalfant, soprano; William Eisenbeis, violin, and Mrs. Herman L. Grote, accompanist, gave the musical numbers, the program also including a playlet directed by Mrs. Frank N. Speller. The cast included Mrs. Frank B. Patton, Mrs. Clarke M. George, Mrs. John D. Houston and Mrs. Harry E. Leety.

THE Travellers are having their annual drama day this afternoon in the Congress clubhouse, with a playlet by Olivia Kelley and Rita Criste, of "The Puppets," as the chief item of program interest. Frances Schreiner Weber, soprano, and Louise Rheams Matthews, pianist, are providing the musical numbers, and a pantomime, "The Lamp Went Out," is being enacted by Mrs. Frank D. Johnston, Mrs. Charles P. Lang, Mrs. Chad Richards and Mrs. W. J. Montgomery, with Mrs. John Daub reading the story. Tea rounds out the afternoon.

ALICE VAN LEAR CARRICK'S interesting and instructive talk on "Collecting and Auction Experiences" was enjoyed yesterday by the Sewickley Valley Woman's Club. The talk was illustrated with lantern slides, one of which showed an old secretary found in South Africa that had been made in Salem, Mass. Mrs. Carrick was the guest of Miss Catherine Miller over the week-end and was guest of honor at a luncheon given yesterday in the Community Kitchen by Mrs. Chester Van Kleeck and at a tea for which Miss Coral Quay was hostess in her home.

MEMBERS of the Monday Club of Carnegie went to Buenos Aires, studied family and social life in Argentina and visited large estates through the papers which were read at yesterday's meeting. Mrs. W. H. Irving was hostess at the Y. W. C. A., Mrs. George Gow was leader and the papers were given by Mrs. W. H. Staley, Mrs. T. J. George and Mrs. T. E. Marshell. Music for the afternoon consisted of vocal solos by Mrs. Ethel Conrad, accompanied by Mrs. John Bigham.

MARY AGNES HAMILTON, who was elected recently to the English Parliament, is making her second tour in this country and will be heard this week by the Friday Morning Club of the League of Women Voters in Carnegie Music Hall. Mrs. Hamilton, who is considered one of England's best woman speakers, has campaigned several times for Ramsay MacDonald. She is author of the much-discussed critical estimate, "Ramsay MacDonald—Man of the Hour," has written three novels and is also author of "Life of Margaret Bondfield," "Life of Lincoln," which was written for children, and "England's Labor Rulers."

Valerie Raemer of "Whoopee," is wearing the BEAUTY BOB. PROPER CARE keeps her hair in such wonderful condition.

"Hair that fairly sparkles with new life and lustre!"

It's important to have your hair arranged to suit your type. The effect is lost, though, unless your hair is kept soft, lustrous, abundant.

This is easily done. A million busy women and girls know how. They put a little Danderine on the brush each time they arrange their hair. Try Danderine tonight and see how marvelously it cleanses your hair, gives it new life and lustre.

Danderine dissolves the crust of dandruff, soothes, heals the scalp; stimulates the growth of long, silky, abundant hair. It makes the hair easy to manage; holds it in place for hours. Waves "set" with it, look nicer and stay in longer! Five million bottles used a year proves its popular try!

DAILY TRUE STORY

'Nix on Borneo'

Youth Deserts Study of Ministry to Become An Artist

BOB MARTIN was back from the theological school. Not because he had been expelled, but because he just couldn't see himself as an ordained minister. It wasn't in him. Not for all of his Uncle Joshua's millions would he do it.

Bob not only wanted to be an artist—he felt that he just had to be. He had plenty of talent. The lessons he had secretly taken proved that.

Uncle Joshua considered "painting" to be no calling or occupation whatever, merely a frivolous wasting of one's time and energy.

"Now," thought Bob, as he made his way up to his uncle's offices on West Twenty eighth street, "for one grand battle and being formally if not literally kicked out of uncle's offices and fortune."

Joshua Martin devoted much of his money to his own private mission—it was located in Borneo. Joshua, having heard so much about the wild man of Borneo, took it for granted the people were so wild they needed saving. His missions did much good in a medical and sanitary way over there. How many Bornean souls were saved through his money no one knew—if any.

On the glass door in small letters was

"Martin Missions."

Bob entered as one going into a den of lions, because his uncle had already spent much money on him, determined to have him ordained and sent to Borneo to preach and take charge of his mission.

"Hello—hello!" said Uncle Joshua.

"Hello, Uncle!" Bob replied, setting down his bags. "I've come back—"

Back for Good

"I can see that. Look here, I've got to go to a conference for a week and now that you are here you can stay until I get back. I have just advertised for a nurse to go out to my mission and you can meet them and make a tentative agreement with whichever one you think the most practical—no frivolous beauties, but sedate and devout and of middle age—skilled and—well, sincere."

"Yes, sir, but I ought to tell you I've come back for good—it's no use. I am not cut out for the ministry—"

"Hush-hush-hush—no time to argue, of course you'll do as I say—I'll send you back as soon as I return, everything's fixed and—"

"I'm going to be an artist, Uncle Joshua and——"

"Hush—got to catch my train—stay here—I'll take you out of it all when I get back—see that slip—questions on it for you to ask the applicants for that position as trained nurse in Borneo—good-bye for a week," and, as speedily as he talked Joshua Martin breezed out of his office.

Bob flopped into his chair at the desk and scowled. Then he smiled. His uncle was a character, all right, but he couldn't think that his money was going to buy Bob body and soul. Here was a week's respite in which to frame a solid argument against the ministry and for a life of art.

Shortly after his arrival a girl entered.

And such a girl!

Petite, glorious blonde hair, neither skinny nor plump but perfectly curveful. Being artistic—and human—Bob took in these details at a glance.

"Er—Mr. Missions?" the girl asked.

Bob didn't laugh. He guessed the girl had taken the word "Missions" on the door to be his uncle's last name.

"You came about the advertisement?" Bob asked.

"Yes—and I want to know what it is—what sort of—" The girl hesitated.

Bob glanced at the list of questions to be asked.

Bob Blushed

"What previous experience?" he asked. He was thinking of his uncle's warning, "No beauties," and he was also thinking that to be with such a glorious girl as this he would almost go through with it and become a missionary.

"None," said the girl.

"Er—your name?"

"Elsa Carson."

"Fond of children?"

"Why, why, what on earth has that to do with it? Oh, perhaps you mean that you are looking for a sort of mother-love expression."

"Exactly," said Bob, thinking that he preferred the sweetheart expression.

"Any objection to travel?"

"Oh, do I have to go away?"

"Certainly. Borneo."

"Borneo? For background?"

"Certainly, Miss Carson—that's where they are."

"The subjects? I though I would be the subject."

"You will look after the subjects. I suppose you have a smattering of medicine—know first-aid—and could even—er—well, aid in maternity cases?"

Bob's face was red.

"Are you crazy or something?" she gasped. "Or do you expect a sort of—of midwife?"

"That's it exactly—out there in the wilds, my uncle—"

"But what on earth has all this got to do with being model for a picture? Mr. ——" she cried.

"A—a what? We advertised for a trained nurse to go to Borneo to my uncle's private mission and—"

"You advertised for a girl to pose for an artist," the girl snapped. She took a clipping from her bag and handed it to him.

Bob read it.

"My dear," he said, this is East 28th street in the advertisement and we are on West 28th street—same number but a great difference."

The girl looked at the clipping.

"How dumb of me—and I blundered into a place where they want trained nurses and maternity—" She stopped laughing and started for the door.

"I'm glad and don't go, please. I'm an artist myself. Look here—"

He opened his kit.

The girl stared at the pictures and paints and then at Bob.

"What a comedy of errors," she said. "I know you'll think I'm awfully stupid."

"You are awfully beautiful, Miss Carson—do you know that you would make a perfect Psyche—you know the one Psyche at the Pool, where she leans over and sees her reflection?"

"Would I?"

"Absolutely—and look here, my uncle's away for a week, suppose you pose for me—I'll pay you regular rates."

Elsa Carson looked at Bob Martin steadily, until he flushed.

"Honestly, no monkey business, listen——"

She listened while he told her all about himself, about being indebted to his uncle since childhood, about trying to become a minister to please his uncle and his realization that he would never make a sincere minister but might make a good artist.

Elsa Agrees

Elsa agreed to come next day at nine.

She did come. Bob was already there. He had brought draperies for a costume, even tiny gauze wings for the model.

"Here," he said, "is a print of Psyche at the Pool, you get an idea from it—and can see about the draperies—take the little office for a dressing-room."

"It—the—she doesn't wear much," Elsa said, timidly.

"It is art—surely you understand that—no sentiment—just matter-of-fact business," Bob said.

Bob lied about there being no sentiment. Elsa Carson was the first girl who had really made his heart jump around that way. But he had to be cold—strictly business, couldn't get sentimental and frighten her away.

He helped her to pose over the mirror.

"Take it 10 minutes at a time at first. It's a difficult pose," he said.

And then all the desires of years to become a real artist surged in him—for 10 minutes he was all artist. He had the outlines in charcoal when she rested. He mixed his flesh colors. She posed again.

They worked until noon.

By Tuesday they were getting along beautifully. Bob took her to luncheon.

On Wednesday Elsa could see that it was going to be a wonderful piece of work in her estimation.

"Only don't make me look so beautiful," she said, "I'm not half as pretty as that."

"Colors couldn't depict your beauty—if Cupid came now he'd forget the original Psyche and grab you—if I would let him."

"You flatter with words as well as colors," Elsa said, but she didn't seem displeased.

On Friday the figure was nearly finished. By working while there was light he could finish that much and of course he didn't need Elsa for the background.

"I just had to pose, to earn some extra money—but I think I'll try and keep it up," Elsa told him.

"You will have all you can do—and I'll be insanely jealous to think of other artists having you."

"What a thing to say—artists treat their models in a sort of impersonal way, don't they?"

"Not if they are in love with them," Bob said, bravely.

"You—you say that to every girl."

"You are my first model—I never had a girl, a sweetheart—and now you come along and I've fallen in love with you."

Elsa didn't say anything to that. She was resting. She got some water from the cooler and took up her pose again. Neither she nor Bob heard the outer door unlock, nor suspected that Uncle Joshua Martin was in the next room, staring through the crack at the hinge side of the partly opened door.

Uncle Joshua was staring at the half-nude girl, with wide eyes.

"Uncle has been so good to me—father and mother both, he's got his heart set on making me a minister. I think it's wicked to be a minister when you don't feel it—and my art is all I want—I can make a living right now at it—Oh, why haven't I got a lot of money so we can get married and go to France where I can study for a year?"

"Get married?"

"Marry you, dearest—I'm crazy about you—and uncle will think I'm terrible—he won't understand that I love and respect him just the same—"

"He must not spoil your life, dear!"

Psyche became Elsa. She went to Bob. He took her in his arms and kissed her.

"We'll wait—I love you—but I'd be a hindrance now, until you got on your feet—I'll wait for you, Bob. I wish I could tell your uncle something, I'd—"

"You'd what?" asked Uncle Joshua, striding into the room.

"Uncle!" exclaimed Bob.

"If you've been listening I have nothing to tell you," Elsa said.

"What have you to say, young man?"

"I say 'Nix on Borneo' uncle."

He studied the painting, then the girl, then his nephew.

"All right Bob—it is Nix on Borneo—you are an artist, not a minister—go get married and I'll stake both of you to a year in Paris."

"You darling," cried Elsa. "I love you so much I'd even name my first boy 'Joshua'."

Dramatic Talent Asserts Itself in Hour of Stress, Says Fay King

By FAY KING

SOME of the best acting seen in the stage world is when the players are "at liberty."

"At liberty" is their artistic way of saying they are out of work. With a bad season it means that many talented people find their shows closed and must again begin the rounds of the casting offices.

It is at times like this their best histrionic talents are put to the test.

It is easy to act tragedy, when one's show is a big hit. But nothing is so difficult as to act happy, buoyant and cheery when the breaks are bad.

It is only then they are apt to envy those whose work is more steady!

Love's Awakening

A Continuation of Love's Embers

By ADELE GARRISON

Mary Gloats Over Her 'Little Act'

"MARY" Noel said tensely as soon as the apartment door had closed behind us leaving Prince Georges and Princess Olina together. "Why did you do that?"

There was reproach in his voice but there was tenderness as well, and no one, seeing or hearing him, could have mistaken his emotion for anything else but what it was, the poignant fear of a lover that some harm may come to his lady. I looked quickly around, fearing that Philip Veritzen might have come up to the corridor unobserved by us. If he had heard his son's intonations, and seen the look in his eyes, he would have known in an instant that his ambitious plans for the boy were doomed. I distinctly did not wish him to have that knowledge prematurely. But we were practically alone in the corridor, for the man lounging at the far end of it, who I knew was one of Harry Underwood's trusted fellows, was too far away to hear Noel's low tones.

Mary flung up her head defiantly and faced him, all the frivolity gone from her manner.

"You can't guess!" she said. "Then you'd better wait till your insight undergoes a major operation. It sure needs it."

"Mary!" There was incredulous joy in his voice now, and he moved a step toward her. "You can't mean that——"

"You must not wait another second," I interposed firmly. "Your father might come up here, and you know what that would mean. But—everything is all right. I can assure you of that. Come, Mary!"

I took her by the arm and walked her toward the door of our apartment. Noel's fervent low-toned "thank you" followed us, and when we were safely inside our own door I saw that Mary's face was glowing, though her eyes were mutinous with the resentment that Noel's reproach had aroused. She is like a young colt, resenting any touch of restraint, and I am sad sometimes to think how Life inevitably will discipline her.

"Aren't men the limit?" she demanded as we paused in the small hall. "George" imagination jumped so far ahead of the stunt I was pulling that it wasn't even pleasant, while Noel seems to have none at all. 'Mary! Why did you do that?'" She mimicked Noel with startling fidelity. "I think he has a glimmering now, though."

She nodded with a fetching smugness which lessened my irritation against her. But when she asked with apparent innocence "Whoever would have dreamed that Olina was as observant as all that?" I put my hands on her shoulder and gave her an exasperated little shake.

"Don't waste that one on me!" I admonished her with a wry smile. "I know perfectly well that you staged that dance with the mask for the purpose of making Olina remember you and announce her discovery that she had seen you as the masked dancer in the cabaret. If I had known that was what you meant to do——"

"I suppose, you'd have flagged me," she said. "But look here, Auntie Madge! Didn't it work beautifully?" She put her head down and rubbed her cheek against mine. "Georges got the final jolt I wanted him to have—he's 'offen' me for life, though he'll have the devil of a time battling with his chivalry until I think up a perfectly good way of letting him down easy so he'll neither be jilt nor jilted. And Olina had the chance to play up and be noble. Did you see the cock of his eye as he looked at her? He didn't know it, but he was saying: 'There's the dame for my throne room!' What'll you bet that right now they're handing out soulful little glances to each other and telling themselves that American romance stunt isn't all it's cracked up to be. Of course, they won't say it out loud, they're thoroughbreds, but that's what they're thinking, all right, and lil' Mary has done it all. Hear me! I gloat! allee samee. Stalky and Company."

She released me and spun around on her toes while I looked at her in reluctant admiration. After all, she had attained the end she was seeking, though I could not sanction the flaunting of that closed episode in her life by which she had achieved it. But there was no use in chiding her now. Nothing remained for her, as she said, but to keep up the fiction of her attachment to her royal fiance until a good opportunity should arise to sever the bond between them, without damage to either the young prince's chivalry or his pride.

"D'ye mind if I go into your room and take a little nap before dinner?" she asked. "I'm awfully sleepy."

I looked at her closely and saw that beneath her bravado she was near exhaustion. She had driven herself mercilessly in that last encounter, and she was beginning to pay the penalty.

"I think that is a most sensible proposal," I told her, "and I shan't call you for dinner. I'll have a special one sent to your room when you do awaken."

She whirled and took me into a convulsive embrace.

"What an understanding good scout you are, Auntie Madge," she said, then fairly ran for my bedroom, and the little tribute warmed my heart. I had guessed that she would not wish to meet Georges and Olina at dinner, and had planned to save her the ordeal, but I had not expected such instant and exaggerated gratitude.

I turned toward the living-room door, but had not reached it when Harry Underwood's thunderous knock fell upon the outside door. As I opened it to admit him, he spoke quickly, peremptorily.

"Get on your hat and coat while I speak to Lil. I want you to come up on the roof with me. Better rustle some tennis racquets and balls, too."

Butterfly Sells Out!

By WINIFRED BLACK

THE woman with the sable coat is going to move out of the smart apartment tomorrow.

She's been selling her furniture for a week.

The baby grand piano went first.

I don't know what sort of tone the baby grand had, but it was very pretty to see—all lacquered in Chinese red with a gold monogram at each end—oh, too smart for words.

Winifred Black

The dining room set went next—that was Chinese—red lacquer, don't you know, and gold—each chair carved with a different design—not so very easy to sit in those chairs. I should imagine—but to look at—oo-la-la!

After the dining room set—the draperies went.

There was one pair of curtains of soft, moonlight blue satin, all in-set with tiny flashing mirrors and embroidered at the top and bottom in silver—all lilies and roses and butterflies and things—too gorgeous for words.

The three lace table cloths went with the curtains and the heavy Chinese rugs and the carved side-board, and the little ivory altar piece that hung at one end of the room.

The silver candelabra went too, and the ivory ones—and the great silver fruit dish with Venus for the top of the handle—oh, a lovely thing it was. And yesterday she sold her bed—a splendid Venetian affair, carved to look like a swan and covered with a rug of delicate, white baby lamb that must have cost something more than a thousand dollars.

The dressing table went, too, with its triple mirrors, and with it went the top cover of beaten silver with the monogram in blue turquoise—and the little fat cut-glass perfume bottles and the silver powder box—and now they say the woman with the sable coat will have to sell her coat, too, to begin to pay even half her debts.

She feels terribly about it, poor thing.

I've been sorry for the woman in the sable coat for a long time, but somehow I am not so sorry for her now.

You see, nobody ever went to see her except a mysterious man who drove up in a closed limousine—and when the woman in the sable coat went downstairs in the elevator none of the other women who lived in the apartment house ever seemed to see her at all—they looked right over her head and talked to each other very pleasantly.

And the West Indian elevator boy smiled a peculiar smile.

Oh, yes, there was one other visitor who came to see the woman in the sable coat—so they say.

A slender young fellow with hair that shone like black satin, and the very latest in smart clothes for men.

He hasn't been to the apartment for some time either—not since the smash in the market.

They say the Other Man lost a lot in the crash, and he's taken his wife and gone to the country to live for a while—and the woman in the sable coat doesn't know just what to do about it.

Everybody seems so sort of poor now, and grumpy, and anyhow she isn't as young as she used to be and—

Well, maybe she'll go to work now and buy her own clothes. They may not be so fine as she has been wearing, but they'll be her own anyhow. And perhaps, in the little walk-up flat where she will live, she will make some friends and not be so lonesome and forlorn.

Poor thing—I do wonder what she thinks about the whole miserable, stupid business — right now—don't you?

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

The Origin of 'Necking'

PREDICTING the rise and fall of the stock market is a kindergarten game beside foretelling the fluctuations in woman's waistline—the rise and fall of the meridian in feminine dress—these days.

From Empress Josephine's time, when the "waistline" snuggled coyly up almost under the arms, to flapper days, when it dropped almost to the knees, the vagaries of the feminine waistline have kept man guessing and bewildered.

Neither the mercury nor the skyscraper elevators have anything on woman's beltline when it comes to "going up"—or "going down." And, like them, it doesn't remain in any one place very long.

Just as a man has accustomed himself to reaching for a girl's waist around her hips, lo, up goes the meridian—and he has to learn to reach for it, as he does for a strap in the subway.

* * *

Once, in "tubular times," it disappeared altogether; and when a man went to encircle a fair damsel's waist, he didn't know WHERE to tackle her.

And that, alas, is when and how and why the uncouth practice of "NECKING" came into vogue!

I have never SEEN anybody "neck." If there is a cheaper, more vulgar and rowdy word in the English "language," I have never heard it. But, whatever that mysterious pastime, called "necking" may be, there is not a doubt that you can blame it all on the vagaries of woman's waistline! And not on the rumble seat or the younger generation.

* * *

Once, indeed, 'way back in the Gibson-girl days, the feminine waistline was an undulating torturous affair, that went up in the back and down in the front, like a roller coaster. Now, in the new-old princesse fashions, it undulates the other way—up in the front and down in the back.

It is enough to make a man SEASICK!

But the patient, long-suffering male creatures don't complain. They go right on groping for it, blindly, as the novice gropes for the gears of the car.

The younger and more impetuous generation may grab the NECK in their exasperation. But the older and more deliberate lovers still make for the waistline, knowing vaguely that it must be SOMEWHERE.

Oh, well, playing hide-and-seek with the waistline is an amusing game, and probably just one more way of keeping a man guessing!

And, the newest waistline is so grotesquely obvious, that NO man could possibly mistake a girl's neck for her waist! It may be the doom of "necking." For which let us thank heaven—and the fashion makers!

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Wednesday, January 29

THE prevailing planetary configurations operating on this day point to every propitious and progressive state, with all things advancing and expanding under benignant forces. There may be promotions, honors or other tokens of esteem from those in places of position and authority. This preferment is possible in employment as well as in personal relations; in either there may be change of a decided advantage, as all spells success and prosperity.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year of success, achievement, advancement and fulfilled ambitions, both business and private. It is probable that there will be honors, preferment of assistance from persons in places of power and influence. Change of a desirable nature seems imminent.

A child born on this day will be excellently endowed with many graces, and substantial talents making for success and prosperity in life. It may reach high position, assisted to honors and recognition by those in authority.

How to Keep Well

The Rest Cure in Dementia Praecox

IT IS very sad to see a young person, who has been well and strong, normal and cheerful in his mental processes, suddenly develop some unusual and disturbing symtoms. The things which used to make him happy may seem now to bore and even irritate him. He may develop "brain storms" when he will break furniture, swear and act like a demon.

DR. COPELAND

The mental diseases of youth are grouped under the general term "Dementia Praecox." This condition rarely attacks one past 25 years of age. It is associated with the development period of life.

There is a weakness of the mental processes and perverted ideas. At times there may be great mental excitement, and at others periods of depression and sadness. Occasionally there is mental alertness, and then times when the mind is confused.

Sometimes he may recite one line of poetry for hours at a time. He will perform the same act over and over.

The marked difference between the feeble-minded youth who has always been weak-minded and the youth with dementia praecox is shown by the history of the case. In dementia praecox the onset may be sudden. Shock, fright or prostration, either bodily or mental in origin, may be followed by this disability. In other cases its onset is gradual and the course is progressive. The acute and sudden type is the more hopeful of cure. It may take time, but recovery comes. The slow type is more serious.

If there is found to be a lowered resistance from some discoverable cause the prospect of recovery is good. For instance, if the young person has been ill or overworked removal of the existing cause will go far toward restoring his health.

Recent work of physicians in these cases has made us more hopeful of their outcome. They must be studied with particular reference to localized infection in teeth, tonsils, large intestine or other parts of the body. When the physical basis is found recovery follows the removal of the primary trouble.

Careful examination of the blood and all of the secretions are necessary. Until every test has been made no reliable estimate of the probabilities can be attempted.

The rest cure is a good thing. Rest in bed, proper nourishment, baths, massages, change of scene are all important. More important is the finding of the fundamental physical trouble and getting rid of it.

Correct Manners

The Salad Silver

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. I have found you to be an excellent as well as an informed judge in matters concerning etiquete. In view of this, I am submitting a dispute to you which I am sure you will settle satisfactorily for both parties:

A says that a salad should be eaten with a knife and fork.

B says that a salad should be eaten only with a salad fork when the latter is present on the table.

2. Are salad forks used today in the better restaurants and hotels? —PAUL.

THANK you for your appreciation.

1. Either is correct. If the salad is a simple one (a few separated leaves of lettuce, for instance), usually the salad fork is convenient to use for eating it. But nowadays, when the salad is a complicated one, such as hearts of lettuce or iceberg lettuce, or lettuce with endive or slices of pineapple, or some other ingredient that is not easy to manage, we have been given, by the silver manufacturers, the convenient salad knife, to supplement the salad fork. And increasingly we find, for use in the salad course, both the salad knife and the salad fork.

2. Yes. And salad knives, too.

The Well-Bred Boy Will Co-operate

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When a girl goes to a cafe with a boy should the girl ever suggest dancing?

2. Should the girl suggest leaving because it is late?

3. I always must be in by 12 o'clock. Should I tell the boy when I start out with him, or shouldn't I tell him? Mother is terribly strict.

Thank you very much for answering these questions for me. I know they will do a lot of other girls good too, because 8 or 10 girls I go with are wondering about the same things. M.

NO, the invitation to dance is the privilege of the male.

2. Yes, it is the privilege of the girl to suggest the time of going. Indeed the gentleman waits for her to make the suggestion.

3. It is well for you to tell the boy before you start out and then he will make the plans accordingly. And any well-bred boy will co-operate with the wishes of your parents.

(You are most welcome. I hope that the suggestions are helpful to you. Do write me again and let me help you with your problems.)

She went to the back of the house to telephone for a taxicab and Lovejoy followed her.

"What would you say if I told you I'd like to stir up a little trouble for myself—or a little excitement, at least?" she asked, helping Norrie into the plain blue cloth cape that she always wore as an evening wrap.

"What do you mean?" asked Norrie, startled. "Are you crazy, Lovejoy?"

Lovejoy shook her head with its red-gold waves of hair.

"No. Just bored," she said. "Maybe I got married too young, Norrie. But, anyway, I'm just sick of everything. . . . I've done everything that a woman can do. I've married and had a baby. Now, what is there ahead of me but the same husband forever and ever—and more babies?"

"What else on earth do you want?" asked Norrie. "Isn't that enough, for pity's sake?"

Once again Lovejoy shook her beautiful shining head.

"Not for me. I want—Oh, I don't know what I want!" she cried. "I just know that everything seems dull to me lately."

Norrie's eyes—her calm, steadfast eyes—shifted to the open door of the dining room. Hilda was standing at the sideboard, putting away the new silver, forks and knives.

"You haven't enough to do, Lovejoy," she said. "You'd better get rid of that girl and do your own work again. . . . I've seen women in the hospital who were nervous wrecks, just because they didn't have enough work to keep them busy. Busy—and happy."

SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS

BEST IN PITTSBURGH — TUESDAY, JANUARY 28, 1930 — TWENTY-SEVEN

SPORT COMMENT
by JAMES J. LONG

Pitt Drops Elections. Likely to Help Teams. Only Dukes Keep Ballot.

Ice Rules for Baseball. Part-Game Banishment. Loyaza to Test Singer.

BAKER OR WILLIAMS GRID CAPTAIN

THERE is no question that the majority of Pitt men and of football followers in general throughout the city and vicinity will heartily indorse the action of the Panther athletic authorities in finally deciding to follow the growing custom of doing away with gridiron elections and substituting a system whereby the captains of future elevens will be appointed by the head coach. Undoubtedly it is a step in the right direction, and one that will work out to the best interests of Blue and Gold teams in the seasons to come.

Eddie Baker

The plan proved so successful at the colleges where it was first adopted several years ago that it has since won many new converts annually. As a matter of fact, the Pitt chiefs themselves considered putting it into effect a couple of seasons back. They had things all mapped out for the coach to name the gridiron leader each year after a consultation with the assistant coaches, the manager and the retiring captain. Why they failed to go through with it then is not known. But better late than never. The appointive system is "in" at last, and it is hard to see how anything but good can come of it.

AS has been pointed out on several occasions, the advantages of having the captain chosen by the coach instead of elected by ballot of the players lie chiefly in the fact that the new plan eliminates the danger of any ill feeling or factional discord creeping into the playing ranks following an election as the result of fraternity politics or petty jealousies

Another item in support of the change is the possibility that under the elective system the captaincy may fall into the wrong hands. The title amounts to little and is only an honorary one, anyhow, but the captain should have some few inspirational or leadership qualities, and if chosen by his mates he may be picked because of his personal popularity or fraternity strength without regard as to whether or not he is a natural leader. There have been instances of an elected boy's failing to "make" the team. The coach, on the other hand, can select the man best fitted for the post.

POSSIBLY the Panther bosses were influenced in deciding to make the change at this time by the fact that a lively four-cornered fight for the 1930 captaincy was in prospect, with Eddie Baker, Josh Williams, Bill Walinchus and Charley Tully as the candidates.

Each has warm friends and supporters among the letter men of 1929, and the adoption of the appointive system is the best means of assuring a continuance of good feeling all around. It is said to be the intention of Coach Jock Sutherland to name a player who was a regular last season and who is certain to be a regular again next fall. The general opinion is that the appointment will go to either Quarterback Baker or Halfback Williams.

Josh Williams

THE old argument that the appointment plan infringes on the rights of the players to elect their own leader carries no more weight than would one that the athletes should be privileged to choose their own coach. Many of the players eligible to vote annually are not to be on the team the following season, and they have no assurance that even the man whom they elect will not be beaten out for a regular position by some other candidate. As Carnegie Tech adopted the appointive plan a year ago, when Coach Wally Steffen selected John Dreshar, Duquesne University is now the only member of Pittsburgh's collegiate trio that still chooses its captain by ballot. But conditions are different at the Bluff school, where the element of fraternity politics is not likely to enter so strongly into elections.

BASKETBALL in the County League ought to be helped by the decision of the management of the champion Lafayettes to transfer the scene of the team's home games from Duquesne to the Palisades in McKeesport. Patronage is reported to have fallen off in Duquesne, but there is every promise that with such a strong five meeting the other good County League teams within its boundaries there will be a big revival of interest in the Tube City.

This prospect is particularly bright for the reason that McKeesport has had only high school and light amateur basketball attractions for several seasons and is therefore about ripe for some bigger stuff again. The Palisades rink is well adapted to the staging of basketball. The floor game has enjoyed some notable runs there, dating back to the days of Andy Sears, Charley O'Donnell and the other stars of the old Central League and world champions more than 20 years ago.

UNDAUNTED by the ditching of John A. Heydler's plan for baseball teams of 10 men, Emil Fuchs, president of the Boston Braves, comes up with another idea that would make it possible for a club to use an even larger number of athletes during a contest. It has about as much chance of being adopted as had Heydler's idea.

Emil E. Fuchs

Evidently the Hub magnate has been giving some attention to hockey this winter, as the new regulation that he suggests for baseball is based on the principles of the ice sport. He would have the umpires empowered to put players out of a game for one, two or more innings, and to permit them to return to the lineup after they have served their penalties, as in hockey, though substitutes would play for them in the meantime, which is not allowed in the ice skating pastime.

FUCHS says he will propose the following to the rules committee: "Amend Rule 67 (covering the banishment of offending players from games) by inserting in the first line the word 'flagrant,' and by adding to the bottom of the section 'If, in the judgment of the umpire the removal from the game of such player, manager or coach is too severe for the offense or violation committed, he is empowered to suspend such offender for any part or portion of that game as he deems proper for such conduct. The substitute taking his place during such suspension shall be eligible to take the place of one other player in the same game.'"

"YOU will notice that I am not attempting to curtail the powers of the umpire" Fuchs says. "I believe in absolute discipline on the field. But it is absurd to say that a man should receive the same punishment for tossing his cap in the air as for punching a fellow player or jamming his spikes into an umpire's feet.

"My change will give the umpire some leeway and should find favor with the fans, for it will insure their seeing more of a perfect game. In many cases the fans are deprived the privilege of seeing a star play through a full game because of some infraction of a rule or

PITT BATTERING RAM OFFERED PRO BERTH

By JESS CARVER

The New York Giants, of the National Professional Football League, would like very much to have Tom Parkinson, Pitt's all-America battering ram, do the line smacking for 'em next year.

Dr. Harry A. March, president of the Giants, was in town yesterday for a conference with the Pitt ace, and talked in honeyed tones to Parky, making him a very attractive offer to come to Gotham next fall and don the moleskins as worn by the Giants. The offer included, besides a fine ante, a transfer to a New York dental school. Tom has another year to battle with the books, the 1930 model dental course at Pitt being a five year affair.

Parkinson has taken the offer under consideration, and will await the arrival of formal contracts from the Giants offices in New York prior to making up his mind. He indicated to the Pittsburgh Sun - Telegraph representative, however, that he was favorably inclined to signing.

LAUDS LOCAL GRIDDERS

Dr. March, a moving figure in the professional grid sport, paid high tribute to Pittsburgh district footballers. He said that one of the reasons the pros have not attempted to put a team in this city is because of the fact that Pitt, Tech, the Dukes, and Wash-Jeff offer such a fine brand of college ball that the professional doubted their ability to provide a game that would attract the fans, so thoroughly saturated with such a high grade of college football.

"We get our best football players from right around this district," Dr. March said." Take chaps like this fellow Gibson, from Grove City, and players like the Steins, Jerry Fay, Saul Melziner, Buss Hogan and Gibby Welch for example, why, you can't beat 'em any place. In fact you can't even tie 'em."

"I'd like to sign Parkinson. He is just the sort of a chap bound to go great as a professional. He is tough and rugged, can take it and he is smart."

Parkinson is one of only four of the 1929 college crop tendered offers by the Giants. Dr. March declined to name the other three, but Jap Douds, of Wash-Jeff, figured so prominently in the Doctor's talk that it is safe to surmise that overtures have been made to the President star.

TEST NIGHT GAME

The professionals are going to give night football a test next year, playing Wednesday nights in New York, Brooklyn and Providence. Brooklyn is to get the franchise held during the past season by Boston. The Flatbush club will be backed financially by a son of John McCooey, famous New York politician.

It was because of the plan to inaugurate night profesional football that the player limit was raised from 18 to 22 at the meeting of the league in Dayton last week. The members of the league felt that the 18-player limit would not be large enough for the three-game-a-week plan. Daylight games will be continued Saturday and Sundays.

AMATEURS BOX TONIGHT

Seven Pittsburgh-Cleveland intercity amateur boxing bouts make up an attractive program in the gymnasium of the Keystone A. C. tonight. The battles will be between teams representing the Cleveland A. C. and the local downtown club, and the star amateur talent of both cities is represented among the starters.

William Simendinger will referee the battles. The program follows, the local boxers being named first:

112 pounds, Mose Butch vs. Joey Kushner; 118 pounds, John McGann vs. Fred Anczak; 126 pounds, George Julius vs. Don Gonzales; 135 pounds, Bob McCormick vs. Ken Disch; 147 pounds, Al Becker vs. Louis Raible; 160 pounds, Bob McDowell vs. Jimmy Taylor; 175 pounds, Mike Choymiak vs. Jack Weinert.

The Y. M. H. A. will hold its second amateur boxing show of the season in its auditorium Thursday night of next week.

Buck White, new junior-light-heavyweight champion of the A. M. A., may be one of the participants in the amateur boxing show at the P. A. A. Saturday night of next week. An effort is being made to match him with either Mike Koppin or Herman Hodill.

YESTERDAY'S EXPLANATION: THE HOLY SCORPION EATER—The depiction of the Tunisian Holy scorpion eater is from an original photo showing this "saint" in the very act of devouring a scorpion. During my several trips to Northern Africa I have been an eyewitness to similar repulsive performances which in the eyes of the natives will invest the performer with the status of a "holy man" and make him the recipient of honors and gifts.

'NOT THROUGH,' ZIVIC SAYS, LEAVING

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

When Jack Zivic, local veteran welterweight boxer, leaves Pittsburgh this week to make his home in New York for the second time, taking along his wife and young daughter, he will make his departure from the scene of his finest fistic triumphs with mingled feelings.

Jack Zivic

For be it known that Jack has been doing some deep thinking during the months of his comeback effort in the local rings and has come to the philosophical conclusion that perhaps it is true that a boxer, like a prophet, is not without honor except in his own country.

Jack owns a home in Pelham Manor, N. Y., into which he will move, having given up his Dormont apartment. He plans to continue boxing until he can make a business connection in New York through some friends he knew while living there before, several years ago, and then he will hang up the padded mittens. Right now he has a leaning toward the brokerage game. He has some money laid aside on which he can rely until he learns the ropes.

FEELS RESENTMENT

Jack's feelings are not exactly the kindliest toward some of the persons whom he formerly regarded as friends and admirers. He has found them out to be of the fair weather type who flocked about him and fawned upon him when he was knocking out the Nate Goldmans and Lew Tendlers and making his mark as a national boxing figure, incidentally

Betty Carstairs Plans New Boat Of Super-Speed

LONDON, Jan. 28.—(AP.)—Miss Betty Carstairs, completing arrangements to challenge the motor boat speed kings of the world in the Harmsworth trophy race at Detroit this summer, has ordered a super-speed boat and obtained permission from the air ministry to use two of the secret aero-engines built for the Schneider Cup contest.

These engines will develop more than 2,500 horsepower, and speeds more than 100 miles an hour are expected. It is planned to test the boat on Lake Windermere before shipping it to America.

M'GREW TO RUN BUCCO GAMES IN SPRING

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

Ted McGrew, new National League umpire and the same official who handled the barnstorming games of the Pirates last year, will serve in a similar capacity this year, according to an announcement made today at the Pirate office.

McGrew will hook up with the Buccos earlier than he did last spring when he joined the club after its departure from Paso Robles. Arrangements have been made to have the umpire at Paso Robles to take charge of all training games between the squads. He will report with the second contingent of athletes.

Buckeyes to Play Pitt Passers Here Dec. 31

COLUMBUS, Jan. 28.—Ohio State's basketball team will play the University of Pittsburgh cagers December 31 in Pittsburgh this year and in 1931 in Columbus. This agreement was ratified by the Ohio State Athletic Board yesterday. Pitt originally was carded to meet the Buckeyes in Columbus in 1930 and the shifting of the date to Pittsburgh will mark the second successive year for the game to be played here.

CITY LEAGUE SECOND HALF OPENS

The second-half race in the City Senior League basketball campaign gets under way this afternoon with the leaders of the two sections, Schenley and Perry, almost certain to emerge victors in their first battles of the stretch run.

This week's card in the City League is practically a one-day affair, only one game, a postponed first-half affair, being booked for Friday. South, in Section I, and Allegheny, in Section II, are to be idle all week. The game Friday brings together Perry and Oliver in a tilt that was to have been run off last Tuesday but was set back until this week because of a death in the official family at Perry.

Today's contests in Section I bring together Ralston and Schenley at Schenley, Peabody and Westinghouse at Westinghouse, and Allderdice and the desperate Fifth Avenue team at Fifth. In Section II, South Hills tackles Allegheny Vocational at Vocational, Carrick plays Oliver at Oliver, and Langley and Perry battle at Perry.

HYATT ON HAND

Coach Walter Gross, of the fast-traveling Schenley five, expects to present a stronger front than ever with the advent of the second semester. He will have young Art Hyatt, brother of the famous Charley and a crack player in his own right, available. Art was not eligible for play during the first half of the race, but will be in there from now on.

Hyatt is a clever floor man and a fine shot. With Crum working as he has at center, and Hyatt in the lineup with Douglass, Slusser, Moore and Evans and Oblin, it will take some great basketball on the part of the other teams in the section to oust the Bellefielders from the top position they now occupy.

Oliver alone can knock Perry out of the lead for the first half in Section II, and will have to wait until Friday to do even that. With Gahring going as he has been at forward, working smoothly with the clever Perry team, the chances of the present leaders getting into the championship playoff with Schenley appear very bright.

The W. P. I. A. L. schedule for the week is the heaviest it has been all season. Games are carded in all sections both today and Friday.

In Section II, where the race between Danver's Bellevue five and Moe Rubenstein's Ambridge tossers has been nip and tuck all season, the two rivals will finally come together, meeting at Bellevue Friday. Tonight, Ambridge clashes with Leetsdale at Ambridge and Bellevue battles Avalon at home.

CHAMPS PLAY DUQUESNE

Bill Campbell's champion Homestead team engages Duquesne on the latter's floor tonight. Nate Lippe sends his title bound Harding High (Aliquippa) team against Midland. Harding had more trouble than was expected in disposing of Monaca last week, and Midland, with an in and out team, may just probably upset the dope this evening.

Monessen, hoping to finish on top in Section V, begins its week's campaigning by playing Donora.

ART SHIRES PASSES UP FIGHT OFFERS

Prevented by the ukase of Commissioner K. M. Landis from continuing his boxing career if he wants to remain in baseball, Art Shires, gabby first-sacker of the Chicago White Sox, has to turn down many lucrative boxing offers. Above he is seen giving some of them the once-over, accompanied by a sigh of regret. It's just like throwing money away.

BUCS SHIFT LINEUP FOR BRUINS TONIGHT

MILKS, FRASER TO EXCHANGE PLACES

BOSTON Jan 28 Manager Frank Frederickson of the Pittsburgh Hockey Club has announced that he will present a lineup new to local fans when his Pirates meet the World Champion Bruins here tonight

The lineup shifts involve Hib Milks and Gordon Fraser, versatile stalwarts who can perform either on the front line or in the backfield Milks always on the front line when opposed to Boston teams in the past is to start at defense and Fraser remembered as a defenseman is to be moved up to Hib's customary spot at center

Johnny MacKinnon is to be paired with Milks and Harold Darragh and Jerry Lowrey will flank Fraser.

NEW LINEUP WORKS WELL

Frederickson tried out this combination recently in Pittsburgh and was encouraged when it registered five goals against the New York Rangers Presenting the same revamped batting order in New York Sunday night the Bucs interrupted an eight-game losing streak by holding the Americans to a 1-1 tie Freddie is confident that with his men now better acquainted with the duties of their new positions they will be able to give the champions a real fight

In their last two meetings with the Pittsburghers the local skaters were extended to win by 5-4 and 4-3 scores, but Frederickson's optimism is not shared by local fans, and the Bruins rule strong favorites to win The records show that the Hub representatives have won 24 of 28 games played in the present campaign so the odds showing the champs as favorites are not exactly out of order

END LONG ROAD TRIP

Tonight's game will bring to a close one of the longest road trips in National League history The Pirates spent all of last week in enemy territory and came here from their Sunday affair in New York. Freddie and his weary warriors will head for home late tonight—but not to rest They are to be hosts to the Detroit Cougars in Pittsburgh Saturday night and considerable practicing work is on the program. The probable lineup:

Bruins	Pos	Pirates
Thompson	G	Moe
Richardson	P	Muir
Owen	C	MacKinnon
Berry	C	Fraser
Galbraith	R	Darragh
Oliver	R	Lowrey

Spares—Bruins Clapper Wetland, Gallery, Carson, MacKay, Horton, Pirates Drury, White, Jarvis, Barton, Brides, Smith, Spring

DATE IS CHANGED

BOSTON, Jan 28 —(AP)—The Boston Bruins' management has agreed to play the Chicago Blackhawks in that city on March 13 instead of Feb 9

President C F Adams explained that the Chicago Stadium would not be available for the Black Hawks on the original date and that he favored the postponement to avoid playing on some other Chicago rink

The efficient performances of McGrew while the Pirates barnstormed one year ago won him much favor among big-league men. Ted is a fellow who seems to know how to call the close ones and he is seldom in a bad jam

SUCCEEDS ENS

Manager Ens, in person, made a big name for himself among the Pittsburgh players because of his work in running of the inter-squad battles at Paso Robles. These contests require much attention from the umpires and few of the coaches and scouts were anxious for the assignment. Ens, however, was ever ready to take the mask-protector and indicator and it got so that Jewel was an important part of every diamond mixup in camp. He will not make any of his assistants bear the brunt of the work, inasmuch as he has acquired McGrew right from the jumpoff It is probable that Ted will use one of the scouts for a base assistant.

an attack on an umpire's dignity that is forgotten before an inning has passed."

THERE is a big decrease this year in the number of entries filed for the toughest of all horse races, the Grand National Steeplechase, scheduled for March 28 at the Aintree course, in England. The list shows only 84 prospective starters against 121 last year.

Only nine of the 84 have ever completed the course of four miles and 856 yards, though 34 have taken part in the race without falling. Gregalach, first last year, is the only previous winner among the entries.

Al Singer

WITH Kid Berg en route back to England for a visit and scheduled to fight Mushy Callahan upon his return to this country, the bout between Berg and Al Singer, which is expected to produce a challenger for Sammy Mandell's world lightweight title, appears to be a long way off. But there will be an interesting test meanwhile that may shed some light on the question as to the probable outcome of the Berg-Singer affair. For in Madison Square Garden, New York next Friday night, Singer is to appear in a scheduled 10-round battle with Stanislaus Loayza, rugged Chilean lightweight, and as Loayza has to his credit a draw with Berg, some interesting comparisons may be possible after Friday's contest, though Berg no doubt has improved considerably since Loayza held him even. Singer looks like the probable winner Friday, but the Chilean battler is likely to keep him busy.

WEST, SHUPACK AND RUDY BEATEN

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Jan. 28.—In a slashing battle of 10 rounds last night at the Jolly Bowl, Henry Firpo, of Cleveland, won the decision over Indian (Tiger) West, of Arizona. Piet Brand, 172, of Holland, won from Tiger Jack Payne, 172, of Oklahoma, in the sixth round when the referee stopped the fight and disqualified the Oklahoman.

SCOTT LEAVES TO TRAIN IN MIAMI

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(AP.)—Phil Scott, British heavyweight who meets Jack Sharkey at Miami, Fla., February 27, left for the Southland today to start training. He was accompanied by his English manager, Charley Rose, and a trainer, Eddie Johnston, brother of Jimmy Johnston, his American manager.

The New York State Athletic Commission is scheduled to consider the case of Mickey Walker, middleweight champion today, with the chances great that the 160-pound king will make peace with the solons and defend his crown against Rene De Vos, Belgian challenger, in Madison Square Garden, March 14.

TO INSIST ON PAYMENT

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 28.—(AP.)—The Illinois State Athletic Commission will wage a legal battle to force Manager Jack Kearns and Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, to pay a $10,000 forfeit to the Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children at Los Angeles.

Before agreeing to allow Walker to meet Tommy Loughran for the light heavyweight championship here last year, the Illinois commission forced Kearns to post a $10,000 forfeit with the California commission, guaranteeing that Walker would defend his title at Los Angeles, preferably against Ace Hudkins. Walker failed to meet Hudkins within the time limit and the Illinois commission ordered the California body to pay the $10,000 to the Shriners' Hospital. Manager Kearns stopped the order by gaining a temporary injunction.

First Assistant Attorney General William E. Trautman, of Illinois, is on his way to Los Angeles to represent the state commission, seeking payment of the forfeit money.

Unsportsmanlike To Join Huddle Of Opponents

WESTON, W. Va., Jan. 28.—A team has no right to listen to an opponent's huddle in basketball. Oswald Tower, chairman of the rules committee, in a telegram, states that it is unsportsmanlike conduct.

In a game played last week between Elkins and Buckhannon, a Buckhannon player would go to the huddle and listen. A protest was made to the referee, who ruled that no violation had been made. A wire to Tower brought the decision.

RENE LA COSTE, CURED, PLANS BIG YEAR

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(AP.)—Rene La Coste, the most machine-like of the great French tennis stars, is entirely cured of the illness that kept him out of the Davis Cup challenge round last year and is planning another International campaign this season, reports no less an authority than Big Bill Tilden.

The American champion, now playing in the tournaments along the Riviera, writes in the current issue of a tennis magazine that far from retiring from the game, La Coste expects to play in the French and English championships again and to take his old place on the Tri-Color Davis Cup team.

This is the most reassuring news of La Coste received since last summer when a stubborn cold bordering on influenza prevented him from playing at Wimbledon and then kept him out of the Franco-American battle for the Davis Cup. Complications followed. La Coste spent some time in a sanitarium and many felt that his court career had come to an untimely end.

Tilden's prize protege, Wilbur F. Coen, Jr., of Kansas City, will join Big Bill on the Riviera soon, being booked to sail on the Bremen February 1.

Coen probably will be Tilden's regular doubles partner, as Frank Hunter expects to confine his European playing this year to Wimbledon if he goes abroad at all.

SHORT, SNAPPY SPEECHES AT SPORTSFETE

Snappy "up-and-at-'em" speeches of the five-and-ten-minute variety will be one of the features of the second annual dinner of the local chapter, Baseball Writers' Association of America to be held Thursday night of next week at the William Penn Hotel.

Aside from a few of the guest speakers, the various gentlemen who are to respond to toasts will let fly with their stuff in a hurry. In adhering to this plan, Toastmaster Joe Mackrell expects to be able to get through a long program without letting the action drag.

Mackrell plans to introduce a lot of celebrities from the assemblage, and judging by the early returns, there will be many well-known personalities grouped about the various tables.

Izzy Cervone's American Legion band has been secured for the gala occasion. These boys will let loose with a lot of interesting music of the instrumental as well as the vocal brand.

The writers will meet at 4:30 this afternoon at the William Penn Hotel to further the dinner plans. All members are urged to attend.

CRAIG ELECTED S. A. R. GOLF CHAIRMAN

George I. Craig, Jr., known by his more intimate friends at the Allegheny Country Club as just plain "Bunky," was elected chairman of the Pennsylvania golf committee of the Sons of the American Revolution at a meeting held yesterday in the William Penn Hotel. Craig, who last year set the pace for a major portion of S. A. R. tournament play, succeeds Col. Franklin Blackstone, well-known credit executive, who has headed the committee since its inception by him several years ago. Although urged by his fellow members to keep his post, Col. Blackstone refused to hear their pleas, although he willingly accepted the vice chairmanship.

For years Craig has been one of the outstanding Pittsburgh district amateur golfers. Last season he captured the National Sons of the American Revolution championship and, in every tournament of the organization in which he competed, won one or more prizes.

Robert A. Lyne, of Allegheny, another of this district's low-handicap golfers, who has been a real menace to leaders in important tournaments of the last few years, was appointed chairman of the committee to select a state championship tournament site. It includes J. Bernd Rose, of Allegheny, vice president of the Western Pennsylvania Golf Association, and Capt. Harmar D. Denny, Jr., of Longue Vue. Vern Swartzfager was re-elected secretary of the committee.

Spit-tipped Cigars and Moustache Cups

disappeared long ago

Propaganda against tandem bicycles, bustles, or moustache cups, would be laughed out of existence.

And it's just as senseless to cry "wolf" over "spit-tipped" cigars . . . that particular wolf was dead and buried long ago. Today, every reputable manufacturer of a popular priced cigar uses the utmost precautions to safeguard purity and cleanliness. To suggest that any cigar, selling in hundreds of thousands each month, could possibly be manufactured by antiquated, unsanitary hand-methods is ridiculous.

Rocky Ford

ROCKY FORD is as clean as a modern loaf of baker's bread. Made in a sunlight factory . . . pride and show place of Richmond, Va. Sanitary machines cut and roll the long filler . . . and place and seal the fine Sumatra wrapper. Sanitary machines even fold ROCKY FORD in its humidor-foil . . . The first hands to touch it are yours!

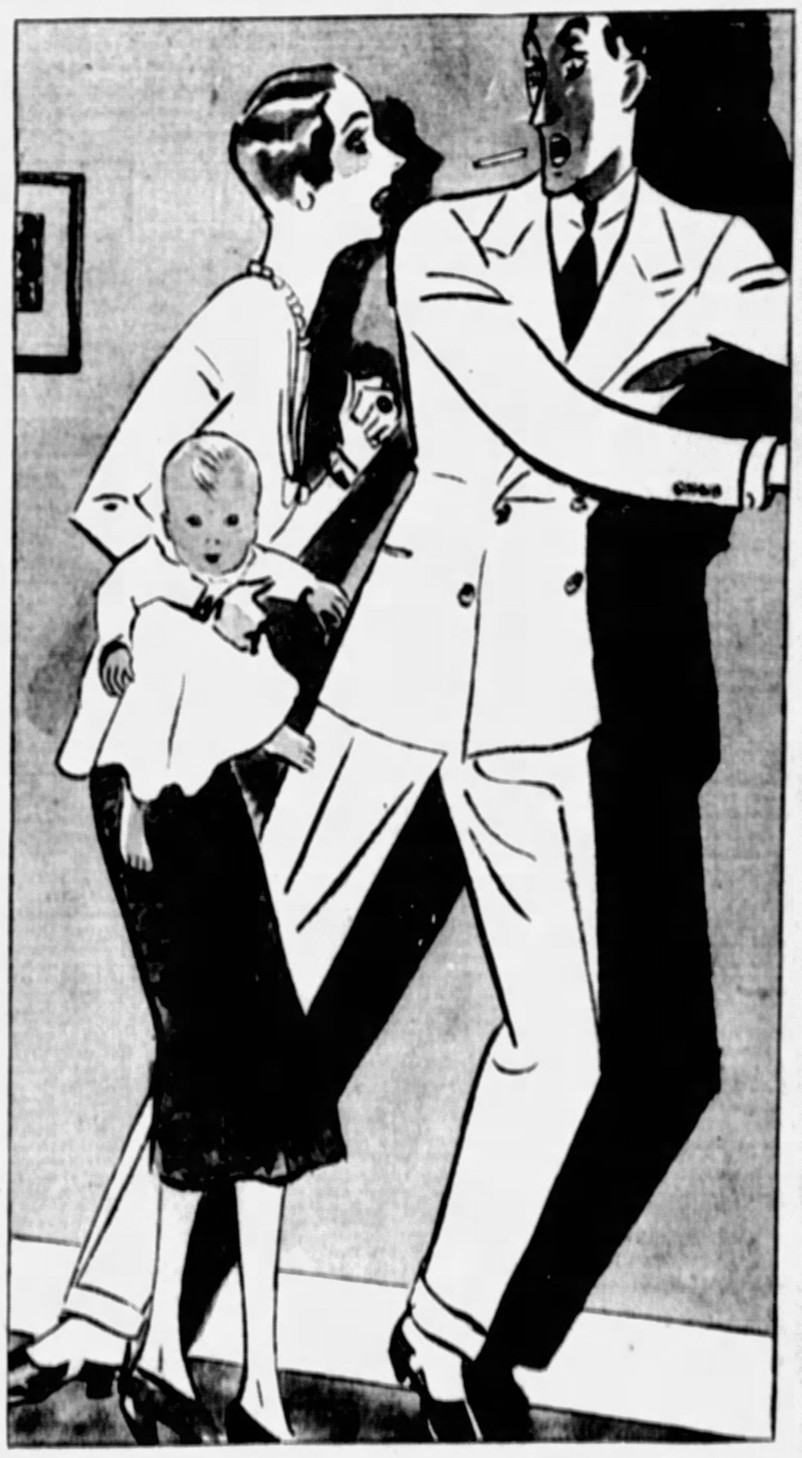
This Never Happens in a Plus-Six Home!



Tragic Situation Number Two

"Why, dear, I simply can't afford to get him a pair of shoes . . . I just paid the tailor for this suit. And now I'm as flat as a snake with fallen arches."

"Well, listen, big boy. After this you'll buy those 21.50 "Plus-Six" clothes at Kaufmann's Annex—and Junior won't have to go barefooted like a papoose."

STOCKS SAFELY RIDE STORM OF SELLING

Market Moves to Higher Levels Under Lead of Coppers and Utilities

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(AP.)—The stock market successfully weathered a storm of selling in today's early trading, and then moved upward under the leadership of the business machine, copper, farm implement and public utility shares, several of which advanced 2 to 7 points. A few soft spots cropped out here and there, and occasional selling attacks were directed against such issues as Fox Film, General Motors and Radio, but the market generally displayed a firm undertone.

Two of the most interesting developments in the day's news were President Hoover's statement of a further gain of 3.3 per cent in employment during the last week, as shown by the labor department report, and the decline of $120,000,000 in loans on securities collateral revealed in the Federal Reserve Board's weekly condition statement of reporting member banks in leading cities. Wall street found considerable encouragement in the continued progress of liquidating these security borrowings, which totaled $7,714,000,000 on January 22.

EARLY IRREGULARITY

Early irregularity of the market probably was due to the suggestions of several large commission houses to take trading profits on the theory that the market was entitled to at least a technical reaction. So-called "chart readers" are anxiously following the course of the market to learn whether it will break through the high level established in December, such action being regarded by them as an indication of a further sharp advance.

Strength of the business machine shares was based on forecasts of unusually favorable 1929 earnings soon to be published. Underwood Elliott Fisher, which is expected to show around $10 a share, ran up 7 points. International Business Machines 5½, National Cash Register 4 and Burroughs Adding Machine 2.

LONG LIST ADVANCES

Columbian Carbon, which is engaged in the development of natural gas properties, also ran up 7 points. Philadelphia Company advanced 6½, Electric Auto Lite 5½, Republic Steel preferred 4 and J. I. Case, Oliver Farm Equipment common and convertible preferred, Mullins Body, Pacific Telephone and New York and Harlem sold 3 to 4 points higher.

Among the many issues to sell 2 or more points higher were Anaconda, St. Joseph Lead, National Lead, Advance Rumely common and preferred, Reading and Norfolk and Western, the last named responding to the increase from 8 to 10 per cent in the regular annual dividend.

Larger Profit for Western Air Corp

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 28.—The annual report of the Western Air Express Corporation shows net profits, prior to federal income tax deductions, of $1,087,853.60 for 1929. This is equivalent to more than $9 a share on the average number of shares outstanding, and an increase of slightly more than 50 per cent over the 1928 profits, which were $720,777.80 or $6.73 a share. Gross revenues for the year were $2,950,921.59.

WILBUR OFFERS OIL PLAN

FRESNO, Cal., Jan. 28.—(AP.)—Having expressed the hope that Kettleman Hills oil operators would "get together and agree on a method of stopping the staggering waste of California's industrial future," Secretary of the Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur today was on his way to Los Angeles to further his plans for conservation.

Returning from a trip through the Kettleman Hills North Dome, after addressing groups of oil men at Fresno, Hanford and at the field, Dr. Wilbur delivered his conservation message here yesterday.

"We want to see an agreement that will stop sinking of wells that call for offset drilling, with ring after ring of offsets," he told the oil men.

Methods of development he brought forward were: 1, pooling of all profits from the field according to acreage; 2, purchase by big companies of all small holdings; 3, government purchase of all "non-curtailed" lands; 4, holding company control of development for the whole dome.

Multi-Millionaire Talks On Money Versus Friends

By B. C. FORBES

GEORGE F. BAKER, the 89-year-old dean of America's bankers, sat beside me at a function a night or two ago. The last time I had seen him walk he had quite a firm step.

"I have only one good leg now," Mr. Baker told me. "I had an illness some time ago and the other one went back on me."

It was rather a shock to see this fine old sturdy human oak having to be helped along. He has palpably become frail. Nevertheless he ate a square meal and then smoked a man-sized cigar. Incidentally, he promised his mother he wouldn't smoke while she was alive and he didn't indulge until he was 70, when he also took up golf.

AS I SAT all evening facing this, the wealthiest banker in America, probably the wealthiest in the world, I could not but ask myself what it is all about, this terrific strenuously and strain and struggle perpetually waged in Wall Street and the business world in general by little and big, especially the big.

"Of what use after all," came the thought, "is the piling of millions upon millions? At Mr. Baker's age the possession of several hundred millions of dollars could mean little or nothing."

I recalled that when he had become an old man Andrew Carnegie said he would gladly give every dollar he possessed could he become a youth again.

NEXT I thought of a letter I received recently from a multi-millionaire almost as old as Mr. Baker. He writes:

"It would be a wonderful thing if all of us who are engaged in business could realize early enough in life that the greatest thing in the world is not making money—although that is necessary—but making friends. The older I grow the more I see that the thing which counts most of all is the friendships we have succeeded in forming.

"If the younger fellows who are now carrying on could only learn the value of friendships, the business of the world would be carried on much more harmoniously. There would be far less fighting and quarreling. There wouldn't be so much misunderstanding and bitterness. They would always have in mind that the wealth most worthwhile of all is a wealth of friends, and they would not be very ready to do things that cost them friends."

THE man who for many years was the head of a large bank recently retired. His institution was quite successful, due in no small measure to his ability and industry, notwithstanding that he never learned the importance of inspiring loyalty and teamwork among his subordinates. He belonged to the old school master-and-servant type. Said one of his intimates to me the other day:

"... is a sad disappointed old man. He is really to be pitied. He has no friends."

NOW the old gentleman already quoted is one of the happiest of mortals. He is fond of remarking:

"I don't know anybody that the Lord has been kinder to than me. I have been always blessed with good health. I have managed to do something in a business way which has helped to contribute at least a little to building up this grand land, and I have warm friends wherever I go."

Contrast him with this big banker who is bankrupt friendshipwise. The one, although always aggressive in business and by no means a "softie," played the game with reasonable consideration for others. The banker all through his life was out for only himself and his interests, a fact which other bankers and others who had contact with him well know. Oftener than once when financial trouble arose and others agreed to chip in to tide things or individuals or institutions over, this banker took the stand, "It's none of my affair. My business is to look after my own institution."

I KNOW some other very rich men who, now that they are nearing the grave, are not particularly proud of some of the tactics which they employed to get the better of others. They did things which they would now be willing to pay a fortune to undo.

THE tragedy is that too too many men fail to adopt a well-thoughtout, wise philosophy of life until ..tally late.

Have you and I sense enough to be warned in time and to act accordingly?

EXCHANGE MAY ADOPT MORE SAFEGUARDS

Additional Protection For Investor Hoped for, 'Big Board' Chief Says

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—E. H. H. Simmons, president of the New York Stock Exchange, in a message to this column, comments on the suggestions made by this writer for further self regulation by the New York Stock Exchange.

In order to minimize the evils of marginal speculation, it was proposed that no new marginal accounts be accepted by member houses until the customers confers with a partner of the firm or at least receives an individual letter.

As a part of the interview, it was suggested that a uniform printed statement explaining in A B C terms the hazards as well as the opportunities of marginal trading be handed to the customer. It was further proposed that the broker make an intelligent analysis of the credit standing of his customer, ascertaining whether he is in position to assume a substantial debit balance.

SOLUTION DIFFICULT

"The questions which you raise are, of course, very broad ones," Mr. Simmons pointed out, "and while I sympathize with much you have had to say concerning them, at the same time their successful solution seems, from my experience, likely to be a very difficult matter. I should add that the stock exchange has already undertaken certain steps which should in the future have direct bearing on some of the points which your article mentions."

"You are right when you say that the Stock Exchange has never favored indiscriminate speculation by men who are incompetent or who are not in a position to take a risk with the money which they have. You know, of coure, that it is extremely difficult to convince anyone that he is incompetent to speculte, or that he should have a larger amount of money. There is always someone who will tell them how easy it is to make a fortune. As I said, however, we are considering many things brought to light by the recent upheaval and it is possible that we shall be able to accomplish something of a constructive character to add to the safeguards which we have tried to throw around dealings on the exchange."

EXCHANGE THERMOMETER

The public is fortunate that the management of the Stock Exchange is in the hands of so progressive and enterprising a man as Mr. Simmons, who carries along the tradition initiated by his predecessor, the late Seymour Cromwell, that the Stock Exchange is in reality a public service institution, not merely a private club. I do not share the superstition of politicians and deflated speculators that the Stock Exchange is primarily responsible for the widespread losses which occurred during the debacle. The Stock Exchange was merely the thermometer which registered the rise and fall of the fever heat of the speculative public—a somewhat imperfect thermometer on account of the inadequacy of the ticker. The proposed self-imposed reforms would be designed primarily to help outside individuals determine their own fitness for the acceptance of financial risks. There is no objection to any one's entering the speculative lists if he does so with his eyes open, but it is socially wicked to lead the lambs to slaughter when they go wholly ignorant of the hazards they are assuming.

An investment analyst once asked Theodore Price, cotton authority and editor, what he thought of the ethics of speculation.

Mr. Price replied: "It's not a question of ethics, but of intelligence."

Perhaps some day modernistic brokers will give a Binet intelligence test to prospective customers, and only accept the business of those with a sufficiently high intelligence quota. The consistently successful speculator is a rare bird. He must have the capacity to think independently and act instantaneously. Financially, he should risk only such capital as he can afford to lose. It is unsound for men to speculate with their nest egg, which separate them and their families from poverty.

SCRAP RAILWAY

Public charters can confer legal monopolies on utilities, but they cannot insure that man's genius will invent new engines of competition. This observation is prompted by the announcement that the old electric railway connecting Washington, D. C., with Mount Vernon, which has carried tourists for three decades to the home of the nation's first President, is to be dismantled and sold for scrap. The opening of a new highway, in the opinion of directors, makes it no longer feasible to compete with the automobile. James H. Simon, 25-year-old leader for the scrap industry at the capital, accordingly becomes mortician for the street railway, which was once known as the "Road of the Presidents," because most of the occupants of the White House since 1896 traveled over it.

Business recession does not spell adversity for all industries alike. Curiously enough, the lead industry usually benefits from a general industrial letdown.

Dividend Rate Raised By Blaw-Knox

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

DIRECTORS of the Blaw-Knox Company yesterday gave recognition to the continued upward trend of earning by placing the stock on a $1.50 annual dividend basis. This is equal to the total amount of regular and extra dividends paid during 1929. During the year the stock was on a regular basis of $1 and paid an extra of 20 cents in January and one of 30 cents in December.

A promise of additional return was made by Albert S. Lehman, president of the company, who stated following the meeting, that it would be the policy of the company to pay extra Christmas dividends as earnings warrant.

The company plans to establish a branch factory in France. Mr. Lehman is leaving for Europe next week to complete negotiations. This follows the establishment of the English subsidiary on a paying basis with record unfilled orders of $2,000,000 on the books.

Sales Gain 40 Per Cent

THE Blaw-Knox Company may be added to the list of exceptional organizations which have been showing an increase in their business when the general trend of commercial activity has been downward. During the past three months sales have been about 40 per cent in excess of last year.

Unfilled orders are at the greatest point in the company's history. January sales are expected to reach $1,200,000, a gain of $400,000 over January of last year.

The increase in road building activity and the expansion work being done by public utilities have been the principal contributing factors to the gains in sales volume. Among the company's products are road building machinery, cement mixing machinery, steel forms for concrete and steel towers for electric transmission lines.

To Earn $2.67 a Share

THE annual report to be made public tomorrow is expected to show net profit after taxes and all other charges of $3,500,000. This will be equivalent to $2.67 a share on the 1,309,000 shares outstanding. This compares with $1,672,162 or $1.90 a share on 880,270 shares outstanding in 1928 which was the previous record year in earnings.

Blaw-Knox came to the end of 1929 with no indebtedness to banks, all preferred stock of its subsidiary companies retired and all mortgages retired except for one of $200,000 which will mature within a few months.

Current assets amount to $8,000,000 against accounts payable of only about $600,000.

New Products.

SEVERAL new products are being prepared for marketing, but the nature of them has not yet been made public. Recently the company announced plans for expanding production at plants in Chicago as well as in this district. The improvements being made at Blaw-Knox, Pa., will cost $250,000.

The company's business was greatly expanded last year by the acquisition of the Union Steel Casting Company, Lewis Foundry and Machine Company and National Alloy Steel Company.

George L. Dumbauld was elected treasurer of the company at the organization meeting of the directors yesterday. He succeeded Benjamin L. Hirshfield who becomes chairman of the finance committee. Other officers were re-elected.

This change in the official staff follows the addition of two new directors at the recently held stockholders' meeting. The new directors were Howard J. Sachs, of Goldman and Sachs, and J. H. Loucheim, president of the Tradesmen's National Bank of Philadelphia.

WOOLWORTH'S NET UP

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—The F. W. Woolworth Company reports for the year ended December 31, 1929, net income of $35,664,252 after charges, equal to $3.66 a share on 9,750,000 capital shares ($10 par) outstanding, against $35,385,606, or $3.63 a share on the same basis in 1928.

Sales for the year totaled $303,047,172, against $287,318,720 in 1928 year.

Number of stores in operation at the end of the year was 1,825 against 1,725 at the end of 1928.

Commenting on the report, Robert H. T. Parson, president, said:

"Cash is down to about $6,500,000, but we have added the following to our capital investment in 1929 out of cash:

"Real estate and buildings, $2,130,000; new stores and improvements in old stores $7,500,000; increase in merchandise $6,600,000.

"This makes a total of $16,000,000 cash capital investment in the above assets.

"Merchandise account is greater than a year ago, because of the very heavy stocks we carried through the year 1929 to cover our fiftieth anniversary sales. There is only a very small percentage of Christmas merchandise carried over in this total."

Dravo Enlarging Wilmington Yards

WILMINGTON, Del., Jan. 28.—Officials from the Pittsburgh headquarters of the Dravo Contracting Company announced that the Wilmington yard is now installing a large new department for the manufacturing of floating equipment. The Dravo Company is now building with its extra facilities a large floating grain elevator, a ladder dredge for an unnamed client and a derrick boat to be used by the Wilmington district engineer of the United States Government. The plant has been extended until it now has 19 ways. During 1929 the company built and launched 164 boats in the Wilmington and Pittsburgh yards, which, it was said, is the largest number to be built in any yard in the United States. Thirty-seven of these were constructed in Wilmington.

Campbell Defends Price of Copper

Declaring that co-operation and not competition should be the watchword in business, Gordon R. Campbell, president of the Calumet and Arizona Copper Company, was quoted today as stating that consumers of copper should not try to make their profit at the expense of the producer. Defending the price of 18 cents a pound for the metal as "reasonable," Mr. Campbell said it enables the company to pay fair wages to its workers and fair returns on the money invested.

Facist Text Books In Italian Schools

ROME.—(AP.)—New "all-Fascist" text books greeted Italian school children at the start of the second term. Drastic revisions were made in history books and considerable changes in the selections of Italian literature for grammar grades.

ROADS OPPOSE LOREE PLAN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—(INS.)—Eastern trunk line railroads today presented a solid front in opposing the plan of L. F. Loree to construct a 284-mile line across Pennsylvania from Easton to Allegheny City. This new line, with its connections, would form a new low-grade short line between New York and Chicago.

At a hearing before the Interstate Commerce Commission the chief objections against the new line were raised by the Baltimore and Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York Central railroads. Such a line, it was asserted, is not in the public interest, its construction cost would be excessive, and it would not handle traffic more efficiently than existing railroads now handle it.

Chinese New Year Interests Bankers

NEW YORK, Jan. 28—Approach of the Chinese New Year holidays, which begin this Thursday and continue until the following Tuesday, is being awaited with interest by banks with Chinese connections here and throughout the rest of the world. The interest centers in whether or not there will be any large commercial failures announced. Observance of the age-old custom of paying all debts at the New Year is often followed by bankruptcies, and the fall of silver in that country a short while ago may have had adverse effects on business.

A Fine Record of Fair Dealing

Adjusting losses is but one part of Stock Fire Insurance service. Naturally, in the mind of the assured, it looms large when loss occurs. At that time it is the most important process of all.

Every day the adjuster meets people who have sustained losses against which they were insured. Whether greeted cordially or gruffly, the adjuster must handle his problem with tact and fairness. The reputation of his company goes with him into every case.

A Million Fire Loss Reports

Nearly a million reports of fire loss are filed annually with the Stock Fire Insurance companies. Of the claims arising from these reports, more than 99 percent are adjusted without resort to litigation; a splendid tribute to the fairness of the contracting parties—the public and the fire insurance companies.

The value of good will in the adjusting of losses is as much appreciated by the Stock Fire Insurance companies as it is in the acquisition of business.

Public Confidence

The records afford ample evidence of the sincere purpose of adjusters to settle claims in keeping with the rights of all concerned.

To the fair dealing of its adjusters Stock Fire Insurance owes a large measure of the public confidence which it enjoys.

Best Remedy for Cough Is Easily Mixed at Home

You'll never know how quickly a stubborn cough or chest cold can be conquered, until you try this famous recipe. It is used in millions of homes, because it gives more prompt, positive relief than anything else. It's no trouble at all to mix and costs but a trifle.

Into a pint bottle pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to make a full pint. This saves two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough medicine, and gives you a purer, better remedy. It never spoils, and tastes good—children like it.

You can actually feel its penetrating, soothing action on the inflamed throat membranes. It is also absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. At the same time, it promptly loosens the germ-laden phlegm. This three-fold action explains why it brings such quick relief even in severe bronchial coughs which follow cold epidemics.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agents of creosote, in a refined palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

British, Canadian Golf Stars Married

LONDON, Jan. 28—(AP.)—W. I. Hooman, prominent British amateur golfer, and Mrs. W. A. Gavin, Canadian women's golf champion in 1922 and runner-up in the American women's championships in 1915, 1919 and 1922, were married during the week-end.

Hooman was a member of the British Walker cup teams playing against the United States in 1922 and 1923, and played for Oxford University against Cambridge four years in succession. He is 42 years old.

Mrs. Gavin won the Belgian title in 1924 and represented England in International matches in 1910, 1911 and 1924. She is 43 years old.

'NOT THROUGH,' ZIVIC SAYS

jamming Motor Square Garden whenever he appeared in a bout. During his recent bid to return to his former position, he has met many rebuffs. He has been advised to quit boxing, has been denied opportunities and, above all, has been regarded as merely a shadow of his former bearcat self in the ring.

The last-mentioned phase has hurt Jack most. No one wants to be known as a has-been in any pursuit, particularly at the age of 26. The inference has cut him to the quick and he has been openly nursing a sullen resentment. Ready to admit that he is not as young nor as effective as he once was, he yet believes he is a formidable fighter and he has been craving the opportunity to demonstrate this fact. He points with pride that last summer, at the Meyers Bowl, in North Braddock, he put up a hard fight with Sergt. Sammy Baker, of New York, the same Baker who subsequently knocked out Cuddy DeMarco in short order at Bridgeville and only recently stopped the winning streak of Joe Trippe at Motor Square Garden. And then, a little later, at Motor Square Garden, Jack went through 10 grueling rounds with Tiger Joe Randall, Negro knockout puncher of Elizabeth, who had been stopping the best of his weight around here.

REGARDED AS HASBEEN

And what was Jack's reward? A knowing shaking of heads by the fans and comments from them and in the newspapers on how far back he has gone. This has fairly "burned up" the doughty Zivic.

"Why can't they forget the Zivic of four or five years ago and take me as I am today?" he wants to know. "Why must there always be an odious comparison between the Zivic of the past and the Zivic of the present? Why? Why! Why can't they shut their eyes to the past and forget the Zivic they used to know and look at my work in the ring from the viewpoint that they never have seen me before? Other veteran boxers are brought here, such as Sergt. Baker, for instance. They have gone over the top. Yet the fans accept them as they are and give them due credit for what they do in the bout at which they are looking at the moment. But it seems that in the case of a home boy it is different."

Jack is not going away "sore" at his home folks. He is accepting matters as they are and putting down his fate as one of the quirks of human nature. Perhaps in new fields the fans will look upon him as we look upon outsiders here. Perhaps he will find that there is honor enough for prophets and boxers who have gone over the hill in other locales, where the fans can judge their work dispassionately and without taking into consideration sentimental memories of the days that are gone forever.

RETAINS FIGHTING SPIRIT

Let's cheer Jack on his way and let him know that the latchstring of the city always is out for him any time he cares to return. His name always will stand for much in local boxing history. He was a good 'un when he had "it"—and he still retains some of the spark that made him stand out among his fellows. After all, he has not changed much through the years, except that he has lost a bit of his punch and speed. The fighting heart for which he was famous and pride of craft remain.

THIS THING CALLED LOVE

THE Vincent Browns (Sybil Bavel) who were disinherited by her kin because she married a poor lad, are one-rooming it at 150 E. 50th which is what that thing love is. . . Read "The Passionate Angel" by F. L. Fraser (Scars). . . Virginia Franck and Albert Hackett of the "Whoopee" troupe are That Way. . . After all that fuss in the papers about the Peter Arnos (Lois Long) they went gay in the Broadway hotspots together two yawnings later. . . Dorothy Gish and Glenn Hunter look at each other you know how. . . The Harold Harts have a boy. . . Park Rowgues who were being entertained by R. Vallee kept chucking pieces of steak and vegetables into the pash King's megaphone.

Oh boy, if only that jewelry you see every Saidee night at the Mayfair could talk! . . . There was quite a scene between Earl Carroll and Dorothy Knapp, his ex-heart at the Beaux Arts Ball, not a Vallee coming to her defense! . . . Oh, yes, and the Earl's Archduke costume at the snooty affair was from his floperetta, "Floretta". . . If you'd find heat in your cab then hail an empty one that's in motion. . . What famous Boop-a-doop warbler is in a Morristown, N. J. sanitarium for obesity? . . . Jack Kearns knocked Willie Bernstein cold in a San Francisco rathskeller. . . Girl trouble. . . . Lady Ribblesdale has had her face lifted. . . . Dorothy Lee on the Coast goes places with her fingernails painted a glossy black, of all things! . . . Then there's the one about the feller with the sandwich sign on him, who passed the National Vaudeville Artists' Club and four actors bit him.

Claysville Bank Officers Elected

WASHINGTON, Pa., Jan. 28.—Directors of the Farmers National Bank of Claysville elected W. B. Irvine, of Wheeling, president; E. W. Rarel, Claysville, vice president, and C. L. McDonough, assistant cashier.

TRY your hand at this fascinating game of Anagrambles—the game that is taking the town like the crossword puzzle craze took the whole nation for a ride through the dictionary.

The game is quite simple. Merely change the following words by the addition of the single letter indicated. Do not omit any letter of the original word. The letter may be inserted at the beginning of the word, anywhere within the word, or at the end. Thus, the word "pate," by the addition of the letter "l" becomes either "pleat" or "plate." The word "drag" may be changed to either "grade" or "raged" by the addition of the letter "e."

The original word must be changed in meaning by the commentary letter. To change "mine" by adding "d," to form "mined," would be incorrect. Rearrange the letters of your word to change its meaning, not its tense or number. Take a pencil now and write in your newly formed word in the spaces provided.

Public Looks Askance At Hanson Release Muddle

The public will await with interest the return next Monday of Judge Darr, of Jefferson County, in view of the fact that Judges Cohen and Ford, of Allegheny County, are quoted as stating that at that time they will issue statements relative to their part, in conjunction with Judge Darr, in the release of William Hanson, freed from jail after serving 16 days of a four months sentence for operating a gambling device.

The modification, or whatever it is called, was made effective on the contention of Hanson's attorney that the sentence was excessive in view of punishment meted in local courts on similar charges.

For several days this unusual case has been a running story in the daily news, and the more the public hears about the facts the more involved the muddle appears to become. The fact that Hanson had been released a day or two before the public was made aware of the matter; that the judges met in chambers to consider the case; that the district attorney is put to the extreme of making excuses for not being present; that his office was represented but did nothing; that the whole affair gave color to the suspicion that secrecy was attempted, even though the order of the court filed with the clerk automatically became public property—all this has caused much public wonderment as to just what did occur in the case of this man, once alleged to be near the top of the slot machine gambling ring.

The judges, thus far, have not added anything to clarifying the situation. Judge Darr, who sentenced Hanson, is quoted as stating that the local judges had agreed among themselves that the Hanson sentence was too severe and that he merely concurred. Judge Cohen has intimated that is not correct and he and Judge Ford have promised further revelations when Judge Darr returns to Pittsburgh next week.

No fair-minded person, without conclusive evidence, will question the motives of a judge, or anyone else, for that matter, and the Sun-Telegraph certainly does not question the motives of the court now. It merely points to the fact that the way this case was handled has not been such as to compose the public mind about a case that previously had reached a high degree of local notoriety.

The public, in short, is looking a bit askance. It is wondering why it is so hard to bring a political racketeer to trial (the Hanson case was postponed eight times) after he has been indicted and why it is so hard to keep him in jail after he gets there. The public, it is assumed, will be pardoned if it reflects that no non-political law-breaker appears to get so much consideration from Pittsburgh officialdom.

Relations With Poland And Our New Ambassador

The Washington Post, last Friday, commented on this country's relations with Poland, and the newly-appointed American ambassador, Alexander P. Moore, of Pittsburgh. The interesting editorial is reprinted herewith:

The exchange of ambassadors between Warsaw and Washington will meet with general approval. Modern Poland has come to occupy a position of unique importance in both the political and economic life of Europe. Poland is considerably larger than Italy, and has an area equal to almost 75 per cent that of Germany or France. In population it ranks sixth among the countries of Europe, having 30,000,000 people. It is a rich agricultural country, close to the great markets of the continent.

Elevation of the legation at Warsaw to the rank of an embassy establishes the same relationship between the United States and Poland as exists between all the great powers of the world. The Polish Legation here is likewise promoted to the station of an embassy. Closer relations and more friendly understanding between the two capitals should be the result.

President Hoover has appointed Alexander P. Moore, editor and diplomat, to be the first ambassador to Poland. Mr. Moore has been in the diplomatic service for seven years, having been appointed ambassador to Spain by President Harding and ambassador to Peru by President Coolidge. By both experience and temperament he is well qualified to represent the United States in this new capacity. He will carry to Warsaw the best wishes of the American people for the continued progress of Poland. The new ambassador from that country can be assured of a cordial reception in Washington.

Action Will Test Sincerity Of Drug Meeting Delegates

They're having another of those opium conferences at Geneva—and the line-up is exactly that it has been at every other conference.

On one side we have the "manufacturing nations"—manufacturing TEN TIMES as much narcotic derivatives as the world needs for medical and scientific purposes—on the other side we have the "victim nations," not all of which by any means are invited to attend.

On one side we have gentlemen like Sir Malcolm Delavigne, who talk beautifully and suavely but get very little done, who point out that England has always favored limitation of opium production, but do NOT point out that the limitation in Britain's India is 188 grains to each customer EVERY DAY. And alongside of Sir Malcolm we have the Swiss representative sitting elbow to elbow with a representative of Swiss factories that turn out FIVE TIMES as much narcotics in one year as the world can use.

Refreshingly, on the other side from Sir Malcolm, is Signor Cavazzoni from Italy, who is constantly "out of order," constantly speaking "irrelevantly," always wanting to know, "Why don't we DO something? Why don't we REALLY cut down the manufacture and importation of opium products in his drug-ridden world?"

Signor Cavazonni doesn't expect much from this conference. He said so on the very first day after he looked over the delegates and observed a certain air of indifference among them. He saw the opium bloc—it should be called the poison bloc—standing at the door and he probably said to himself in his outspoken Italian way, "It's the same old run-around—and I ought to go home, just as the American delegation did in 1925."

That's exactly what the American delegation did in 1925, at another such conference. It "withdrew," it couldn't stand for the "run-around." It saw that the conference didn't MEAN what it SAID, and its members walked out. They were accused by the more polite representatives from the "manufacturing nations" of being narrow-minded and uncompromising, of having come to the conference with "instructions."

Well, the American delegates HAD come to Geneva with instructions—to do all in their power to kill the opium evil. The other delegates from the manufacturing nations had also come with instructions—to KEEP THE OPIUM TRADE ALIVE—and they obeyed those instructions. They passed a very lovely drug convention which limited the manufacture of

The Language of Peace

FACT that we heard King George speak the other morning at dawn is not to our political credit. We had insomnia.

"Bugs Baer"

The royal solo came across very clearly. It was the first time that our apartment house ever had its sleep disturbed by such an early peace conference.

We gave the radio all four knobs and then listened to the ambassadors and ministers plenipotentiary splatter the welkin.

The King speaks very well. But he ain't no dance orchestra.

If they are going to continue those milkmen matinees we suggest that the committee study the needs of the public and add a male quartet and a couple of bluebloomers.

There was no mastoid of ceremonies to interrupt the entertainment. The Uncle Wiggly didn't tell the little ones what happened when Little Red Riding Hood met the wolf of Wall street.

So far the peace conference is a success. No navies have been sunk and no new battlescows have been constructed.

The conference has not yet earned one of Nobel's medals or one of Rockefeller's new dimes.

We note one ominous detail. So far there have been no arguments.

All the delegates are agreeing with one another.

Which indicates they are avoiding the subject.

It is no sinecure to arise at 5 a. m. in the morning even to hear a King speak.

Isn't it possible to get our peace during working hours?

The best speech of the dawn's smoky light was a three-edged tie between Canada, Australia and America. They say the Japanese diplomat made a good chatter, but we couldn't unscramble the animal crackers.

We congratulate the conference on having chosen English as the official language of hemming and hawing. It is an upstanding, square, open and above-board language. Even on secret documents.

They have tried every tongue incorporated in the aria of the Tower of Babble. All have flopped like a tired hobo in a haystack. If the English language fails to manipulate elusive peace then we suggest they try Esperanto or the woofing of many walruses.

Isn't It So?

BUT NOT SO FAR AS GENEVA

By Herbert Kaufman

IF the Naval Conference achieves nothing ELSE, it will at least have acquainted laymen generally with the conflicts that beset all international agreement.

The man in the street begins to appreciate how differently each of the five great powers is circumstanced, and as negotiations proceed, the more he will realize the difficulty of separating common denominators from the peculiarly individual problems which America, Britain, France, Italy and Japan contribute to the disarmament quandary.

America, the ONLY self-sufficient member of the group, would find her foreign trade throttled by an effective blockade, but meanwhile could indefinitely provender local industries with all essentials of production, and continue to feed her population as usual.

ENGLAND, completely dependent upon outside sources for motor fuels, medicine supplies, breadstuffs, fibers, timber, ores, fats and sugars, is COMPELLED, willy-nilly, to maintain a given maritime strength or insist upon such guarantees of protection as America cannot AFFORD to pledge, and the Continent is loath to offer.

Italy and France, better able to subsist upon internal larders and natural resources, cannot control their Mediterranean supremacy without adequate fleets.

Japan, the SINGLE progressive and enlightened force in Asia, must carry a long enough club to police that area as Eastern peace officer for civilization.

Furthermore, her people would promptly starve and half her factories shut down, the instant an enemy managed to isolate her from the mainlands.

In the light of such facts, only an uninformed fool can expect the London Conference to evolve an equitable and mutually satisfactory parity scale within a few sessions.

THE proposal, however, to pool the five navies under a pact which would consolidate signatory powers against territorial violation and confiscatory aggression, smacks too much of the old Anglo-Belgian compact and the League of Nations scheme for Yankee taste.

A rose by any other name retains the SAME thorns. American opinion has consistently registered itself on that question in every election since 1920. We are not of a mind to enter the League of Nations through the FRONT door, BACK entrance or WATER gate.

We were never more determined to preserve independence of action—at home and abroad.

We will pick our own disputes and decide, without assistance, where our battle flags shall wave and for what cause the Sword of Lexington shall be drawn.

ALIEN extremity shan't compromise our conscience, or commit the wealths and man power of the United States to serve political balances or muddle in strangers' quarrels.

We intend to be good neighbors with all orderly, contract-respecting governments, and still show traditional willingness to lend a helping hand wherever deserved.

But intrigue and propaganda should know by this time that authority doesn't exist to change that HELPING hand to a CAT'S PAW for other peoples' hot chestnuts.

We would be pleased to abate present cruiser and battleship programs, and will go as far as anybody ELSE to secure limitation.

But we WON'T go as far as GENEVA, and with that plainly understood, we'll continue to draw cards and sit through to a SHOWDOWN.

I RODE in a magnificent car the other day—

One of those haughty, imported affairs with a delicate, disdainful lines of a borzoi and the strength of a mastodon. A tremendous brute, done in steel and enamel—

But you'd never have suspected its savage strength. No jar or jolt, no thud or thumb, to that superb mechanism.

Power poured itself along the road in a silent rush of flight.

Jungle might and lightning fury lay in that purring, pouring advance . . . thick walls would have gone down before it . . . strong men would have died beneath it . . . yet it was masked beneath an action as light and effortless as spindrift.

Power . . . the greatest thing in life . . . that's how it should happen. SILENTLY. But how seldom it does happen that way in human life.

Strong people are so apt to be noisy people . . . or shrill people. Noisy in tone and mannerism, noisy even in their habits and grooming . . .

We mistake that noise and shrillness for strength.

It isn't strength . . . it's the reverse of strength. We are noisy and shrill because there is a lack of strength . . . some secret fear which we try to cover with our noisiness.

Really strong people don't make a racket—

THEY DON'T NEED TO.

Really strong people pour out their power smoothly, invincible.

Socrates, drinking his hemlock, made no outcry . . . nor Christ carrying His cross. Ugly Socrates, it is said, grinned at the nervous aristocrats who thought to silence him with a little poison. Christ rebuked the indignant Peter who cut off scoffing ears. Christ cut off no ears . . . he filled them instead.

Both these gentlemen bore themselves with a calm and most disconcerting composure. They could afford their quiet disdain . . . THEY WERE STRONG ENOUGH TO BE STILL ABOUT IT.

Their wares were dynamite. They were leaving ideas which could and did upset a world. Walls went down before those ideas and men died for them. That—not noise—was THEIR proof of power.

Discount force that makes a hubbub about itself. Suspect your own energy when you hear the bearings knocking—

SURE POWER MAKES NO NOISE.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

ARE you willing to give fair consideration to the other fellow's side of any question upon which you find you differ?

Isn't it true that when a man disagrees with you you doubt his judgment?

Because he sees from a different angle from you is not a sign of his inferiority.

Why have such an exalted opinion of your own judgment? Very likely you are far from a leader in your own line. It is usually that sort of person who is opinionated.

In your small locality where efforts do not have to extend far to be successful, you may be doing well. But how would you fare if you were to go to a larger community and should find yourself in competition with expert service in your line?

Is your work broad enough to include the knowledge you would need in a big city in order to command attention?

And yet you presume to think your ideas superior to those who have had the corners knocked off until they are smooth, fine workers.

If you were an authority in fact you would be less positive in talk. You would be less positive in your opinions.

Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

THE bodies of Coelenterates are soft, although they often make rigid houses to live in, or frameworks to live 'round, and the group is characterized by their peculiar stinging-capsules. Many of them are sessile and flower-like, so that they have been called the Zoophyta, or plant-like animals.

There are three classes of Coelenterates, of which the Hydrozoe includes Obelia.

H. G. Wells

The members of this class are all variations, so to speak, upon the Obelia theme; the kind of life-history that we have described, with its alternation between the free-swimming sexual medusa and the colony of budding polyps, underlies the group, although it may be more or less profoundly modified.

Best known are a great number of forms, growing like Obelia on hard objects 'round our coasts and often mistaken for small seaweeds; they differ from each other in the structure of the polyps and medusae and of the horny tubes and cups in which the colony lives.

The structure of our common representatives of the group can be seen clearly only with a magnifying glass, but in some forms the polyps may be brilliantly colored flower-like objects two or three inches across, and the medusae, as transparent as glass, may be 15 inches across the bell. In some species the life-history is simpler.

There may be no colony stage at all; there are forms in which sexual medusae develop directly from the fertilized egg—medusae otherwise very similar to those of Obelia.

On the other hand, there are forms without medusae, and we may pause for a moment to examine one of these.

Hydra is a minute creature found commonly enough in fresh water ponds; it may be a third of an inch long.

It is like a single, free-living polyp of Obelia; it has a hollow cylindrical body, with a mouth surrounded by tentacles.

It usually remains fixed, catching Cyclops and the like with its tentacles, which, when the animal is hungry, trail in the water like a drift-net. Sometimes it moves from place to place, gliding along on its base or looping like a looper caterpillar.

Like Obelia, it is a loosely organized cell-community; if it is cut into halves, or even into small bits, each fragment can reconstruct itself and form a whole Hydra.

Its methods of reproduction are two.

It may produce buds—a lump of tissue appears somewhere on the side of the creature, grows, develops a mouth and tentacles, and breaks away.

Sometimes, when food is very plentiful, the bud may start to grow new buds from its own flanks even before it breaks away from its parent; this is a hint, so to speak, of the colony-formation seen in Obelia.

Normally, however, Hydra is not colonial. Sometimes little swellings may appear on the sides of Hydra—not in definite places, but anywhere—which do not form buds. These swellings produce eggs if they are near the base of the body, spermatozoa if they are near the top.

The eggs are relatively large, passive cells like our own eggs; the spermatozoa are tiny, active tadpole-like creatures as our own are. The sperms swim up to and fertilize the eggs, which then develop into little embryo Hydras without any intermediate stage.

Hydra, then, contrasts with Obelia in two respects—first, there is no medusa and the polyp is itself sexual; second, there is no colony-formation and no division of labor between polyps like that between feeding-polyps and blastostyles in Obelia.

On the other hand, there is another group of Hydrozoans, the Siphonophores, in which colony-formation is carried to an extreme degree. They are found floating in the open sea, chiefly in warm water.

The "Portuguese man-o'-war," Physalia, is a good example; it has an elongated bladder filled with air, from one to twelve inches long, by means of which it floats, and having above a raised crest or sail; the whole is peacock-blue or orange.

From the lower side of this float there hang bunches of miscellaneous-looking objects—blue, violet and carmine, with a silvery sheen.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—The American stage is shy of prima donnas. The dainty lady with personality who can skilfully handle top notes is assured wealth and fame. The remarkable reception to Evelyn Laye, English prima donna, recently, presages a possible vogue for the undiscovered Yankee darling.

Two showing unusual promise in the past few years were immediately put under grand opera contracts, and there is at this time no likely prospect on the musical horizon. The amazing comeback of Fritzi Scheff at the age of 50 emphasized the distinct appeal of the sisterhood.

Any number of prima donna applicants display remarkable voices but lack that bright eyed piquancy and grace the roles demand. Others who provided a feast for the eye lacked vocal requirements. There are said to be six sure-fire operattas awaiting suitable talent.

One of the great obstacles for producers in exploiting prima donnas is their appeal among rich and marriageable gentlemen. The late Victor Herbert, who composed so many vehicles for them, once said: "Everybody, including the property man, immediately falls in love with a prima donna."

No type of stage star inspires so much sentimentality. Moon-struck gallants will occupy front rows night after night and clot at stage doors to see such an idol. They go utterly ga-ga, penning mushy notes and running up extravagant florist bills.

Thus has matrimony so frequently interrupted careers of beautiful damozels on the crest of the wave. "No marriage" contracts have been employed, but if they are broken there is little the producer can do save look about for another star.

The need for the perfect prima donna is voiced by the most astute of the producers, who recently said: "If I can find in America a girl with voice, beauty and charm for the leading role in an operetta, I will gladly agree to pay her $7,000 a week for two years."

Fashionable dressmakers admit the old style whalebone corset is back in our midst. With long skirts, Paris announced the revival among fashionable dressers some time ago. Coupled with all this is news a famous corsetiere, who sold her business when the corset went out, has opened up again. And her salon is in the building occupying the site of the old Vanderbilt mansion.

The gentleman who sends news about the return of the corset adds: "I am already getting my muscles in shape (by rowing in Central Park) for the daily tug at the strings." Heave ho!

There is a touch of pathos these wintry days in the return of the little roaming street bands plotting with a vague lurking sadness along curbs and in apartment court yards. Many of them have been recruited from the 1,500 theater musicians so long out of work. When the talkies drove them from their pits, they loafed for several months in hope their cosmic catastrophe was temporary. But better days did not come and so they have become itinerant players, drifting pathetically about for pitched coins.

opium derivatives "exclusively to medical and legitimate scientific purposes"—but they did nothing at all about enforcing that convention. They set up no machinery. They might just as effectively have spent their time singing folk songs. . . . America walked out, the world profits from the trade have increased enormously since 1925 and the imports of narcotics to America have increased from 99,000 pounds in 1923 to 144,000 pounds in 1929.

Only ONE nation has taken that drug convention seriously. That nation is Spain, which is a "victim nation," which does not manufacture narcotics, and which sincerely wants the traffic stopped. The Spanish delegates went home and secured the passage of an effective law. That law has been in effect for 14 months and the manufacturing nations do not like it. It is called the "stipulated supply" law. Each year the Spanish government estimates the amount of opium it will need and publicly announces from which country it will buy its supply. The law is enforced and that's all the narcotic that can be legally imported to Spain.

They are going to talk about that law at this Geneva conference. They are going to discuss it. And not what the delegates SAY, but what they do will be the test of their sincerity.

And if they don't do the right thing, if they hem and haw and wink at the opium bloc, our American delegates ought to WALK OUT AGAIN. They owe that much to the American people—and the American people will support them!
